Snow, Rain Glaze Streets, Snarl Area Traffic Anew

Suburban Roads Nearly Impassable; Falls Put Many In D. C. Hospitals

Light snow and drizzling rain, seeping down in subfreezing temperatures, yesterday iced up the Washington area and made all outdoor movement treacherous.

Traffic jams involving multiple collisions, and falls on slippery pavements keps police and hospitals busy throughout the day and night.

The weatherman promised some relief this morning, when, he said, the thermometer should rise slowly above the freezing mark after an overnight low of 30 degrees. Temperatures rising to 36 and continuation of occasional rain was forecast for today.

More Rain Tomorrow

Tomorrow, the weatherman said, Washington can expect more rain, possibly changing to snow, and another drop in temperatures.

Reports from Accident Investigation Unit motorcycle patrolmen, who handle the brunt of traffic relief work, were that icing conditions yesterday and last night were "the worst we've ever seen here."

Most troublesome traffic spots yesterday were Massachusetts ave. underpass at Thomas Circle, nw., where police untangled four accident jams in three hours involving a total of 18 vehicles, and on hilly Porter st. nw., where seven automobiles and a motorcycle slithered into and around each other at 2:30 p. m.

A hose truck of No. 4 Engine Company skidded 150 feet into the rear of an automobile about 6:15 p. m. while answering an alarm at 16th and T sts. nw.

The truck skidded along the icy pavement after the driver, Pvt. Wendell Shelton, applied the brakes, Capt. J. A. Briscoe, of No. 4, said. Bent fenders on both vehicles were the only damages.

The automobile, Briscoe said, operated by J. Edward Stevens, 30, 1713 4th st. nw., had pulled off to the left side of R st., a one-way street, but had not left sufficient clearance for the fire apparatus.

Suburban streets in Maryland and Virginia were last night reported "virtually impassable" and the motoring public was warned to garage cars.

Seriously hurt in falls reported to police yesterday was Samuel Krucoff, 73, a tailor, of 2717 Woodley pl. nw., who suffered a broken right hip when he slipped to the street.

Also hurt in falls yesterday were

Auto Thrill-Wreckers Given 3-Month Terms

Decatur, Ga., Feb. 11 (AP).—Four socially prominent youths who pleaded guilty to wrecking automobiles for a "thrill" were sentenced today to serve three months in prison.

They admitted releasing brakes on more than a score of automobiles. The cars careened down hills. Police estimated the damage at more than $8000.

Judge Phillips said he would recommend that the teen-age youths be separated from hardened criminals at the Dekalb County work camp. They are Danny Payne, Leonard Haas, J. E. Evans, jr., and Harold Ferst.

Raw Material Swap for Aid Made Possible

Senators Pave Way For Barter Payment From ERP Countries

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday opened the way for the United States to get strategic raw materials in part payment for its help to Europe.

In the Administration's draft of the European Recovery Bill, as submitted to Congress last December, there was a provision for "facilitating the sale" of such materials to the United States for stockpiling purposes. This would have compelled the United States to pay in dollars for whatever bauxite, chrome, rubber or other strategic materials it might have needed from the 16 "Marshall Plan" countries.

Barter Specified

Yesterday, however, the Senate committee decided this was not good enough. It approved an amendment by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) providing for the transfer of such materials to the United States "by sale, barter or otherwise," as one of the conditions of American aid.

The change is important, for it means that there will be some direct repayment by the European nations if the new administrator of the recovery program decides to ask for it. The British, French, Belgian and Dutch colonial territories are especially rich in materials which the United States lacks and needs for defense purposes.

Another amendment by Lodge, approved by the committee yesterday, directs the ERP administrator to encourage the use of coal-burning rather than oil-burning industrial equipment in Europe, and the purchase of oil for Europe from non-American sources.

Good Progress Made

During the committee's public hearings Lodge and other Senators expressed concern over the depletion of the American oil supply. Government witnesses assured them that the bulk of European oil needs could be met from the Middle East and the Caribbean.

The Senate committee spent all morning "marking up" technical provisions of the draft bill dealing with such questions as the methods of procuring supplies for Europe. In the afternoon the committee was reported to have made swift progress through other items of the bill, although Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg said he was unlikely to announce completed sections of the bill until Friday.

First indications came yesterday that the committee's decisions were winning the support of wavering Republican Senators.

Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), for example, expressed satisfaction at the committee's de-

Spokesmen for Faiths In East and West Join in Ceremony

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Mohandas K. Gandhi, who tried to lead a war-torn world toward truly lasting peace, was memorialized here yesterday in an impressive ceremony.

The program, one of a string of similar meetings held throughout the world, attracted more than a thousand Washingtonites anxious to pay tribute to the international leader.

Among those gathered in the flower and fern bedecked Departmental Auditorium were President and Mrs. Truman, the presidential Cabinet, the Nation's leading diplomats and leaders of organized religions.

The program began with the singing of a devotional prayer by 14 Indian women, barefooted and attired in sweeping white cotton saris. As the auditorium lights were lowered, a haze from burning incense rose from the fern-fronted rostrum.

Garbed in the traditional robes of their religious observance, spokesmen for Eastern and Western faiths read from their holiest volumes, seeking the words with which to describe the worth of the departed man.

The first was from Gandhi's own faith—Hindu. Swami Premananda, a short, dark-haired man attired in a flowing bright yellow gown, read from the Gita. "The soul is immortal," he concluded, interpreting the passage.

Next was Hamid Ali, Mohammedan, who read from the Koran. The grey-haired, dark-skinned man wearing knee-length stockings,

Russia Claims Munich Deal Was Frame-Up

Britain and France Charged With Seeking Hitler Attack to East

Moscow, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Russia charged tonight Britain and France connived with Adolf Hitler in hatching World War II by appeasing him, hoping to get him to attack the Soviet Union.

In the process, it was asserted, Britain and France betrayed Austria and Czechoslovakia.

The accusation was made in the second installment of a reply by the official Soviet Information Bureau to the German foreign office documents on Nazi-Russian relations made public by the U. S. State Department in Washington.

Russia's statement tonight cited, in turn, German documents seized by the Red army as authority for its charges against Britain and France.

Another One Due

It was announced another installment of the Russian reply would come soon.

(In the first, issued in Moscow Monday night, Russia asserted the United States financed the Nazi war machine while Britain and France appeased Hitler, and all three thus made the war possible.)

Tonight there was but one brief reference to the United States. Until lately, the Soviet statement said, it was customary to blame Britain and France alone for the Munich appeasement. But, it added:

"The fact the American Government undertook to make the German files public while excluding documents pertaining to the Munich agreement shows the United States Government is interested in whitewashing the heroes of the Munich treachery and in putting the blame on the Soviet Union."

In effect, by their policies, Brit-

CIO Indicted In Political Activity Test

Murray Is Named Also for Violation Designed to Obtain High Court Ruling

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A Federal grand jury yesterday indicted the CIO and its president, Philip Murray, for their "test case" violation of the labor law prohibition against political expenditures.

The big union organization and its top officer were charged with having illegally spent money—by printing and distributing an indorsement of a congressional candidate—in a special Baltimore election last July.

Murray's article, which appeared in the CIO News, deliberately courted a test of the legality of a Taft-Hartley Act provision. The act forbids any national bank, corporation and labor organization from making any contribution or expenditure in connection with a national or congressional election.

Constitution Point Involved

Murray contends that the section is a violation of Constitutional guarantees.

Murray was in Pittsburgh yesterday but issued a statement through his office here declaring that he had acted in order to get a ruling in the courts that "no act of Congress can abridge our basic Constitutional rights of freedom of press and freedom of expression."

His attorneys hope to push the case through to the Supreme Court as fast as possible.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark also intimated yesterday that he was eager for clarification. In a statement, he said that the "Executive Branch of the Government will, of course, enforce the statute as it is written."

Normal Procedure Outlined

But, he pointed out, the Taft-Hartley Act "can present a problem in the accommodation of the constitutional power of the Congress to regulate Federal elections with the constitutional freedom of speech and press."

Under normal procedure, Murray will be arraigned before a Federal judge on February 20. In the following 10 days, CIO attorneys can move to have the indictment quashed. If the judge grants such a motion, the U. S. Attorney prosecuting the case can appeal the decision directly to the Supreme Court. This would be the quickest way to get a final ruling.

If the judge does not throw out the indictment, however, the case will be argued in Federal Court, and the resulting decision can be appealed through the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the Supreme Court.

Pressmen on Case

Leo Pressman, who recently resigned as CIO general counsel, will nevertheless continue on the present case for the union, it was announced.

In an unusual move, Harvey W. Brown, president of the independent International Association of Machinists, announced yesterday he would intervene in the case, as a friend of the court, to fight what he claimed was a suppression of constitutional rights.

In his statement yesterday, Murray explained that he had published his political indorsement—it supported Representative Edward M. Garmatz (D., Md.)—not in a "spirit of defiance and bitterness." Rather, he said, he did it as the best means to obtain a "final decision which we hope will assure continued protection for basic American liberties."

"More—much more—than the

Commodity Prices Continue Downward Trend in Nation; N. Y. Stocks Recover After Dip

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Commodity prices, led by grains, continued their extended downward movement yesterday, although few closed at the day's low.

Meantime New York stocks, after an early dip, recovered, with gains as numerous as losses at the close.

Livestock, for the second consecutive day, showed strength in the face of weakness in grains. Hogs were up 50 cents to $2 a hundred pounds higher, with a top at Chicago of $24.25. Cattle prices were steady, top grades up 50 cents and others down as much.

Cotton at New York closed from $1.65 to 50 cents a bale lower.

At one time or another all contracts in wheat, corn and soybeans were off the full limits permitted in one trading session. At the close, though, several had regained a small portions of their losses. Oats acted less drastically, only oats for May delivery dropping for a short time the permissible 6 cents a bushel.

Good news for the Nation's breadwinners came from flour mills. One leading miller in Minneapolis quoted 100-pound sacks of flour for home use at $6.95, down 25 cents from Tuesday. Bakery flour was off 15 cents.

The price for family type flour compares with $8.40—the high point on December 11. It was quoted at $6.60 last July. Bakery flour was $1.25 lower than the high point reached January 15.

Livestock receipts were the lowest in months, indicating that growers are holding back their supplies in anticipation of a meat scarcity in the next 90 days.

Not everybody suffered from the extended shrinkage on values of grain, the Senate Agriculture Committee learned yesterday.

One operator, identified by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson as E. T. Maynard, a veteran of 30 years' trading on the Chicago Board of Trade, made several hundred thousand dollars by selling short during the four-day drop last week.

Maynard was the trader referred

NLRB Plans Construction Union Vote

Program Involving 14,000 Elections Outlined by Denham

A gigantic program of union elections, to make union security in the construction industry legal under the Taft-Hartley Act, was announced yesterday.

The plan, involving a minimum of 14,000 separate elections in which some 2,500,000 building trades workers will vote, was made public by Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Denham discussed the plan in an address to the Associated General Contractors at Dallas, Tex. His speech was made public by the NLRB offices here.

Denham declared that whatever had been the practice under the old Wagner Act, the NLRB proposed to take over jurisdiction of the entire construction and building industry under the new Taft-Hartley Act.

This means, he said, that the board will act to prevent excessive union initiation fees, "featherbedding," secondary boycotts and jurisdictional disputes. These practices, banned by the new law, are particularly prevalent among the building trades.

On jurisdictional disputes, Denham asked the contractors to join in an arrangement now being developed by the unions and the employers associations, to handle and settle all such cases.

The alternative, he warned, would be for the NLRB to step in, under new legal provisions, and issue decisions on jurisdictional disputes (conflicts between unions

GSI Strikers Are Convicted Of Assault

2 Women Accosted Cafeteria Employe On Her Way to Work

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

Two women strikers in the GSI cafeteria dispute were found guilty in Municipal Court yesterday of assaulting a woman going to work at one of the cafeterias.

It was the first trial involving picket line violence in the 38-day-old strike. Fourteen pickets and three nonstrikers have been arrested.

Convicted by a jury yesterday were Miss Queenie Simmons, 25, 738 Morton st. nw., and Miss Camilla Loynes, 21, 1722 15th st. nw. They face possible maximum sentences of a year in jail or a $500 fine, or both.

Judge Armond W. Scott referred the case to the probation officer for report and set February 25 for sentencing. Defense attorney Belford Lawson, jr., said he would appeal.

More Violence

According to testimony the two women accosted Miss Catherine Shepherd, 21, 1124 54th st. ne., as she was about to enter the National Gallery of Art January 17 to report for work. Police said the girl was knocked down in an altercation that followed.

Police reported a new incident of violence yesterday morning at the Independence Cafeteria, 7th st. and Independence ave. sw. They said a woman striker there hit a nonstriker on the head with an umbrella. No charges were pressed, however, when the two were brought before an assistant United States attorney.

On Capitol Hill yesterday, the House subcommittee delving into the strike made an unsuccessful effort to learn more about stories in The Washington Post concerning White House interest in the dispute.

With Chairman Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) out of town, Representatives Wint Smith (R., Kans.) and O. C. Fisher (D., Tex.) devoted the session to questioning James Russell Wiggins, managing editor of The Washington Post, and this reporter.

Vouches for Accuracy

Both witnesses declined to elaborate on stories appearing yesterday and Tuesday to the effect that the White House has ordered Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming to bring about bargaining between GSI and the striking union.

"The story we received," Wiggins told Fisher in answer to questions, "is in its essentials correct."

More Cuts Promised in Food Prices For Weekend

Competitive Action Indicated After Markdowns of Last Few Days

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A rash of competitive cuts in food prices, touched off by price markdowns here during the past three days, is forecast for this areas food stores this weekend.

"Present price cuts have been far greater than market conditions justify, and new listings will be more so, but we feel we have to make the cuts," said the operator of one independent super-market.

Chain store officials refused to speculate on any possible future price cuts, contending that their policy would continue to be one of meeting competition.

Steak Cut Announced

An independent market announced that effective today it would cut the price of steaks from 79 cents a pound to 69, and top grade sliced bacon from 65 cents to 55 cents. Grade A eggs were listed at 55 cents a dozen.

Another super-market operator announced he had cut the price of lard to 24 cents a pound, "and I paid 31 cents a pound for it a few weeks ago."

One food chain meanwhile announced effective today a series of cuts on items ranging from salad oil to sausage links. Salad oil was cut from 48 to 45 cents a pint; 5 pounds of cornmeal reduced from 43 to 41 cents, and sausage meat from 49 to 45 cents, among other price drops.

Neighborhood Stores

Neighborhood stores also claimed price drops. "We have cut prices on every possible item which has been reduced in cost to us," declared a spokesman for one of the groups of neighborhood. In addition, he said, many stores have cut prices on such food as bread, from 13 to 12 cents a loaf, to meet competition.

Some stores announcing price cuts reported that shoppers were still commenting that prices were too high. Others said that while the number of customers had increased considerably, many housewives were doing more "looking" than "buying."

Margarine Starts Down

Margarine prices yesterday joined the downward trend noted on flour, butter, sugar, lard and some smoked and fresh meats.

A 3-cent a pound cut in the price ofmargarine to wholesalers was announced yesterday by one major manufacturer.

Some food stores here immediately reduced margarine prices 2 cents a pound, although they said the manufacturers' reduction had not reached them.

Butter, dropping steadily in price since last week, went down another 2 cents a pound at many local stores.

Georgetown Owners Divided on Rezoning Proposal

The Washington Post

GEORGETOWN RESIDENTS PACK DISTRICT BUILDING'S NEWLY RENOVATED BOARD ROOM FOR ZONING HEARING

Georgetown homeowners split with business and real estate interests yesterday over a proposed ban on business and apartment houses in certain Georgetown areas.

At a four-hour Zoning Commission hearing, attended by approximately 150, 19 witnesses opposed and 15 favored the plan, while 2 said they favored it with certain qualifications.

Opponents said the proposed rezoning from commercial to restricted residential would cut property values and reduce the District's tax income. It would be unfair to persons who purchased land because it's now zoned commercial, they said. Two attorneys maintained it would be "illegal."

Proponents said the change would protect Georgetown, an historical and architectural "masterpiece," from encroachment by businesses and apartment houses, maintaining it as an area of picturesque small homes and gardens.

The changes, suggested by a group of Georgetown residents, was favored by the Zoning Advisory Council, which includes two District and one National Capital Park and Planning Commission members.

However, by the Citizens Zoning Advisory Committee, including representatives of the Board of Trade, Real Estate Board, Home Builders Association and American Institute of Architects.

Krumbach said he was sitting in his hotel room, January 29, when some one came in and struck him over the head.

Nation-Wide Boosts In Secret Rent Plan

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Nation-wide 15 per cent rent boosts are part of the secret report on new controls that is before the Senate Banking Committee.

There are few—if any—areas in the country that could escape higher rents, under the recommendations given the committee by the subcommittee headed by Senator Cain (R., Wash.).

Tenants here and there might be able to hold on to the ceilings in force now—but the subcommittee plan would put the burden on tenants to block the boosts rather than on landlords to show that they ought to get more rent. The tenants would have to fight the boosts house by house and building by building, before housing officials and in the courts if the landlords appealed to them.

Only Part Discussed

The report went before the committee last Friday, but only a part of it was read and discussed. The report then was suppressed, and even some members of the committee do not have copies.

Not until yesterday did the terms of the suppressed recommendations come to light.

Here is the subcommittee's rent ceiling boost plan:

When any property owner shows that costs in his area have risen 30 per cent since rents were frozen, then—whether or not this owner or any other actually is spending more—"all rent ceilings in such area shall be increased 15 per cent." If the housing officials do not raise the ceiling, the landlord can ask the courts to do so.

If the officials do not act, the ceiling goes up in 30 days without their doing so. All such rent raises date back to the month after the filing of the petition.

Where landlords show that costs are up less than 30 per cent, then the ceiling for the area would go up half the percentage shown.

Tenants could ask the housing office to keep the old ceilings in force by showing their own landlords' costs had not gone up, even if those for the area had. Each house or building would be a separate case, and in every one the landlords, or the tenants, could take whatever ruling was given to court.

Senator Buck (R., Del.) said that he got the idea the plan was to help landlords who showed their own costs had increased by giving them the 15 per cent higher ceilings. Buck said there was little doubt that the clause, as written, would mean a Nation-wide blanket increase.

Other observers pointed out that few tenants could hope to hold on to present ceilings, because it would be a hopeless job for most of them to prove their landlord's costs had not gone up.

Leaders in Congress still hope to get a new control bill passed before the present controls come to an end the last of this month. Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) said the whole subcommittee report would be closely studied when the banking committee goes back to work on the rent bill next week.

Senator Sparkman (D., Ala.) said that the higher ceiling plan would not be approved if he could help it.

"It's not fair," said Sparkman. "It puts the burden of proof on the tenant, and that's not right. I'm against it."

Commodity Prices Continue Downward Movement in Nation

to Tuesday as having sold a million bushels short last Wednesday when the break started. Chairman August Andresen (R., Minn.) of the special House committee investigating speculation, had charged the dealer, before his name was public, with having profited up to $400,000 by "inside information."

Both Maynard and Anderson denied Andresen's charges yesterday.

At Chicago Maynard said: "All you had to do to know prices were going down was to read the newspapers."

Maynard would not say what his profits were, but said $200,000 would be "nearer correct than $400,000."

Maynard, 62, a handsome, graying man, replied to Andresen by flatly denying the latter's charge of "inside information." He declared that he had watched Government statements, as printed in the newspapers, and drew on his long experience.

Maynard, born in New York, was a member of the New York Stock Exchange from 1908 to 1912. He went to Chicago in 1914 and entered the grain market. Since that time he has been speculating, with the exception of time out for service as a lieutenant in World War I.

He has also done some investing in oil, saying with a chuckle: "Me and Ed Pauley, eh?"

Anderson revealed Maynard's name while testifying before the Senate Agriculture Committee in favor of giving the Commodity Exchange Authority power over margin requirements for commodity trading when it was demanded by Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.).

Maynard, Anderson said, "has been active in wheat, corn, oats, and cotton, playing the market on both the long and short sides.

"He has been so adroit at calling the turn that he has made money even on the long side since the market began its decline.

"He sold about a million bushels of wheat short Wednesday. He covered part of his position on Friday with about 18 cents a bushel profit. The balance was covered Saturday, with about 25 cents profit. The total gain exceeded $200,000.

"He demonstrated an even finer sense of timing in his oats operations. He had a long position when the break started. He sold this out promptly Wednesday. He then stayed out of oats while they declined on Thursday the full limit. He reentered on the long side after prices again declined Friday. On both the following trading days, Saturday and Monday, oats reversed and went upwards. Maynard rode the market up, and sold half his holdings at just about the peak."

Anderson then took a crack at Andresen, by telling the committee:

"Some of those now investigating the commodity markets apparently consider any profitable trade as proof that inside information had been obtained from some corrupt Government official.

"In the case of this trader, I suggest that, instead of making any such accusation, we consider arranging for him to share his information with the Government."

The four-day feud between Anderson on one side and Andresen and Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) on the other broadened out into an open fight on the floor of the Senate.

Senator W. Lee O'Daniel (D., Tex.), a frequent critic of Anderson, charged that Anderson "is the real gambler" in the market. He said it was time for Anderson to resign.

O'Daniel said heavy purchases of gain had forced up not only grain prices, but the cost of consumer products such as meat. He said the Administration's purpose was to force up prices of food and clothing to make a case for price controls and rationing.

Three other Democratic Senators rushed to Anderson's defense.

"Tommyrot and poppycock," snorted Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.).

"Mudslinging and name-calling without the basis of a single figure to support what he said," declared Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico, Anderson's home State. Another New Mexico Senator, Dennis Chavez, declared "abuse does not prove a thing. I know Secretary Anderson can take care of himself."

Late in the day Anderson issued a new blast, telling Andresen and Taft that if they "would quit their foolish charges, the market would have a chance to stabilize itself.

"I remind Andresen that I told him Monday his rash statements would only further upset the market," Anderson said. "Sure enough, the market went down the limit Tuesday and at today's opening. Andresen has done his farmers tremendous financial damage by talking about a field where he has no information.

"Andresen on February 9 tells the House the Secretary of Agriculture is to blame for the bottom falling out of the commodities market.

"Senator Taft Tuesday night in Illinois, accuses the Secretary of supporting the market.

"One or the other or both must be wrong."

The effect of the commodity break on the European Recovery Program was being watched intently on Capitol Hill and at the State Department.

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the slump would not in itself justify cutting the size of the program. But Senator Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) and Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) thought prompt enactment of the program early this spring would help domestic producers of wheat and cotton by ensuring markets for surpluses.

November prices were used as the basis of the Administration's request for $6,800,000,000 for the first 15 months, a State Department official recalled. He estimated that prices of commodities destined for Europe had not yet fallen back to the November levels. Secretary Marshall told his press conference yesterday he would have to consult his economic experts before saying the commodity break would permit a cut in ERP.

Zone Change Plan Debated

Prospect ave. between Potomac and 36th sts.; both sides of Prospect ave. between 36th and 37th sts.; both sides of P st. between Wisconsin ave. and 35th sts.

South side of O st. between Wisconsin ave. and Potomac st.; both sides of N st. between Wisconsin and Potomac; east side of Potomac st. from Prospect ave. to O st.

Wilkes Leads Opposition

Opposition was led by Attorney James Wilkes, representing several commercial property owners. It would be unconstitutional to change zoning for "esthetic" reasons when "public health or safety" is not at stake, he maintained.

Attorney Eugene Ditto represented proponents of the plan, who argued that the change would preserve the historical and architectural nature of the area and that apartment houses would crowd narrow streets. Also favoring the plan were Assistant Secretary of Commerce David Bruce, two State Department officials and a former Congresswoman.

Favors Minor Changes

Mrs. Harold B. Hinton, 1425 34th st. nw., wife of a New York Times correspondent, and Stephen P. Dorsey, 3330 Reservoir rd., a State Department official, both spoke briefly in favor of the new zoning regulation.

Stanton Kolb, president of the Georgetown Citizens Association, favored the plan with minor changes to assure "balance" between residential and commercial property.

F. G. Awalt, attorney, and William B. Bennett, vice president and secretary of Capital Transit Co., opposed the change, saying it would hurt operation of CTC's general offices and car house at M and 36th sts. nw.

WAA Scoffs At Promoter's Quoddy Claim

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Samuel A. Greco, who "seized possession" of Passamaquoddy Village Tuesday, didn't seize anything, the War Assets Administration said yesterday.

As a master of fact, a WAA spokesman said, Greco did not even enter the Quoddy property. This spokesman described a story from Eastport, Me., about Greco's "seizure" of the property as "considerably exaggerated."

Built by New Deal

Passamaquoddy Village, built by the New Dea in 1934 as part of an unfinished tide-harnessing project, received considerable attention last August when an effort to purchase it at 100 per cent discount was made by Frank Cohen, a New York promoter. Cohen said he wanted the village as a training center for 100,000 displaced persons from Europe who would be sent to South America when their training was completed. He was backed by Senator Brewster (R., Me.) who said his only interest was to make Quoddy village productive.

The WAA spokesman said yesterday that Greco had made three bids for Quoddy, two at $1501 and one at $201,000. One $1501 bid, WAA said, was made last summer, and one was made November 25. These bids were offered in the expectation of using Quoddy as a fishing and boating resort.

Greco's third bid, the WAA spokesman said, was for $201,000 and envisioned Quoddy as a veterans' housing project.

All Bids Rejected

In the November bidding, at least two other bidders exceeded Greco's highest offer. They were the Cantabrigian Youth Foundation, which bid $205,000, and the Eastern Flexicore Corp., which offered $203,466.

All bids were rejected, however, because the WAA had set "an established fair value" of $396,000 on the property which cost several million dollars to build.

According to the WAA spokesman here, the $1000 check which Greco used to claim ownership was a deposit which all bidders for Government property must make. These deposits, he said, are placed in escrow and are returned to unsuccessful bidders after the sale is completed.

Drop Communists From Ballot, Moley Urges House Group

Raymond Moley—an early New Deal brain truster—yesterday urged that the Communist Party be outlawed and barred from the ballot.

Moley told the House Un-American Activities Committee he favored such a law because he wanted to protect liberal and radical movements which are American in origin.

Adolf A. Berle, jr., former Assistant Secretary of State who now is chairman of the New York Liberal Party, thought the President could do more against Communists. He said the Attorney General could rule that they were agents of Russia, and force them to register as foreign agents.

Morris L. Ernest, New York liberal lawyer, told the committee the only difference between a Communist and a Klansman was the goods it took to make a nightshirt. Ernst said the Communists are using Henry Wallace as a nightshirt to cover up their own activities. Communists cannot get along in the light, he added, so they are slipping into the Wallace third party, possibly without the former Vice President knowing it.

Ernst said he saw great danger to the country from both the right and left. His remedy was publicity, forcing all groups to tell who paid for their propaganda. Ernst said Gerald L. K. Smith, for instance, is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars to send out the forged Protocol of the Elders of Zion—long used by Anti-Semitic forces—and nobody knows where the money came from.

Ford Hits 'Hazard' Of Overproduction

London, Feb. 11 (AP).—Henry Ford 2d criticized the "outmoded" theory that overproductino causes depressions tonight and said he was optimistic about industry's future.

The 30-year-old president of the Ford Motor Co., in a speech to a group of British industrial leaders, called for a greater exchange of goods and ideas as the path to peace and prosperity.

2 in U. S. Army Garb, Woman Slain in Reich

Munich, Germany, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The bodies of two Negroes dressed in American Army uniforms, and the mutilated body of a half-clad German woman were found in a forest north of Munich this week, authorities announced today.

The body of the woman, about 25, was slashed from her backbone to her navel.

The bodies were found in an area known as "lovers lane" to GIs and German girl friends.

Ax Assault on Constable Charged to Woman, 80

Monmouth, Ill., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Elizabeth Jean Snedeker, a little over 80 years old, and a little over 4 feet tall, was formally charged today with assaulting a constable with an ax when he and a policeman forced open her door to serve an eviction notice.

Bond was fixed at $1500. Unable to furnish it, Mrs. Snedeker remained in jail, where she celebrated her eighth birthday yesterday.

'Brass' Seen at Fault At Kasserine Pass

By Hal Boyle

New York, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Five years ago this week "the desert rat" paid a Valentine visit to American forces in North Africa.

The tempestuous Teuton—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel—sent the overwhelmed Yanks spinning back 40 miles.

That was the only time I ever led troops. I ran back 41½ miles.

After a week of wild rampaging, Rommel trundled his Panzers back into the Tunisian coastal hills, leaving behind the hulks of 86 American tanks and 30 overrun field guns.

Since then it has been the fashion to treat the Battle of Kasserine Gap as a great defeat caused by the greenness of American troops.

This ready explanation puts a needless and untrue slur on the men who fought there, men who really had done considerable fighting already. And it hides the fact that much of the blame belongs on the top brass.

Many of the men went to their deaths believing they were fighting the battle the wrong way. I know this because one evening they told me so, any the next evening they were dead.

Many American officers who fought there, believe the record would have been considerably better if their units hadn't been fed to Rommel a battalion at a time.

This is how it looks to me five years after:

There was no American "Army" in Tunisia—only the Second Corps, made up of the First Infantry and First Armored Divisions with supporting units.

They were strung out along a 150-mile north-south front, on the right flank of the British First Army, with British Maj. Gen. Kenneth A. N. Anderson in overall command. The sea to the east and this joint British-American force on the west made a corridor through which Field Marshal Montgomery's Eighth Army was driving Rommel's Afrika Korps toward Tunis after a 1500-mile pursuit.

It was foreseen Rommel would try to break out of the corridor to grab desperately needed gasoline. He could strike at the British through the muontain pass at Pichon or through Faid Pass near the center of the thin American line.

Anderson thought Rommel would choose Pichon. But "the desert rat" came through Faid Pass—with three full veteran panzer divisions.

Maj. Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall, Second Corps commander, frantically demanded he be permitted to regroup the First Armored and First Infantry and fight them as full divisions to meet this threat.

Anderson refused, believing the Faid attack was only a diversion and the main German blow would still come through Pichon. He didn't want to commit all American armor at Faid.

"I'm going to be the goat in this," Fredendall said when Anderson's reply came.

So the first day one battalion from the First Armored was sent against the Germans. Outgunned, outnumbered—but not outfought—it was destroyed. The next day a second American tank battalion was ordered out piecemeal and met the same fate.

This left Fredendall only one heavy tank battalion. It was under Brig. Gen. Paul McDonald Robinett—slim, small cantankerous commander of Combat Command "B."

A brilliant tactician, Robinett and his men stubbornly held off a German force at least five times their size until the infantry could withdraw. Then they pulled out in perfect order.

I bring up all this because Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, perhaps Britain's finest soldier, says in his memoirs the Americans had "no coordinated plan of defense" at this time. That's true. They were confused. Their plan had been knocked in the head the first night.

Alexander also says the decisive engagement a few days later which halted Rommel at Thala was fought by a British armored brigade and infantry battalion supported by two battalions of the American Ninth Infantry Division.

That's only half the picture. When Rommel got through Kasserine Gap he had the choice of turning south to capture the American Second Corps supplies or north through Thala to outflank the British.

He tried both places—hard. The British and American guns bounced him back from Thala. Combat Command "B" under Robinett stopped his southward challenge cold. Then the American Air Forces went to work on Rommel in the exposed valley. Baffled and still gas-hungry, his panzers withdrew on the long road to defeat.

Fredendall was brought home and promoted to an Army command. Peppery little Robinett, who has never received public credit for the stand that prevented a debacle, was wounded and later became commander of the Armored Force School at Fort Knox.

Field Marshal Alexander says when Gen. George S. Patton was rushed up to take command he produced "a transformation in the Second Corps."

He did it by doing what the others had wanted to do. He doubled the size of the corps and insisted that each division be permitted to fight as a unit under tactical American command.

What of General Anderson, the man behind the initial Allied strategy at Kasserine?

After the Tunisian war he went home, was knighted and promoted, and cited by President Roosevelt. In 1944 he was made commander in chief of the Eastern Command in Britain, a London post.

I can find no record in newspaper files, however, that he ever again led troops in the field under Dwight Eisenhower.

U. S. Protests Soviet Seizure Of Two Officers in Hungary

By The Associated Press

The United States charged yesterday that Russia flouted Hungary's independence by the "abduction" of two American Army officers.

Vigorous notes to both Moscow and Budapest denounced as unwarranted and arbitrary the arrest last month of Lieut. Cols. Bernard Thielen and Peter J. Kopcsak by Soviet troops on Hungarian soil.

The peace treaty which restored Hungary to the status of an independent nation last September permits Russia to retain troops in the country, but only to safeguard a "line of communication" with Red Army occupation forces in neighboring Austria.

It was these guards which on January 14 seized the two officers, both attaches of the American Embassy in Budapest, and released them the next day over the frontier in Vienna.

The United States complaint to Moscow said:

"This detention and abduction out of Hungary of American diplomatic personnel constitutes an arbitrary and unjustified exercise of police power in Hungary by Soviet 'line of communication' troops and unwarranted interference with diplomatic officials duly accredited to the Hungarian government, in derogation of Hungarian sovereignty.

"The United States Government protests this unwarranted and unjustified action on the part of the Soviet military authorities and requests that appropriate orders be issued to insure that Hungarian sovereignty be respected and that such incidents do not occur in the future."

These points were made:

1. Thielen and Kopcsak were on a routine mission in a car clearly identified by the letters "U. S." They were in full uniform and carried official Hungarian identity cards.

2. Over their protests they were detained twice by armed Soviet troops, at Gyor, and at Papa. Denied permission to phone the embassy and several times threatened with guns, they were taken from Papa by night across the frontier to Vienna.

3. At the border a Red army officer merely shouted "two Russian machines" and the Hungarian border guard lifted the road barrier immediately. One car actually was American.

4. The Hungarian Foreign Office promised Selden Chapin, U. S. Minister, to turn over in two or three days a report from the Russians. This has never been done. Instead the Soviet Minister sent a note to Chapin charging the officers refused to submit proper identification papers and entered a Soviet military area without permission. A Russian added his "hope" that "the offenders be punished."

Chapin, in a blunt note to Hungary dated January 19, told the Foreign Office he could "conceive of no adequate excuse for the exercise of police powers on Hungarian territory" by Red army troops.

Russia has never disclosed how many such troops there are in Hungary. An Associated Press correspondent who reported that their facilities indicated they numbered 25,000 or more was denounced both in Moscow and by the Hungarian government, which has been under Communist domination since last year.

English Miners Win Strike; Pit Stays Open

Waleswood, England, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Two hundred seventy miners today won their three-day stay-down strike for the right to keep working.

The miners downed their tools and set up housekeeping at the bottom of the Waleswood shaft Monday to protest the national coal board's decision to close the mine as uneconomic.

Russia Claims War Frame-up

ain and France concluded non-aggression treaties with Hitler while refusing to join Russia in taking concerted action against aggression, the statement said.

Three German documents were cited by Russia tonight in support of the charge against Britain and France:

1. A summary of a talk between Hitler and the Earl of Halifax, the lord president of the council in the British Cabinet at Obersalzburg on November 19, 1937.

2. A summary of a talk between Hitler, his Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, and the late Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Germany, in Berlin on March 3, 1938.

3. Report to the Berlin foreign office by Herbert von Dirksen, German Ambassador to Britain, on July 5, 1938.

The background of these talks is that Hitler seized Austria on March 12, 1938; the Munich conference giving Germany part of Czechoslovakia was held in September, 1938, and Hitler took over all Czechoslovakia March 15, 1939.

Britain and France, Russia charged, aimed solely at appeasing Hitler to protect themselves and turn him against an isolated Russia.

"As far back as 1937 it became perfectly clear that a big war was being hatched by Hitler with the direct connivance of Britain and France," Russia said.

"The documents of the German foreign ministry captured by the Soviet troops after Germany's defeat reveal the true effort of Britain's and France's policy of the time.

"These documents show that essentially the Anglo-French policy was aimed not at mustering the forces of the peace-loving states for a common struggle against aggression but at isolating the Soviet Union and directing the Hitlerite aggression toward the east against the Soviet Union, using Hitler as a tool for their ends."

At the Obersalzburg conference, it was asserted, Lord Halifax told Hitler the British government was "fully aware the Fuehrer had attained a great deal not only inside Germany itself but that having destroyed Communism in his country he had barred the road of the latter to western Europe." Lord Halifax, it was added, said therefore Germany was entitled to be regarded as "a bulwark of the west against Bolshevism."

Lord Halifax even proposed Anglo-French membership in the Rome-Berlin axis, Russia said, but Hitler insisted this was possible only if other countries respected Germany and removed the stigma of the Versailles Treaty. Halifax was said to have replied that Britons were realists and were convinced that "the errors of Versailles must be rectified."

Britain rebuked Russia's attempts to invoke collective security at the time of Hitler's seizure of Austria, the Soviet statement said.

It was asserted that as regards Czechoslovakia, Austria and Danzig, Halifax told Hitler that Britain:

"Is only interested that . . . changes should be effected by peaceful evolution so as to avoid methods which may cause further convulsions undesired either by the Fuehrer or by other countries."

Henderson continued the line of talk started by Halifax, the Soviet Information Bureau statement said, and intimated that his conversation with Hitler would be kept from such interested countries as France, Belgium, Portugal and Italy.

Henderson was quoted as saying his talk with Hitler was:

"Not a commercial deal but an attempt to establish a basis for genuine and cordial friendship with Germany beginning with an improvement of the situation and finishing with the creation of a new spirit of friendly understanding."

"Without objecting to Hitler's demand to 'unite Europe without Russia,' Henderson drew attention to the fact that Halifax, who at that time became foreign secretary, had already agreed to those territorial changes which Germany intended to make in Europe, and that 'the purpose of the British proposal was participation in such a reasonable settlement.'"

Halifax became foreign secretary in February, 1938. Later he was Ambassador in Washington.

Party Leaders Hit Soviet Composers

Powerful Central Committee Detects 'Bourgeois Smell' in Musical Trend

Moscow, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The all-powerful Central Committee of the Communist Party today accused Russia's big three composers and the Soviet music world in general of creating and encouraging "antidemocratic" works.

In a decree behind which lay the latent threat of sterner measures, the committee laid down a four-part program which all concerned must follow — composers, music critics, the Moscow Conservatory and the arts committee of the government.

Dmitri Shostakovich, Aram Khachaturian and Sergei Prokofiev, the "Big Three," were singled out for the main criticism, along with four lesser composers — Vissarion Y. Shebalin, Gavril Popov, Nikolai Miaskovsky and Vano Muradeli.

Opera Under Fire

It was understood the committee's blast was the result of the new opera, "Great Friendship," by Muradeli.

This work had its first—and only—rendition at a closed performance at the Bolshoi Theater here on November 7, with Premier Josef Stalin and other leaders present.

The opera was called historically and ideologically incorrect, with "inexpressive, poor, unharmonious, muddled" music.

M. P. Khrapchenko, dismissed last week as chairman of the arts committee, also was criticised.

The committee's program for the Soviet music world is:

1. "The development in Soviet music of realistic direction, and recognition of the traditions of the Russian musical school."

2. "The utilization of this heritage and its further development."

3. "The combination in music of a high content of artistic perfection and musical form."

4. Recognition of the "Truthfulness and reality of music, of its deep organic connection with the people and their music and songs; and of high professional art with simultaneous simplicity and accessibility of musical works."

The committee said those criticized had ignored warnings it issued in 1946 for the elimination of "bourgeois" influences and the creation of real Soviet art.

Of the "Big Three" the committee said their works "smell strongly of the spirit of the modern bourgeois music of Europe and America, which reflect the marasmus (emaciation or wasting away) of bourgeois culture, the complete denial of Musical art" and of going up a blind musical alley.

Critics were accused of failing to "smash harmful views and theories," of becoming "loud speakers for separate composers" or slavishly praising everything their favorites wrote.

Blame for all this was laid at the door of Khrapchenko's arts committee and the Union of Soviet Composers of which Khachaturian is chairman. The committee ordered "organizational changes" in these and other party and state organs dealing with music.

The Russian music world was accused of "formalistic distortions and antidemocratic tendencies alien to the Soviet people and their artistic tastes, denial of the main principles of classic music, propaganda of atonality, dissonance and disharmony which are alleged to be the expression of 'progress' and 'novelty' in the development of musical forms; renunciation of such most important foundations of musical creation as melody, a passion for muddled neuropathic combinations which transform music into a cacophonic and chaotic heaping of sounds . . .; renunciaiton of polyphonic music and singing which are based on the simultaneous combination and development of a number of independent melodic lines, and a passion for one-tone unisonal music and singing—often without words—which violates the many-voiced structure common to our people and which leads to the pauperization and downfall of music."

Aid Swap Plan Is Approved

cision Tuesday to set up a new ERP agency with an administrator independent of the State Department.

Wherry, the Republican whip, has been leader of the so-called "revisionist" group of 20 Republican Senators who have been holding private meetings to try to modify the ERP program.

"We accomplished a lot with that one," was his comment on the committee's administrative plan, indicating that his group took credit for what was done.

Secretary Marshall told his press conference that the committee's decision of Tuesday was acceptable to the State Department.

Meanwhile Nelson A. Rockefeller, Assistant Secretary of State, urged yesterday that American gifts to Europe be limited to "essentials of life" which the recipient governments would distribute free among their people. He expressed his views in a "footnote" dissenting from part of a report issued by the Committee for Economic Development, of which he is a member.

Rockefeller also wrote that the United States should keep title to any local currencies received from the sale of other ERP supplies. The granting of dollar loans, he said, should be confined to the World Bank and Monetary Fund, the Export-Import Bank and private banks.

The report of the CED, signed by outstanding business leaders, paralleled testimony given to the Senate committe on January 23 by its chairman, Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp. It argued that "a half-hearted program would be worse than useless," and in general indorsed the Administration's program as submitted to Congress. As to administering ERP, its suggestions came close to those approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday heard from George Weller, foreign correspondent of the Chicago Daily News, who said that "as an economic weapon the Marshall Plan is ill-aimed, useless and out-of-date."

Instead of spending billions for European recovery, he felt the United States should build up its military power in Germany, Trieste and the Far East, and should acquire permanent military bases abroad.

The House Committee also heard an indorsement of ERP from Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and a plea from William L. Batt, former vice chairman of the War Production Board, to encourage American private investment in Europe. Both had previously testified before the Senate committee.

U.S. Greek Unit Censors News

Salonika, Greece, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The United States Army group in Greece today imposed virtual press censorship on American and other news correspondents in the field despite the aid to Greece agreement which provides for full coverage of activities of Americans in this country.

The USAGG said in a memo that "all requests for information from news media will be referred to the PIO (Public Information Officer) at Athens.

The ruling makes it practically impossible for correspondents outside Athens to get information from American Army personnel.

The ruling was issued "by command of Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay," head of the American military mission.

In Athens, Greek newspapers print full but inaccurate accounts of all actions, which they get from Greek sources daily.

It was also reported the Greek air force killed about 50 guerillas in strafing attacks. I couldn't find any bodies.

French Cabinet Backs Move To Imprison Food Profiteers

Paris, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The cabinet gave unanimous approval today to a crackdown on profiteers charged with causing food prices to rise 70 per cent in two weeks.

Under the proposal, which will be submitted to the National Assembly tomorrow, dealers who increased prices illegally after January 15 would be imprisoned and their stores closed.

[The General Confederation of Labor (CGT today demanded 35 to 38 per cent wage rises, the Associated Press said. The CGT is made up of left-wing unions. It is dominated by Communists.

[The cabinet decided persons who turned in fewer than 14 of the invalidated 5000-franc notes will be paid an additional 15,000 francs ($50). They already have received 10,000 francs (about $33).

[Those who surrendered 14 or more of the bills (that is 70,000 francs or more3 may use the credit for taxes or government bonds.]

Fete for Dr. Henderson

Dr. E. B. Henderson, head of physical education for Divisions 10-13 of the public school system, will be tendered a testimonial dinner at the Club Bali today at 6 p. m., by the Committee for Racial Democracy in the Nation's Capital.

Amazing new way to relieve nausea of
MOTION SICKNESS
Most people suffer from "motion sickness" in one form or another. When the motion of a boat nauseates you, it's called seasickness. On a bus or in an auto, it's known as carsickness. In an airplane, it's airsickness. Once accepted as hopeless . . . there's wonderful, good news coming out of the medical world today.
IT'S CALLED TRIP-EZE
It's an amazing new preparation. Army and Navy doctors put these ingredients together during the war to combat air and seasickness. Now it is sold commercially. You chew this medicated gum as an aid in preventing and relieving this ancient malady. It proved effective as a preventative in 95% of the cases reported.
Chew Trip-eze before boarding the plane, bus, train or boat. Over thirty airlines, American and foreign, accept Trip-eze to aid in preventing and relieving airsickness.
Your druggist now has a new supply. Money back if Trip-eze doesn't help you.

THE WORLD CANNOT REMAIN HALF FREE HALF SLAVE

Even as Lincoln enunciated the doctrine that our nation could not remain "half free and half slave," so must we of these United States of America now dare to speak out and declare—and mean it when we say it—that "this world of ours cannot be half free and half slave." We must have the fortitude to say and to mean that "the freedom of men shall not perish from the earth." With Lincoln we must again "highly resolve that government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth."

It means among other things that we must speak out to those dictators and totalitarian systems which would enslave the earth and tear from men and women cherished liberties which have been won only through the giving of millions of lives and the untold shedding of blood through the centuries.

Yes, I realize that it means if we are to go forth in the spirit of Lincoln, we must do more than just speak out against injustice. It means that we must take positive steps as well. It means, for instance, that we must give of our strength and resources to help those nations of the world and their peoples who are striving so valiantly to keep alive the flame of liberty.

The task before us is no easy one. It will call for sacrifice. It won't always be the popular course to follow. But it will be the right course to follow.

Let us adopt this course of action—call it European Recovery Program or Marshall Plan or what we will—in the spirit of Lincoln's words, "With malice toward none and charity for all," determined at the same time to make right the master of might.

We have been told that our horizons have been reached and that our future is behind us. I do not subscribe to this philosophy of despair. I believe that this nation is only on the threshold of the greatness which destiny has in store for us as a people. We can reach these goals, however, only if we have the spirit and the will to do so. And the doing of this job means hard work.

It means sacrifice and the courage of conviction. It means that we must have a nation more united than ever. It means that equal opportunity and equal privilege must be made available to all our citizens, regardless of race, creed, color or place of birth. It means that our Constitution and our Bill of Rights must become living realities for each and every one of our citizens. It means that there must come into the hearts and souls of the people of America a rededication to the lofty principles and high standards, by which we have achieved greatness in the past.

British Stocks Fall After Cripps Talk

Whole List Continues Slump Begun Friday; U. S. Issues Also Decline

London, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—London's stock market slumped further today after Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps' warning that Britain must produce more or face economic ruin.

Continuing the steady fall which started last Friday, the whole list of stocks went down.

Even the stock of the nationalized transport industry—which had been steady on previous days—started downward but the government came in as a buyer to halt the trend.

American stocks also fell.

The fall today was measured in terms of 1 to 4 shillings (20 to 80 cents) on stocks worth 5 pounds ($20).

Prices on the Brussels, Belgium, stock exchange also fell sharply today.

Despite Sir Stafford's warning 21 Labor members of Parliament joined 2,750,000 members of the shipbuilders and engineers unions in a revolt against Prime Minister Attlee's new wage ceiling policy.

The rebellious MP's signed a motion in The Commons to reject the policy of "no more general wage increase" as "containing fallacious economic ideas."

The shipbuilding and engineering unions dealt the government wage policy the heaviest blow yet with a demand for immediate pay increases.

Leaders of the Trades Union Congress called on Attlee and his top ministers today to seek "clarification" of the government's policy.

With Attlee were Labor Minister George Isaacs, Cripps, and Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

British Admen Call Newsprint Cut a Disaster

London, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The British Advertising Association today told the Royal Commission investigating the press "the real danger to the press at this moment and to the welfare of industry and trade is the continued and increasing restriction upon advertising."

"This may be unavoidable at present," the B. A. A. added, "but we regard the recent cut in newsprint resulting in a return to newspapers of the smallest wartime size as a disaster which should be repaired at the earliest possible moment.

"Advertising is one of the purposes for which newspapers were invented and still exist. It is obvious that a large part of advertising is directly informative."

"Government advertising is now running at some three million pounds (about 12 million dollars) a year. This makes the government by far the largest advertiser in the country.

"The difficulty about nearly all charges of undue influence by advertisers, of suppression, falsification and so on is their vagueness. This is plainly true of the evidence of the National Union of Journalists . . ."

Soviet Offers Germans Plan To Cut Costs

Berlin, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky, commander of the Soviet occupation zone, said today Russia would reduce its occupation costs if the Germans carried out the reparations plan and increased production.

The Soviet army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau, said Sokolovsky also declared Russia would reexamine its policy of confiscating German property and foster peacetime production in its zone.

The Russian reparations policy would not be changed, he said.

He said Russia did not plan a parallel to the Anglo-American zones' system of increased economic power for Germans.

At today's meeting of the four-power Allied oCntrol Council, Sokolovsky warned the American and British members of the "serious consequences" of what he said was their attempt to split Germany. He failed to amplify what the consequences might be.

British Lieut. Gen. Sir Brian Robertson and United States Gen. Lucius D. Clay regarded the worning as a "routine attack" on Bizonia.

Sokolovsky prefaced a Soviet memorandum on disarmament and demilitarization with a charge that demilitarization is being "sabotaged" in western Germany.

Clay and Robertson said they wouldn't discuss the memorandum unless the preamble were withdrawn. Sokolovsky refused and the memorandum was withdrawn from the agenda.

[It was disclosed Russian officers halted two military trains, one American, the other British, at the Soviet zone border for a short time today. The Russians appeared to be tightening up travel restrictions through their zone, the Associated Press said.

[Not until a Russian liaison officer intervened on the summons from American personnel was the train allowed to proceed.]

Gandhi Ashes Are Borne To Ganges

By Margaret Parton

New Delhi, Feb. 11 (NYHT).—A small green train made its slow way across the plain of India today, carrying the ashes of Mohandas K. Gandhi to the holy Hindu city of Prayag.

Tomorrow the ashes will be immersed at the confluence of the Jumna and Ganges rivers while similar ceremonies will take place at scores of other holy points to which a portion will which a portion of the ashes had been distributed. Throughout India and Pakistan, the day will be one of mourning and prayer.

Today for the last time the people of New Delhi and those Indians who live along the railway, have had the final "darshan" of Gandhi. This word, constantly used now in India, is the Hindu expression of the concept that the individual who glimpses a relic of a saint receives mystical blessings.

Thousands Live Route

Thousands of all religious communities gathered at the New Delhi railway station and filed for two hours past the copper urn containing the ashes. Mothers held babies up for a precious glimpse which, they believed, would sanctify the lives of their children.

The urn, decorated with flower wreaths, was placed in an empty white carriage on a table covered with a handspun national flag.

Traveling with the train are 400 of Gandhi's relatives, disciples, political associates and a military guard. Devotees recite verses from Hindu scriptures and spin on hand looms. Travelers also were asked not to smoke, chew betel nut, and to carry only vegetarian food.

Immesion is Custom

Millions of Indians lined the tracks to bow as the train passed by. At stations huge crowds collected to view the urn. At Allahabad three million people gathered to attend the annual "mela" (fair) and to view the immersion ceremonies.

The Indian people have placed Gandhi in the pantheon of Hindu gods. In Allahabad, it is reported, residents of a refugee camp have erected a picture of Gandhi which is being worshipped by thousands of pilgrims who are offering coins, as is customary in other temples.

Reports from Cawnpore say funeral processions carrying dead to burning ghats are now invoking the name of Gandhi rather than the usual Hindu gods. In many homes throughout India Gandhi's photograph has been placed beside the picture of Krishna, an incarnation of Vishnu, second among Hindu gods.

black frock coat and a small black hat shaped like a fez, left no doubt that his reading applied to Gandhi. He termed him, "forgiving and most merciful."

Parsee is Speaker

A Parsee, J. Vesugar, tall, formally dressed man, leaning over the rostrum read from a tiny book. Zenda-Vesta, the holy words of his religion. He also seemed to refer to the dead man as one to whom people came for "understanding—great and everlasting."

Rabbi Henry Segal of the B'nai Israel Synagogue, wearing the traditional tiny black skull cap of his religion, read from the Torah (the Old Testament). It advised, as did Gandhi, to "seek peace and pursue it. The eyes of the Lord are toward the righteous."

A. S. Grewal, whose flowing pink turban was in sharp contrast to his short black beard, read from the Sikh scriptures, Guru Granth. As if speaking to the soul of Gandhi, he read, "In this eternal test God shall be thy only guide."

And the final religious leader was the Rev. Chesteen Smith, acting secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, who quoted the Bible: "He who would become great among you, let him become a servant." And then he added, "As did the one we honor today."

The formal speeches made beneath a carnation-rimmed portrait of the Indian leader followed the same vein. Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), first of three internationally minded Senators to speak, praised Gandhi as a "world citizen" and a great man who possessed qualities of selflessness and spiritual faith.

India Clashes With Colombia Over Kashmir in U. N. Council

Lake Success, Feb. 11 (AP).—India's delegation suddenly canceled plans to fly home tonight and declared it would answer "unjustified suspicions" directed at India in the Kishmir dispute.

India and Colombia clashed at a meeting of the United Nations Security Council today.

N. Gopalaswami Ayyanger, Indian Minister said he had been called back to New Delhi for consultations but would remain to answer objections at length.

Alphonso Lopez of Colombia, declared India summoned her delegation home when the Council did not immediately call upon Pakistan to stop the fighting in Kashmir state, as India wanted done.

79 Die in Fighting In Kashmir Zone

New Delhi, India, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—A government communique today reported scattered fighting between the Indian army and Moslems in the Uri, Pooch and Jammu areas of the Kashmir zone.

The communique said 19 Indians were killed and 34 injured and 60 Moslem bodies were counted.

U. N. Experts To Leave Soon For Palestine

Lake Success, Feb. 11 (AP).—Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, has informed Britain he will do "everything possible" to carry out partitioning of Palestine.

Lie announced he had authorized the immediate departure of an advance party of six United Nations experts for Palestine.

"If necessary, I am going," he said.

Lie will advance the next meeting of the U. N. "Little Assembly" from February 24 to February 19 because of the critical situation in Korea.

[Britain reported to the U. N. tonight that 700 additional Arabs have entered Palestine illegally and taken over virtual control of the Samaria region of the Holy Land, the United Press said.]

Arab Night Raiders Strike Jewish Center

Jerusalem, Feb. 11 (AP).—Black-robed Arab night raiders penetrated into Princess Mary ave. near Zion Square, a Jewish center in Jerusalem.

The maneuver was part of a war of nerves waged by both Jews and Arabs in the wake of yesterday's battle in the Jewish Montefiore district, in which six Arabs, two Jews and a British soldier were killed.

Two Jews were killed in Jerusalem and eight others wounded today. Snipers killed another Jew in Haifa and one died of wounds suffered in the Montefiore battle.

The unofficial death toll since the November 29 U. N. partition decision climbed to 1123.

A ship with 679 Jews arrived in Haifa today under British escort. The Jews will be taken to detention camps on Cyprus.

U. S. Weighing Increased Aid For Turkey

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—The American military mission at Ankara said today that Turkey may receive an additional $125,000,000 in aid.

Such a proposal is now being studied by U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall and the U. S. War Department, officials of the mission said.

Half of the amount, they said, would be used for Turkish air forces and the rest would be divided among the navy, ground forces, highways and arsenals.

Stove Fires House; Woman Is Trapped

Mrs. Louise Shaw Burned Critically; Scuffle Starts Blaze

A woman was burned critically yesterday when fire blamed on an oil stove upset during a scuffle burned out six second-floor rooms at 317 K st. nw.

The victim, Mrs. Louise Shaw, 25, was pulled out from under her burning bed by firemen who braved a flaming doorway. She was admitted to Emergency Hospital in critical condition from burns to the face, head and legs.

One of the firemen, Pvt. W. S. Radcliff, of Engine Co. No. 2, sustained burns of both hands in the rescue attempts. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Capt. J. R. Best of Engine Co. No. 3 said the fire started when occupants of the rooming quarters scuffled and kicked over an oil heater. The ignited oil blocked escape from the rear room to which Mrs. Shaw had fled. Three other occupants who fled to the street were questioned by police.

The fire, which occurred shortly after 1 p. m., burned above Crystal Grill, recently closed tavern at the corner of 4th and K sts. nw. Water damage to the taproom was extensive, firemen said.

Garage Explosion Causes $14,000 Damage

A fire within 100 feet of the home of the College Park (Md.) Fire Department and the University of Maryland's Fire Extension Service caused damage estimated at $14,000 yesterday.

The flames, which destroyed an automobile and damaged four others, resulted from a gasoline explosion in a garage just south of the building housing both the fire department and the university extension service, an agency which devotes part of its time to training Maryland's volunteer firemen.

J. A. Chaney, owner of hte garage, said the explosion occurred around 11 a. m. as a mechanic, Robert E. Vollinhoffer, 28, of Lanham, Md., was attempting to thaw out a frozen gasoline tank. Vollinhoffer, who suffered first degree burns of both hands, was treated at Leland Memorial Hospital.

The blast hurled flaming gasoline through the garage, and the flames spread so rapidly that even the nearby College Park firemen were unable to prevent the loss.

Forrestal Asks Reexamination Of Pensioners

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Forrestal proposed legislation yesterday to require periodic physical examinations for every member of the armed forces retired for disability since 1939.

Submitting a plan for sweeping revision of the present disability pension laws, the defense chief recommended that Congress:

1. Set disability retirement pay according to actual incapacity for duty—as is true now for veterans given Veterans Administration compensation rather than retirement.

(2) Determine the degree of disability—and new percentage of pay to be allowed—by reexamination of every one retired for physical reasons since 1939. Periodic exams would be required every two or five years thereafter, and anyone refusing to take such tests would lose all pay.

3. Revise the system of physical disability benefits to put all members of the armed services—officers and enlisted men, regulars and reservists—on the same basis. Physical retirement for enlisted men now is limited to long service men.

Tax Change Proposed

4. Make tax exemption of such retired pay—"if granted at all"—apply only to the degree of actual disability.

Forrestal set forth his proposal in a letter to Representative Elston (R., Ohio). Elston is chairman of a House Armed Services Subcommittee which has been studying officers' retirement pay.

D.C. Firm Buys English Mill, Plans Stepup

By S. Oliver Goodman

A million-dollar purchase of an English woolen mill by a Washington tailoring firm was announced here yesterday.

The 150-year-old Sunderland & Hainsworth, Ltd., mill in Yorkshire will become the property of Louis & Dan Brown, Ltd., of 812-14 14th st. nw., according to Dan Brown, who received word yesterday from his brother Louis, who is in Yorkshire completing final arrangements.

Dan Brown Louis Brown

Output of the mill, which last year produced $400,000 in fabrics while operating at half-capacity, will be consigned mainly to the United States. An immediate stepup in output is planned. The Brown firm, which operates 30 stores in England in addition to its Washington headquarters store, plans expansion to other major American cities. Stockrooms and offices will be opened in New York City.

Dan and his brother were born in Leeds, England, and came to Washington in 1938, after founding a tailoring business in 1920 in England. Their English representative, associated with the Browns in the mill purchase, is Irvin J. Buntman. Headquarters abroad are in Leeds, England, and the English name of the firm is Service Tailoring Co., Ltd.

Sunderland & Hainsworth, Ltd., operate 240 looms, and $750,000 changed hands to seal the deal. Final cost is expected to be "in the neighborhood of a million dollars," according to a letter from Louis Brown.

POWER SALES: Potomac Electric Power Co. started the year with a 14.35 per cent gain in sales during January over the same 1947 month. Kilowatt hours totaled 172,228,410, against 150,228,410. For the District of Columbia alone, power sales in January totaled 142,503,430, an increase of 12.91 per cent.

ODD LOTS: Irving J. Louis, member of the metal department of the New York office of Bache & Co., addressed Bache staff members here yesterday on platinum history and its value as a hedge against inflation . . . Headquarters of the Military District of Washington reports that 27.8 per cent of its civilian employes are participating in purchase of savings bonds under payroll deduction plan . . . British steel production reached a new monthly high of 1,215,750 tons in January . . . West Penn Power Co. of Pittsburgh asked SEC to permit sale of 12 million dollars of first mortgage bonds . . . Iron and steel market is entirely untouched by drastic decline in commodity prices, The Iron Age points out . . . W. B. Hibbs & Co. in current survey points out that Potomac Electric Power Co. at recent price of 12¾ has a dividend yield of 7.1 per cent.

EDUCATIONAL: Some prices are going up. The cost of education, for example. When students enter Columbia University next fall, with General Eisenhower as their new president, they will pay 33 per cent more tuition, and 17 per cent more rent for a dormitory room. The university says "There is no other way out."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 11 (AP).—Another chaotic trading session cut healthy chunks from grain values on the Board of Trade today. Final losses were not as extreme as yesterday. All oats and most wheat contracts managed to end above the day's lows.

Liquidation hit the market right at the outset, which was not unexpected since selling orders had been left unfilled in the preceding session. All corn deliveries were down the 8-cent daily limit. So were all soybeans. After about 30 minutes of trading, all wheat hit their 10-cent limit loss.

Oats managed to act better than other grains, although at one time May and July were off their 6-cent limit. Lard did not at any time have the extreme decline of grains.

Wheat closed 5¼ to 10 lower, May 2.37; corn was 7½ to 8 lower, May 2.05¼; oats were ⅛ to 4¼ lower, May 98½@98⅜; soybeans were 8 lower, March 3.41, and lard was 10 to 35 a hundred pounds lower, March 20.10.

Some of the support was based on the belief that deferred grain contracts either were not far from or already had reached the level at which the Government might be expected to support prices through Government loans this year.

Stocks Show Steady Tone In Fast Trade

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—The stock market steadied today, virtually ignoring commodity weakness.

Although narrow declines continued to dominate the share list, many leading issues regained their balance and closed with gains ranging to around a point.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was unchanged at 60.3, its lowest level since last May 27.

The session was the fastest of the new year, 1,490,000 shares changing hands. This was unusual pre-holiday volume. The exchange closes tomorrow in observance of Lincoln's Birthday.

Commission houses noted that many important Wall Street sectors have regarded the drop in commodities as a healthy anti-inflation sign, although conceding traders are cautious in view of uncertainty over extent of the current adjustment move. Bidding today was attributed largely to professionals seeking quick-turn profits on expectations of a technical comeback.

Holding gains at the close were Santa Fe at 86, Youngstown Sheet at 67¾, Great Northern preferred at 38, Gulf Oil at 59, Union Carbide at 95, Chrysler at 53½, Douglas Aircraft at 51, Schenley at 26¼, American Can 77½, Westinghouse Electric 25¾, Public Service of New Jersey 21, United States Gypsum 94½, United Air Lines 17⅝ and Dow Chemical 35.

Prominent losers included American Telephone at 149⅞, down ½ and active in the final hour; Anaconda Copper 31, Kennecott 42¾, General Motors 51⅞, American Tobacco B 63¼, International Paper 45 and Glenn Martin 15.

Leffingwell Elected Morgan Co. Chairman

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—R. C. Leffingwell was elected chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan & Co. today to succeed Thomas W. Lamont.

President George Whitney announced that at a special meeting of the board Arthur M. Anderson, vice president and a director, was elected chairman of the executive committee to replace Leffingwell.

Can Wall St. Firms Permit Kaiser-Frazer Stock Fiasco?

By J. A. Livingston

WHEN REPRESENTATIVES of the law firm of Willkie, Owen, Farr, Gallagher & Walton met Monday morning in Cleveland with representatives of the investment banking firms of Otis & Co., First California Co., and Allen & Co., they were ready for a formality.

They'd say: "Well, gentlemen, here are your 900,000 shares of Kaiser-Frazer Corp. stock," and they'd hand over a batch of stock certificates.

Livingston

Thereupon, the bankers would say, "Here, gentlemen, is your check for $10,260,625." And the deal would be closed. Kaiser-Frazer could proceed with its expansion plans, the underwriters could proceed with the physical distribution of stock certificates to investment dealers and investors. Yet, instead of a mere formality, there was a palaver, questioning: Were the papers in order?

The next day, Otis & Co. announced that the deal was off, that dealers who had paid money for their stock would get their money back.

The underwriters had this legal "out." The contract said that the company must certify that no lawsuits are pending or threatened which "substantially" affect the business. And just about the time the lawyers and syndicate managers were powwowing in Cleveland, a suit was filed in Detroit, 250 miles away as a man drives. Plaintiff was James F. Masterson, a lawyer of Philadelphia and a Kaiser-Frazer stockholder. Masterson might have indicated to Otis what he was going to do. He had acted in their behalf in Philadelphia when they sought to buy the Pullman Co.'s sleeping-car business.

THE WITHDRAWAL was unique, unprecedented. Otis & Co., First California Co., and Allen & Co. only a week before had actually offered the Kaiser-Frazer stock to the public. They published advertisements. They sent out wires to dealers, who in turn contacted investors. Here was evidence of a firm commitment.

Not only that, but at a meeting Monday, February 2, in the Kaiser offices in New York, Kaiser-Frazer undertook to stabilize the stock at 13½ until the underwriters could take over and market the stock on Wednesday. As a result, Kaiser-Frazer bought 186,200 shares of its stock on Tuesday, laid out 2,500,000, and throughout the day was in consultation with Otis & Co. That evening, because of the unprecedented volume of selling and the weakness of the market, the underwriters sought and got a change in the understanding. Their commitment was cut down from 1,500,000 shares to 900,000.

The deal leaves a bad taste in everybody's mouth. It makes the underwriters look bad. It makes Kaiser-Frazer officials look bad. And it doesn't make investment bankers in general look good. Presumably, underwriters will have a harder time winning the confidence of (a) investors and (b) issuers of securities. As a general face-saver, leading Wall Street firms might well consider taking over the deal. Not only would that tend to show up Otis & Co., which has never been a favorite with the Wall Street investment banking crowd, but also it would bring back to New York a nice bit of business. Kaiser-Frazer is no longer a rank speculation. It's producing 6.6 per cent of the Nation's automobiles, is earning at the rate of 50 million dollars a year.

THE UPSHOT—aside from investigations and lawsuits—may be a change in underwriting procedures. Nowadays, a syndicate usually takes five to eight days between the offering of the stock and the closing. This allows investment dealers 3 to 4 days to sell the stock, collect their money from investors, and then deposit it to the account of the syndicate. Such a procedure was practicable so long as deals went through without a hitch. But now an underwriter has withdrawn after a formal offering. That implies that the obverse can happen, too. A corporation could refuse to go through with a deal.

Suppose, for example, that a stock is offered in a boiling bull market instead of a weak one. Suppose the offering price is 13 and it rises to 18 or 20. And then suppose a stockholder brings suit to enjoin the sale on the ground that the officers of the company had sold the stock too cheaply—at 11½—to the underwriters. What then? Would the company try to argue that a material change had taken place in conditions, that therefore it won't deliver its stock? Obviously here is a loophole against which both underwriters and issuers will have to protect themselves in the future.

Kaiser-Frazer Calls for Probe Of Stock Deal

By The Associated Press

The Securities and Exchange Commission anounced yesterday it is probing the recent stock offering by Kaiser-Frazer Corp. to determine "whether there is any basis for a formal investigation."

Meanwhile in New York Kaiser-Frazer Corp. called for "immediate investigations and full public hearings by appropriate authorities" of the circumstances surrounding recent sale by the company of 900,000 shares of common stock.

A statement issued by Henry J. Kaiser, chairman, and Joseph W. Frazer, president said:

"We deplore the action of the managers of the underwriting syndicate in purporting to terminate their contract to purchase and market 900,000 shares of Kaiser-Frazer common stock.

"We are advised by our counsel, . . . that in their opinion the managers of the underwriters, in purporting to cancel their contract, acted without justification.

"We won't take this lying down."

New York Cotton

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Cotton futures dropped more than $7 a bale in early dealings today, but recovered sharply at the close on persistent trade buying and short covering. Final prices were $1.65 a bale lower to 50 cents higher.

Heavy general liquidation in initial dealings in part represented a carryover of Tuesday's selling. Considerable trade buying for mills and tire manufacturers developed on the decline and when offerings lightened, prices moved up easily. Short covering aided the advance, and while there was a temporarily sharp dip in the forenoon, prices again moved upward in the final hour of trading.

Does your stenographer's WASTE basket look like this?

Maybe not! Yet it may pay you to look. Poorly spaced or smudged letters send too many sheets into the basket. This costs money and stenographic time.

Webster's Micrometric carbon paper helps to eliminate waste. A numbered scale on each sheet makes accurate spacing possible. You can remove the carbon paper with the scale, and avoid smudging your fingers or copies.

Use Micrometric! It costs no more than other quality sheets.

3 Fined $900 In Alexandria Numbers Case

Three men were fined $300 each yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court for operating numbers games.

They are Sidney Rubin, 21, of 4519 9th st. nw.; Abraham Liss, 30, of 411 Marietta pl. nw., and William B. Reid, 40, of 228 W. Glebe rd., Alexandria.

Police who arrested Rubin and Liss, Sunday, said the two were going from house to house peddling numbers slips and selling religious pictures without a license.

The two men pleaded not guilty, claiming they had sold neither pictures nor slips but were trying to learn if there was a market for the pictures in Alexandria. They said the slips they had were "dream numbers" or "lucky numbers"—tips on which numbers to play, rather than the actual placing of a bet.

Reid, arrested January 27, admitted accepting numbers and horse race bets in an office in his attic at the W. Gleherd address. His brother, Warren, was fined $300 for a similar offense last week.

The court confiscated $700, four telephones and an adding machine found in Reid's attic and $63.95 found in the possession of Rubin and Liss.

Dr. Curtiss to Speak On Radioactivity

Dr. L. F. Curtiss, chief of the radioactivity section of the Bureau of Standards, will discuss "Crystal Counters" in the chemistry building auditorium, Howard University, tonight at 8.

His talk will be the second in a series on applications of radioactive and stable isotopes, sponsored by the physics department of the university's graduate school.

Report on Referendum

Arlington's joint legislative committee, which is asking for a county-wide referendum on nonpartisan primaries, will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Buckingham Community Center, 313 N. Glebe rd. Chairman T. Oscar Smith will give a report on his recent trip to Richmond to urge the referendum bill.

Fight Brewing on School License Proposal

A bitter fight is developing between the Montgomery County government and private school circles over a proposal to impose a license fee on nonprofit schools.

Recently advertised by the county commissioners for a public hearing February 24 was a proposed ordinance requiring every private school in the county to pay a $25 license fee plus $1 for each paying pupil.

The county's more than 50 private schools, most of which claim to be nonprofit institutions, have traditionally operated without licensing or regulation by the county government.

In the new ordinance, designed to "put teeth" into an earlier "ineffective" ordinance, there are provisions providing for licensing, regulation and inspection of all private schools.

Several school leaders interviewed yesterday, said they are "strongly opposed" to the license fee and declared "we intend to fight it."

Said one indignant headmaster: "The county should give us a helping hand instead of adding to our burdens. After all, we are performing a public service and helping prepare citizens as well as the public schools."

Hardest hit by the new licensing provision would be three Seventh Day Adventist schools in Takoma Park. Dean Floyd O. Rittenhouse, of Washington Missionary College, estimated the new law would require the three schools to pay approximately $1000 annually.

"If the Commissioners are aiming at control of fly-by-night schools, they should set a flat fee so the older, well-established schools with the largest enrollments would not be hit the hardest," he declared.

Another school official, who said he had strong feelings in the matter, was the Rev. William Francis Maloney, headmaster of Georgetown Preparatory School, which has 240 pupils.

"I am definitely opposed to the whole idea of forcing private schools to pay a license fee," he said, pointing out the school had been operating without county interference since 1919.

Other school heads interviewed said they were against the proposed ordinance and had "turned the whole thing over to our lawyers."

One pointed out there is already a State ordinance requiring inspection by the State and he asked, "What's wrong with that one?"

Still another complained the ordinance "would destroy our sovereignty" but he conceded that on the other hand, the public is entitled to protection from bad schools."

Primary need for the measure's enactment, County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr said, is in the provisions it contains on fire, health and safety standards.

The $25 license fee was included to cover cost of inspection, according to F. Barnard Welsh, counsel to the county commissioners, who drafted the ordinance. He added that the additional provisions requiring $1 for each paying pupil was included only for purposes of discussion and is subject to revision.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way:

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Lincoln

The prose of Lincoln glows from year to year with the luster of almost apostolic inspiration. No man ever used words more greatly. Yet, healing as are his simple but cadenced phrases, these are not what make the dead Lincoln a living presence. Lincoln dwells in our hearts and minds today because of what he was and did. Let us think today of Lincoln as a familiar and as a teacher. Jane Addams used to say that whenever she was in doubt or distress over a problem in her own life and work, she used to go and stand for a while in front of the Saint-Gaudens Lincoln in Chicago. We have no Saint-Gaudens statue in Washington. But one of the Capital's glories is the Lincoln Memorial, and to use it as Jane Addams used the Chicago statue would be to find release and resolution. For out of that shrine a strength and a guidance seem to flow as from some eternal but known spring. One with us all in his perplexities, Lincoln was also a guide on how to solve them.

For him, in his lofty role, the bell of decision was always tolling. He never refused to listen, though he arrived at a clearcut conclusion with almost tortured slowness. The reason lay in what Lord Halifax calls his "deep gentleness of soul," which did not permit ready-made opinions and hot convictions. Till he found the truth he groped his way, with only his sense of recognition of it as the lamp to his feet. So he resolved his own unsureness in the fires of searching meditation. So he preferred to compromise when no fundamental principle was at stake.

Turning On The Light

No. IV

Congressional inquiries should be dedicated to enlightenment and not to persecution.

Our conclusion in the last editorial of this series was that the correction of abuses in the conduct of congressional investigations will have to come from Congress itself. Being one of the three coordinate branches in our system of government, Congress cannot be put into a strait jacket by either the courts or the President. Each house makes its own rules, sets its own standards of conduct and for the most part is answerable only to the people. The most effective way to curb abuses of the investigatory power, therefore, is to induce Congress to put its own house in order.

The first step, in our opinion, is to confine investigations to regular standing committees. In the past the investigating power has been used in a sporadic and sometimes reckless manner. Some Senators and Representatives have made a practice of demanding a congressional investigation every time they have seen an opportunity to discredit a political or personal foe. It has not been uncommon for a legislator to air his charges on the floor, to induce his colleagues to create a special investigating committee, to have himself appointed chairman of it and then set out to collect evidence to substantiate the charges he has already made. Such an inquiry is biased from the very beginning. It tends to discredit the legislators who make it, the investigative process and even Congress itself.

This type of inquiry can be avoided in very large measure by turning over investigations to the regular standing committees, as contemplated by the La Follette-Monroney Act, which reorganized the congressional committee structure. Fortunately, special committees seem to be disappearing on Capitol Hill. The Senate has only one of any national significance, its Small Business Committee. Its Committee to Investigate National Defense has been appropriately merged into the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. The House has only a Small Business Committee, a committee investigating the need for newsprint and paper and the Select Committee on Foreign Aid. Of course, the Un-American Activities Committee continues to function as a select committee, although it has been accorded recognition as a standing committee.

Under the Reorganization Act, every standing committee of the Senate has power to investigate "any matter within its jurisdiction" at any time. The investigative process is not to be a sporadic chase for sensational data, but a more persistent effort to bring to light information that will be useful to the committee in studying legislation or performing other duties. There is the added advantage that the investigations will be made by men familiar with the field and more important is the discipline that can be applied by the standing committees when investigators go off on a tangent, descend to persecution tactics, or indulge in mere whitewashing operations. Select investigating committees have often acted as if they had no obligation to Congress as a whole or to any other group. Investigators who are subject to check by the standing committees of which they are a part will at least be under increased pressure to function as a part of a responsible legislative team.

Accent On Europe

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has determined upon the domestic organization it will recommend for ERP. Now, presumably, attention will be turned to a statement of ERP purposes. The guide here is the initial Marshall speech: the revival of a working economy for Europe. The Secretary spoke of Europe throughout, not of Britain, France, Italy and so on. He had a two-fold reason. It had dawned on the Secretary's advisers, notably Mr. Clayton, that the war had shattered the economic interdependence of the whole continent, and that the repair of that interdependence was the primary task of reconstruction. The other reason was that in these circumstances aid to individual nations would simply go down a rathole. It was the Secretary's object to see that the American taxpayer got "a cure and not a palliative" for his outlay.

The Secretary, however, was not interested merely in repairing an old clock, a clock dating from the stagecoach days; he and many others saw a chance, a God-given chance, of making it over, so that it would serve the twentieth century. In other words, his concept was to help the old continent to streamline its organization; politically and economically. The spur is the new defenselessness of Europe. As Secretary Marshall said on his return from London, the free societies of the West must show that they have enough vigor to establish in fact an equilibrium with the East. The answer from the West to the Marshall initiative was immediate and heartening. When the 16 nations met in Paris, they set up a continuing body, which, by acting as a sort of Peace Production Board in alloting Marshall Plan aid where it will do the whole continent most good, could evolve into the nucleus of economic federation. Now a political Europa, sparked by Mr. Bevin's call, is under discussion in Brussels.

The task of uniting Europe is so immense that leaders without vision shrink from it. They are preoccupied with troubles at home. They are obsessed with their countries' compartmented security. It is related, for instance, that in British-French talks on economic federation, the British turned down a suggestion that the French should make all the watches for the two countries, because the British needed a precision instrument industry for security's sake, and a similar comment came from the French side to a British suggestion that Britain could make tractors for both! Yet the idea of exorcising the curse of sovereignty in a united Europe is keeping the statesmen of Europe in conference. The reason is that it has a force in the minds of men which cannot be denied and which insists on action.

What Europe needs from the United States in this respect is as much encouragement as financial aid. Its fears can be assuaged by our courage. And our interest dictates that we should give it. The national security requires the restoration of equilibrium in Europe as the sine qua non of accommodation with Russia. This is the only way of filling a vacuum-in-the-making and removing the temptation to fill to which the aggressive Soviet has succumbed. The Truman Doctrine, which declared our inflexible purpose to resist aggression, needs to be specifically applied to the aborning Europa. It should serve as a spur to consolidating but nervous Europeans. Nor is our interest merely transatlantic. There is the fact that, as John Foster Dulles has pointed out, we ourselves are a western European government. The natural economic heart of Europe, viz., the Ruhr, is under our control, and to that extent we shall be partners in the continental enterprise.

Senator Vandenberg is well aware of the influence that the United States can bring to bear upon the tortured struggle of 270 million people to live and work in unity. At San Francisco he swept aside the timorousness of little minds and made the Charter of the United Nations the expression of the heart's desire of mankind. He and his colleagues now have the opportunity of writing into the ERP the expression of a goal in Europe the achievement of which would redress the balance of the Old World to the inestimable benefit of all. Let them insist that our aid to Europe be channeled through a continental organization and express a hope that the organization will lead to the convocation of a European constituent assembly. Such a hope from America would not be new. It came from George Washington.

Memory Of Borah

The famous story of Senator Borah pitting his information against that of the State Department is the subject of a current installment of Mr. Hull's memoirs. Mr. Hull adds little to the story except his own reaction. The occasion was provided by a meeting at the White House on July 18, 1939, called for the purpose of persuading the Senate leaders to eliminate the arms embargo from the Neutrality Act. Secretary Hull, on being asked about the danger of war, gave the cables coming to the State Department as his authority for the statement that the international situation was "extremely dangerous," with war in the offing. Senator Borah, who was opposed to the elimination of the arms embargo, dissented. He said his judgment was based upon "more reliable" information than that received at the State Department. Whence it came has from the subject of some speculation. Mr. Hull says it originated with "a minor press service in London," which has been identified by others as a well-circulated letter edited by Mr. Claud Cockburn, an Englishman well to the Left in his political sympathies.

Doubtless Senator Borah, who had stubbornness as well as character, did not want to believe the plain signs of the turbulent times. It is a defect from which all of us, to greater or lesser extent, suffer. In his case, of course, the rocklike Senator was unwilling to see, let alone believe, and resisted every invitation to visit friends with whom he maintained a correspondence, such as the late Earl of Derby and the late J. L. Garvin. Happily such an indisposition to travel (and so risk a change of opinion) is conspicuous today only by its absence. It is a healthy development, for it has been said with some truth that a man who never leaves his country is full of prejudices. Last year fully half the present Congress went abroad. The extent to which the legislators profited by their trip differed, of course, according to the individual. But several prejudices melted completely as a result of firsthand observation, the most noteworthy being the feeling against the Voice of America. Upon some traveling members of Congress the experience was lost, as it might well have been upon Senator Borah, and, though they saw, they failed to perceive. There are those who eliminate and ignore everything that is not a part of our prejudices. Mr. Hull saw such a one in Mr. Borah, and to Mr. Hull the sight, seen against his responsibilities, brought him "on the verge of an explosion."

Criticizing Congress

Speaker of the House Joseph W. Martin, jr., regaled a dinner session of the Conference of American Small Business Organizations meeting in Washington the other evening with a spicy tale of an "insidious campaign" to undermine the prestige of Congress in the minds of the people. This campaign, he said, is spearheaded by Communists but abetted by "leftish radio commentators and writers." "It has become too common a practice," he said, "to belittle the legislative branch of our Government. We see flagrant instances of it in the press and movies." Well, we might reasonably retort to this, of course, that it has become too common a practice to belittle the press and movies, and that instances of it are peculiarly flagrant in Congress. We attribute this, however, to politics, to differences of opinion, sometimes to sheer silliness, but not to any Communist-inspired or otherwise insidious campaign.

The Speaker of the House must know that so far at least as the press is concerned critical scrutiny of the Government is one of the prime functions of the freedom guaranteed to it by the Constitution. And he can scarcely be so complacent as to believe that the Eightieth Congress has not afforded an abundance of ground for honest criticism. For example, Mr. Martin himself, in the course of his address to the small businessmen, declared in a veritable frenzy of fearlessness that the attacks of the Communists "will not for a moment swerve the Senate and House of Representatives from what they consider to be their patriotic duty. Your legislators will preserve until we have on the statute books adequate laws to deal effectively with traitors." The Constitution of the United States is altogether explicit on the subject of treason. "No other acts than those defined in the Constitution," the Supreme Court has said, "can be declared to constitute the offense. Congress can neither extend, nor restrict, nor define the crime. Its power over the subject is limited to prescribing the punishment." We are glad, all the same, that the Commies (and the motion pictures) can't intimidate Joe Martin.

Kitty Hawk

It was late in the day when the Smithsonian Institution finally recognized Wilbur and Orville Wright as the inventors of the airplane. Indeed, not until 1942, some 39 years after the Kitty Hawk flight, did the institution come around sufficiently to mollify Orville Wright. Previously the Smithsonian had stoutly maintained that Samuel P. Langley was the inventor of the first successful heavier-than-air machine with his "aerodrome." Part of this attitude, no doubt, was due to the difficulty of attributing precise responsibility for a scientific attainment when there were many close contenders. Also, the Smithsonian's attitude may be explained in part by the fact that Langley was the institution's secretary. In any event, Orville Wright, normally a modest and reticent man, felt the slight keenly. He arranged for the original Kitty Hawk plane to be sent to the Kensington Museum in London in 1928, and in his will, drawn up in 1937, he directed that the plane remain there unless he subsequently requested otherwise.

Now a new letter has been uncovered in which Wright, in 1943, wrote the London museum asking that the Kitty Hawk be returned to this country after the war. This followed publication of a pamphlet by the Smithsonian in 1942 recanting its previous stand and giving the Wright brothers full credit for their discovery—something world acclaim had already done. A companion letter from the Kensington Museum acknowledged Orville Wright's wishes. In view of this interchange, there can be no reason to put off the return of the Kitty Hawk to the United States. It is altogether fortunate that the silly dispute, which never should have been permitted to assume such proportions in the first place, was settled in time for this great historical memento to be restored to the country of its origin. The Kitty Hawk is a part of the American heritage. It belongs in the Smithsonian—or better yet, in the sister National Air Museum for which Congress has been requested to appropriate funds.

"Europe-First"

Your "Europe-First" editorial of February 6 seems to me to ignore the consideration that this is indeed one world and must be dealt with as a unit.

Militarily, it is probably true that Europe is our first line of defense, because the nerve center of the huge Soviet land mass can only be reached from European bases. But is it not also true that a war could be won in one sector and lost in another? Three years ago Russia held only an insignificant toehold in the Far East, without transportation or industrial facilities sufficient to constitute a threat. Now the Soviet has a firm base in Outer Mongolia and another in north Korea. It has a friendly regime in Sinkiang, and satellite control of Manchuria. The nose of the Great Bear is pointed straight toward the heart of China, with the American position in south Korea outflanked.

Politically, the advance of communism in Asia is not being seriously challenged by the Western democracies. In China the United States has even lent its prestige to an effort to force the national government to make major concessions to the Communist rebel forces. In south Korea the growth of communism has proceeded steadily during 30 months of American control. In Japan the threat of communism has been utilized by the prewar reactionary forces as both an excuse and an opportunity for rebuilding the same influences that led Japan on its march of conquest from Korea, in 1905, to Pearl Harbor.

Even more telling are the economic arguments for inclusion of Asia in the recovery program. Manchuria and north Korea, where Soviet influence has thus far gone unchecked, are among the richest areas of the world in industrial resources. Oil, rubber, tin, jute and sugar are among the major world shortages of essential products, for all of which the Far East is an important source of supply. The dependence of the very security of the United States upon the recovery of Asia is indicated in the fact that of the 16 strategic materials which we must import for effective national defense, nine come primarily from areas of the Far East.

From the humanitarian point of view, reports from China give the staggering figure of 30 million human beings unrooted from their homes by Communist advances. To these figures must be added the two million who have fled from north Korea to escape the totalitarian state established there.

An effective security program must include military and economic assistance to the peoples courageously resisting communism in the Far East, particularly in China and Korea, where they are on the immediate firing line.

Sports Competition

Your February 8 editorial, "To Make Sport Withal," is a timely reiteration of the fact that competition, despite its values, does not make for amity. Quite the contrary, it makes for animosity.

The principal value of competition is that it causes each competitor to extend himself. That makes for progress. But at the same time human nature being as imperfect as it is, it causes many competitors to concentrate on winning with more or less disregard for the means of winning. That necessitates rules designed to prevent winning unfairly, rules enforced by a supposedly neutral agency. Obviously, if a neutral agency is needed to prevent unfairness, the competition itself does not promote amity.

Your editorial deals with the current Olympic games. It almost, but not quite, says that the spirit of the Olympic games in ancient Greece, "moderated" by "religious scruple," was not so bad. Is that true? Perhaps the ancient games did give the many little Greek states a sense of their common Greekness as distinguished from the surrounding barbarian world—including the partially Greek Macedonia that later took over; but did these games mitigate or increase animosity between the 100 per cent Greek states, such as Attica and Sparta, an animosity that culminated in the ruin of Greece?

Competition has great values, but development of amity is not among them. For the truth of this it is not necessary to go to St. Moritz or to ancient Greece. All that is necessary, to quote from the motto of one of the United States, is to "look around you." J. I.

Display of Prejudice

I do not know the name of the Southern committee member who made this crack I'm going to refer to. I don't want to know it.

When he was disputed (in his absence) by one of the witnesses before a congressional committee in some matter impinging on that old Dixie sore spot—the color question—one member said he had no desire to make any answer. He gave as his reason that he did "not want to enter into any argument with a Negro."

Any man who, in times when emotions are on edge, will deliberately go out of his way to take an intentional offensive jab at anybody because of color or anything else outside of sheer merit or the lack of it is a trouble hunter pure and simple. Prejudice is a lazy person's substitute for intelligent and equitable thinking.

New Concert Hall

I notice in your issue of February 5 the complaint of a danseuse that to perform on the stage of Constitution Hall is a torment to her. What a torment it is to the audience, too! It is like attending a ballet performance in a vast barn, arranged for the occasion into a make-believe theater. Lighting, both on stage and in the auditorium, is execrable; vision is difficult; acoustics, owing to the uncarpeted floors, incredible.

Nor is Constitution Hall the ideal concert hall, although manifestly it is better suited to orchestral than any kind of dramatic spectacle. The conspicuousness of the boxes disturbs the concertgoer's pleasure because quite often the notables in the boxes divert attention from the stage. All in all, Constitution Hall, which was built as a sort of convention hall, is the worst excuse for a music hall or theater that this country can offer.

That question has been asked for decades, and nothing has been done. The obvious finger points to Congress. If Congress can provide funds for feeding needy peoples and building highways, then it can consitutionally provide funds to build in this magnificent city a music hall worthy of a world capital and other places where the arts of the dance and the theater can be performed under proper conditions. ### Symphony Ultimatum

Mr. Calmon Sperling's letter of February 3 expresses the sentiments of many citizens in regard to the National Symphony Orchestra. The management of the orchestra should more fully realize what a "lodestone" Dr. Kindler is to them. Instead of crying over lack of funds at social teas, let these fund raisers work for the resignation of the incumbent orchestra director and then funds will be more readily obtained. There are hundreds of supporters who could be gained under a new regime. IRA PARKER.

Judge Tamm

In The Washington Post of February 6, I noted the letter signed "Citizen" on Judge Tamm. The question is raised as to how Mr. Tamm can be qualified to be a judge of the United States when the record does not show that he ever tried a case.

The issue is whether Mr. Tamm would make a good judge. The fact that he has not spent the last 18 years chasing ambulances and pleading cases, but rather in the service of his country, certainly cannot disqualify him. On the other hand, a look at his record will show him to be eminently qualified by experience.

As the official in charge under Mr. Hoover of all investigative activities of the FBI since about 1935, he certainly must have participated in and guided the preparation for trial of literally thousands of cases of the magnitude which doesn't come to the ordinary attorney. As to his ability to adjudicate, he certainly must have in those years been put to the task of adjusting the interests of the FBI and the Department of Justice with other agencies of the Government as well as with the interests of the citizenry which he has so well served.

In his official position and under his guidance we came through a horrible war without any sabotage and with foreign espionage effectively countered. Plans were laid for the efficient protection of the security of our Nation and carried out under him. His dealing with high officials of the military and civilian sides of the Government certainly must have added to his stature and ability to handle litigants.

Though Mr. Tamm may not have spent any lengthy time before the bar of the court, he has spent years before the bar of congressional and public opinion as one of the most outstanding civil servants on the present scene. According to the publicity, the Supreme Court of the land and the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota have both seen fit to admit him to practice before them.

The administration of the task which has been his for the past years may not be rivaled in difficulty, complexity, or magnitude by the District Court judgeship—and he certainly has handled well his task in the past years.

Whether Mr. Tamm is qualified does not depend upon the number of cases that he may have tried in a court, but upon his intelligence, ability and integrity. He cannot have held and discharged so eminently the position which he has if he is lacking in any degree in any of these.

ANOTHER CITIZEN.
Landover, Md.

Edward A. Tamm's appointment was rushed through without so much as giving the bar and the public in general a chance to urge the appointment of a judge with the proper training, experience, and judicial reputation in the District of Columbia, where he is supposed to serve. Mr. Tamm is not even a member of the District Bar, let alone the Bar Association, and therefore it is obvious he has had no experience in local practice and procedure.

With all due respect to him, he can't measure up to the standards required of a judge, and the public should not be forced to provide the training grounds for him—especially when there are so many able members of our own bench and bar who could do the job ably and are deserving of the appointment.

Stepping Up Marriage

By Malvina Lindsay

Baby Crop Support

AS THE marriage and baby booms begin to subside, talk of how this country can regain its pioneer practice of early marriage increases.

No one can tell yet whether the birth rate drop in recent months or the decline in marriages that set in last year are temporary fluctuations or a resumption of the long-time general trend toward later marriages and smaller families.

However, both those who want to increase the population and those who want to improve it are urging that conditions be created whereby boys and girls do not have to wait years before it is financially "safe" to marry. These advocates of youthful marriage have found scientific backing for their cause in Dr. Alfred E. Kinsey's recently published study, Sexual Behavior in the Human Male, which reports among its findings that sexual urge and ability reach their height in the late teens.

Better morals as well as more babies are promised as a result of early marriage by its exponents. They say it would help prevent sexual license, venereal disease, mental illness, juvenile delinquency. It is also held up as the free enterprise method of increasing population, as it naturally results in more children. If the birth rate here should drop to any extent, there probably would be a clamor to join the movement among nations to boost births by governmental schemes, as baby bonuses, big family marathons, subsidies for parents.

THE UNITED STATES is still known as an early marrying country despite decrease in teen-age wedlock. Twelve per cent of American girls between 15 and 19 are married. In most other Western countries this percentage ranges from 1 to 6.

Rising living standards have largely caused the age of bridal couples to creep up. Professional men have delayed marriage to finish their education. Upper income couples have waited to save money, get ahead, be able to have living comforts, or as the saying goes, begin where their parents left off.

The same thing happened in England after the industrial revolution made life more comfortable, people softer. By the 1890s the average marriage there had risen to 24½ years—just within the once fatal old maid deadline of 25. Significantly, this age, which once spelled hopeless spinsterhood in this country as well, is now regarded as a time of girlish bloom and frequently of juvenile behavior.

Caution in marriage got a big setback when war came along. The median age of marriage dropped after 1940, the Census Bureau reports. Now many young parents have had a baby or two, and because of living costs and housing scarcity, are curtailing their families. And single young people are more inclined to think twice before marrying on an E bond and living with in-laws.

FOR YOUNG marriage, despite its advantages, has some difficulties, the chief being economic. And money is listed in opinion polls as the chief cause of marital discord. Divorce statistics show that a marriage in which the bride or bridegroom is under 19 is 10 times as likely to fail as one in which the candidates are in their 20s.

Yet how to encourage young people to marry even in their early or middle 20s—the best time, according to experts—is a problem in a country where ideals of comfort are high, education prolonged. Some would meet this by going back to the dowry system, letting parents help through savings or insurance programs. Others think colleges should provide better opportunities for married students, especially in housing. Still others would have society create a general climate favorable to early marriage. One means of doing this would be to have education move faster, to stop the growing tendency toward prolonged adolescence, and to get boys and girls prepared earlier for standing on their own feet.

One way the problem seems to be working itself out is by the wife's continuing to work before and between babies. Industry is giving aid to this through maternity leaves and benefits. It may in time become the inevitable, though difficult, substitute for the pioneer home, in which the wife was partner in production and two could truly live more cheaply than one.

"Palestine Contrasts"

A letter signed by "Justice" in The Washington Post of February 5 compares the Zionist program with that of Hitler. He sees a wave of anti-Semitism in America if America supports the United Nations decision. He wants the Jews to give up their traditional home because of threats of supposed retaliation here and of despotic Arab chiefs whose power depends on the poverty and ignorance of their subjects.

Did Hitler establish hospitals for his subject people? The Jews saved thousands of Arab lives. Did Hitler pay the subject people for their lands? The Jews paid more for each acre of desert land than an acre would cost in Washington. The "poor" Arabs knew how much the Jews needed the land. What other colonists have ever done that?

The United Nations are giving the Jews a tiny piece of land so that they can control their own destiny in one part of the earth. They are not threatening to invade Syria, Egypt or the other countries in a holy war. The Jews go to Palestine not as invaders to rob the land, but as colonists to build a nation.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Propaganda That Backfired

SPEAKING recently about attempts to play politics with history, and to put upon the Conservative Party the "terrible lead of responsibility for the muddle which led to the war," Mr. Churchill said that "it would be found better for all parties to leave the past to history." One might wish that the Department of State had had the wisdom to do just that,—instead of publishing the Nazi documents on Nazi-Soviet relations for the period from April, 1939, to January 21, 1941.

Lippmann

For this publication is a classic example of bad propaganda. It was propaganda in that some of the truth but not the whole of it was used for political purposes. It was bad propaganda because it was bound to backfire, doing more injury to ourselves and to our friends than to the Russians against whom it was aimed. That the Kremlin would see this, and take full advantage of it, was to be expected and could easily have been anticipated.

THAT THE State Department book was the work of propagandists and not of scholars is self-evident on the face of it. It contains only Nazi documents, and no self-respecting historian would dream of basing his judgment on the documents of only one side of a great historical event. Moreover, only those Nazi documents were selected for publication which bore on Nazi-Soviet relations after April 1939. That was after the Ethiopian war, after the seizure of Austria, and after the Munich settlement in which Czechoslovakia was dismembered.

The publication of all the documents—not only Nazi but Soviet, British, French, Italian and American covering the events between the two world wars—will probably not be undertaken in this generation. When all the documents are published, it is safe to say that no one will emerge triumphant and pure but that all in varying degrees will have their load, as Mr. Churchill said, of responsibility "for the muddle that led to the war."

THE VERDICT of history, if there ever is one verdict, will have to wait upon the opening of all the archives, at least of those which remain. For the present the publication of some but not all the documents can lead only to the publication of some more but still not all the documents. This is now going to happen. The Kremlin, which has been embarrassed by the tale of its dealings with Hitler, will now reply with a selection of documents calculated to embarrass all those who also dealt with Hitler.

The result will not be edifying. Out of the fracas of the propagandists will come not truth but the discrediting of the search for truth, and an impairment of confidence in the objectivity and the intellectual disinterestedness of American official documents.

FOR THOSE who may think that the end justifies the means in the cold war with so formidable and so unscrupulous an antagonist as Soviet Russia, it should be sufficient to point out what a very bad piece of propaganda this publication is. What do these documents show? That Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany partitioned eastern Europe just before Hitler attacked Poland and the war with Britain and France began. They show furthermore that when Hitler had defeated France and thought he had defeated Britain, he made the colossal mistake of attacking Russia.

Now, in this country the main attention has been fixed upon the fact that Hitler and Stalin made their deal. But that is not news to Europeans. For them, and more particularly for the Germans, the main effect of these documents is to demonstrate how little ideological differences count when great states are promoting and defending what they regard as their vital interests.

FOR THE Germans the lesson which these documents teach is only too appallingly clear. It is that they lost the war which they had all but won because Hitler made the mistake of breaking his agreement with Russia. That is the way these documents will be interpreted by German nationalists, and exploited by Soviet agents, in the German underground. The State Department propagandists may have thought they were demonstrating the perfidy of the Kremlin. But to the Germans they have now provided documentary evidence to prove that Germany would today be master of continental Europe if only Hitler had kept instead of breaking off the alliance with Russia.

The conclusion which the German nationalists will draw, or rather the conclusion which they will have reinforced, is that their future is in undoing the fatal mistake of Hitler, in finding their way back to the Russian alliance which, against the advice of his best generals, Hitler ruptured in June 1941. For it is self-evident, and these documents disclose the logic of it, that German unity can be restored only by a deal with Russia, that the lost German territory can be recovered, or compensation for it obtained elsewhere, only by a deal with Russia, that German greatness on the continent of Europe can be revived only in alliance with Russia.

TO ASSIST in the promotion of these ideas among the Germans, and to embarrass our Western allies and ourselves by inviting the publication of documents for the period up to the Munich appeasement, is not astute,—indeed it is altogether incompetent—propaganda.

It indicates how important it is that the Voice of America have behind it more brains, more experience, and better judgment, lest it speak very loudly before it has thought sufficiently about what it is going to say.

NLRB Plans Union Vote

over which has the right to do [illegible] jobs).

It would be far better if the industry and its labor handled their own disputes, he said, than to have the matter thrown into the hands [illegible] experts in the field. "It is the most important contribution you can make to the economy of the nation at this time," he stated.

Aim Is Security

The election program which Denham outlined is aimed at obtaining union security agreements in the industry. Traditionally, the building industry has operated mostly under closed shops (all employes being union members and hired through the union) and, under existing contracts, can continue to do so until next August 22.

But under the new law, closed shops are thenceforth forbidden. The maximum security allowed is the union shop (employes being required to join the union after 30 days). To obtain union shops, however, a majority of employes must authorize them in secret NLRB elections.

The problem, Denham noted, arises from the fluid character of building employment, where workers switch from contractor to contractor, according to new jobs, at frequent intervals.

To solve the problem, Denham proposed a series of elections in some 700 geographic areas throughout the ocuntry. In each some 10 to 20 different crafts, almost all AFL unions, would vote.

Employers will be called upon to submit lists of all the workers they have hired over a given period, perhaps one year. The NLRB will consolidate the lists to determine what workers are eligible to vote, in which crafts, in each area.

"Pilot" Elections Set

Denham said two or three "pilot elections" will be held soon to serve as "laboratory tests" of the system.

NLRB officials here declined to estimate the cost of the program. From past experience, however, it appeared that the expense of the elections would run into the millions, not counting the expense of the contractors in preparing employe payroll lists. Denham said many temporary election workers would have to be hired to conduct the polls.

The elections will be held among the employes of only those contractors who have bargained with unions in the past and who anticipate entering into contracts with the unions in the future.

In effect, then, it appears that the proposed elections will simply legalize, under another more limited form, the union security now existing under closed shops. Non-union workers and open-shop contractors will not be included in the elections.

CIO Indicted In Test Case

right of Philip Murray to issue political statements through the CIO News is involved in this case," he added.

"What has occurred in respect to the CIO News can occur in relation to many newspapers, because the Taft-Hartley Act forbids banks and corporations—as well as unions—from making expenditures in connection with political elections.

Newspaper Angle Cited

"Obviously no corporation which publishes a newspaper can take a stand in a political campaign without making an expenditure."

From Gary, Ind., where he was speaking on his Midwest campaign tour, Senator Taft (R., Ohio), co-author of the new law, yesterday said the Government might have "made a mistake" in indicting Murray.

He said that if the CIO News was a regularly-circulated newspaper, then the indictment would be invalid.

Taft said unions are prohibited from making political statements in "broadsides" published for a specific campaign. But, he said, the law does not ban such statement in a bona fide newspaper.

Senate Debate Recalled

On June 5, in Senate debate on the law, Taft appeared to take a different position, however. "If (a union newspaper) were supported by union funds contributed by union members as union dues, it would be a violation of the law to support a political candidate, h said.

Senator Barkley (D., Ky.) posed a hypothetical situation, quite similar to the actual situation with the CIO News, of a paper supported "from a fund created by the payment of dues." He asked whether it could take an editorial position with repect to any candidate without violating the law.

Taft replied, "If it is supported by union funds, I do not think it could."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Lobbying Congressmen

THE CRIES of righteous indignation that have gone up over speculation by Government officials seem a little out of proportion to the crime involved. This is true particularly when you consider some of the things going on in this Congress.

Childs

It is a notorious fact that an increasing number of Congressmen retain their connections with their law firms back home and either directly or indirectly represent their clients in Washington. A remarkable example of this practice has recently come to light.

Representative Ross Rizley of Oklahoma is the sponsor of a bill passed by the House last summer which would enable natural gas companies to raise their rates substantially and increase their profits. Some of these same gas companies are clients of the law firm in which Rizley is a partner in Guymon, Okla. So here we have a man, who was presumably elected to represent all the people of his district, speaking for the narrow interests of a few large companies that are owned and controlled a long way from Guymon, Okla.

At least Representative Rizley has the frankness to admit his connection with his firm and the clients represented by that firm. A number of Congressmen are not so frank. They go through the motions of severing their law connections, yet they continue as spokesmen for the clients they formerly represented.

BUT THE case of Representative Rizley and his bill in behalf of the natural gas companies illustrates as well as anything could just what this practice means. Its meaning is made abundantly clear in a report by Leland Olds of the Federal Power Commission. The Olds report, subscribed to by Commissioner Claude L. Draper, who was first appointed by Herbert Hoover in 1930, gives a damning picture of the propaganda drive put on by the companies.

"These great corporations," Olds said, "have attempted to persuade officials of producing States, the owners of gas royalties, the educators now dependent on oil and gas revenues for the support of schools and universities, that their interests are enhanced by quick exploitation of natural gas at prices determined by what the traffic will bear in competition with oil and coal. But the record completely contradicts this specious identity of interest. For it shows the oil and natural gas enterprises as powerful outsiders selfishly inciting the regional people to support against the best local interests."

In the Southwest, where the gas comes from, there is a desire to build up independent industry. But, as Olds pointed out, this great natural resource is siphoned off to build up industry in the Northeast. The object of the companies, Olds charged, is to get the stuff out of the ground as quickly as possible at the greatest possible profit and then clear out.

THIS HAS been the tragic pattern in the Far West and the South. Far too often Eastern corporations have looked on the territory beyond the Hudson River as a kind of colony to exploit by colonial methods. The policy of grab-and-run has left stranded populations and vast areas laid waste.

Surely Speaker Joe Martin, who has been warning of a plot to undermine faith in Congress, could not have known the full significance of the Rizley bill when his Republican flock voted for it in the House last July. There is no surer way to undermine that faith than by advertising the fact that corporations can hire lawyers who are also members of Congress and who will push the special interests of their clients.

The pressure of the gas companies that is now concentrated in the Senate is obviously great. It is blamed for a "compromise" within the Federal Power Commission which would make possible the same kind of rate increase that the Rizley bill authorizes. Chairman Nelson L. Smith and Commissioner Harrington Wimberly support this compromise.

B. N. Behling, a fifth member, has been nominated by President Truman. Behling has indicated his willingness to go along with the "compromise." Back of this is said to be an involved political deal.

In their defense, the gas companies argue that the increased cost to the consumer would be small—far less than the 56 million dollars a year often cited. And they say it would mean more natural gas for all users.

A study by the Federal Power Commission shows the gas companies made generous profits from 1939 to 1946. Those profits are part of the free-enterprise system which most American support. Profit-seekers should understand that abuses and excesses can do far more to bring about its destruction than any sabotage from the outside.

Taft Says Law Drives Reds of U. S. to Canada

Gary, Ind., Feb. 11 (AP).—The Taft-Hartley law is driving Communists out of American and into Canadian unions, Senator Taft (R., Ohio) declared here today.

The Ohioan brought his campaign for GOP presidential delegate support to this organized labor stronghold after hearing Illinois audiences applaud to his demand for a Federal tax cut.

Declaring that Communists had found their easiest road to infiltration in unions, Taft told Gary service clubs in a prepared address:

"Today those Communist members are resigning, as one did this week in Washington. My Canadian friends tell me that several mining unions there are being swamped with Communists who have left the United States because they no longer can make use of their favorite device of infiltration."

Voices New Challenge

Taft did not otherwise identify the union official to whom he referred.

He voiced a new challenge to labor leaders seeking repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"The heads of some of the national unions got themselves out on a limb in their denunciation of the law and now they cannot afford to admit the mistake they have made," he declared.

"They still are threatening to collect millions of dollars from labor union members and to defeat every Senator and Congressman who voted for the law.

"The threats now sound empty and certainly they are in vain."

Taft, who expressed himself as "satisfied" that he has a chance for ultimate support of Illinois' 56 convention delegates, was expected to sound out Indiana sentiment. The latter State's 29 votes may go to House Republican Leader Halleck as a "favorite son" in the early balloting.

Halleck Not Committed

While Halleck was back of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York four years ago, he has not committed himself publicly in this year's race.

With a midafternoon stop scheduled at Hammond, Ind., for a brief talk, Taft planned to hurry back to Chicago for further political conferences tonight.

Among those he expects to see then is Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of the Chicago Tribune, who has said Taft is among those he might be willing to support for the nomination.

Taft is scheduled to make a Lincoln Day address Thursday at St. Paul, Minn., home state of Harold E. Stassen, who is opposing him for the Republican presidential nomination.

Stassen, in a recorded radio speech from Minneapolis last night, urged a "courteous welcome" for GOP party leaders who visit Minnesota and stated: "I specifically trust and urge that when Senator Robert Taft is in St. Paul . . . he be extended every consideration and courtesy."

In his Gary speech, Taft defended the new labor law as providing a "bill of rights" for the workingman.

He said that no amendments "of fundamental importance" are needed, but he said that a section banning certain political activities by unions "probably requires clarification."

N. Y. Election Gives Concern To Democrats

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Worried Democrats yesterday took their eyes off bolting Dixie long enough to cast a troubled glance North.

In New York's normally Democratic Twenty-fourth Congressional District, Henry Wallace was making his first serious bid for a slice of the House.

In a four-way, special election race, Wallace was backing the American-Labor Party candidate to win the Bronx seat left vacant by the resignation of a Democrat, Representative Benjamin J. Rabin.

The special election next Tuesday will either multiply Democratic split party troubles or ease them.

As a straight out test for Wallace strength in November they say the outcome can be exaggerated, since the ALP already ranks second to the Democrats in vote-pulling power in that district.

They say it isn't even a typical New York district, and even if the ALP-Wallace entry, Lee Isaacson, wins it wouldn't necessarily mean Henry could seat a bloc of his supporters in November.

But they concede an Isaacson triumph could give the Wallace third party movement a "shot in the arm" and make things even more uncomfortable for their sectionally squeezed party than they now are.

Democratic headquarters is keeping a close watch on the Bronx district test for these other reasons:

1. If the ALP candidate, with Wallace support, fails to equal that party's 1946 high mark, or considerably exceed it, they can stop worringing too much about Hank.

2. An ALP slump could tell them something else they are anxious to know—whether rank and file Amalgamated Clothing Workers will follow their leaders in walkig out on the Wallace movement.

3. They are interested in any showing Dean Alfange, Liberal Party entry, makes again the field. Reason: Liberal Party votes will almost certainly be transferred to Truman in the November election, whereas ALP will go pretty muc has a bloc for Wallace.

In contrast to Democratic concern in the race, Republican Party strategists appeared only mildly interested. That's because little short of a miracle could elect the Republican entry. The GOP ran third there in 1946, the Liberal Party fourth. Republicans confessed their main interest in the outcome has to do with how badly Henry Wallace can split the New York Democratic vote.

Wallace is now personally stumping the district, hitting mainly at Administration foreign policy. He participated in a joint broadcast with Isaacson Tuesday night and will address another ALP district rally Sunday afternoon. Wallace's entry is getting a big play in the Daily Worker, Communist Party organ, a fact the Democrats like to underline.

Edward J. Flynn, Democratic boss of the Bronx, plans to send in some big-name party figures of his own choosing in the closing days of the race to counter Wallace and help turn out the vote for the Democratic entry, Carl Propper. He has already signed up two—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Mayor William O'Dwyer.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday received the following White House callers:

11:00 a. m.—Ned Kennedy and Cecil Cary, Tacoma, Wash., cross country horseriders, with Senator Morse (R., Oreg.).

1:00 p. m.—Lunch.

Ambassador Johnson Will Go on Vacation

Lake Success, Feb. 11 (AP).—Ambassador Herschel V. Johnson, United States deputy delegate on the United Nations Security Council, plans a vacation in the South next week.

The diplomat has not attended any council meetings since December, when he suffered heart attacks and was hospitalized. When the State Department selects another deputy, President Truman must nominate him with Senate advice and consent.

LINCOLN

As if a mountain sharp against the skies
Were being hewn and carved by hands of Time
Into his gaunt and noble head . . . our eyes
Which may have looked too far beneath him, climb
Up to his heights, and every passing day
Reveals more clearly his majestic mien.
Our need of him, of some strong man to play
The part of leader, etches clear and clean
His outlines limned at height against a flaming sky,
Where only brave souls soar and eagles dare to fly.

But not our burning aching need brings forth a man,
Fashioned on Lincoln's mighty mould and daring plan

Way Is Opened For Federal Union

UPWA Executive Board Sets Up Committee for U. S. Worker Groups

The executive board of the CIO United Public Workers of America has paved the way for possible separation of Federal workers' locals from UPWA and their establishment as an independent CIO union.

Meeting in New York Monday and Tuesday, the board set up an autonomous committee to formulate policy for Federal locals until the next convention, expected late in April or early May. President Abram Flaxer was also authorized to appoint a director of the Federal locals division.

Alfred Bernstein, UPWA director of negotiations here, said yesterday the committee had the power to recommend to the convention that the Federal locals be broken off from the national union.

Flaxer acknowledged in New York that the possibility of separation had been discussed.

[Government officials originally considered the question of placing the union on the official list of "totalitarian, Fascist, Communist, and subversive," organizations. The union was not listed because of the feeling that the overwhelming majority of the 35,000 Federal workers among the union's 100,000 membership are loyal Americans. The list does not contain the names of any labor union at present.

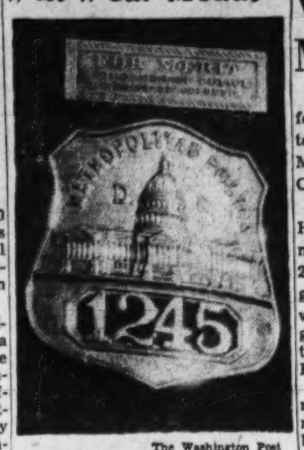

[Flaxer and other UPWA leaders have been under fire by a "right-wing" element within the union for their failure to file non-Communist affidavits. The affidavits are required by the Taft-Hartley Act before a union may resort to the National Labor Relations Board.]

Bernstein said there has been difficulty in operating the Federal locals effectively because no national officials have been able to devote full time to it. He said the new committee and director might solve the problem or might come up with a solution in the report to the convention.

UPWA has an estimated 35,000 Federal employes among its claimed membership of 96,000.

The executive board also came up with a resolution terming the third party movement a healthy thing because "it would stimulate discussion of the issues of the day."

'Cop of the Month' Will Wear Medal

The Washington Post

BADGE OF HONOR—Close-up shows medal to be worn above badge by "Policeman of the Month," who will be selected by a group of local newspapermen

Ranking Washington newspapermen were named yesterday as a committee to choose the Metropolitan policeman who performs the most meritorious act of service each month.

The men were chosen yesterday at a meeting attended by Maj. Robert W. Barrett and other police officials. I. William Hill city editor of The Evening Star, was named chairman of the committee, and Robert L. Taylor, Washington correspondent for the Pittsburgh Courier, was made secretary. Other committee members are G. E. Tankersley, executive city editor of The Washington-Times-Herald; John T. Burch of The Washington Daily News, Alfred Sweeney of Afro-American and Robert H. Estabrook editorial writer of The Washington Post.

The committee will meet after the tenth of each month to consider suggestions for the award advanced both by precinct captains and private citizens. The award will be a bronze medal, to which will be added a clasp which can be worn with regular police uniforms.

Home Life Was Fearful, Man Testifies

Life in his home presented a fearful picture, a District photographer told Associate Justice Matthew McGuire in District Court yesterday.

The photographer, Robert C. Hood, sr., 2647 Connecticut ave. nw., is seeking a divorce from his 23-year-old wife, Gloria, on grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Hood wants a divorce on the same grounds. Both seek custody of their two children, Gloria, 5, and Robert, jr., 3.

Not only was his lovely brunette wife addicted to hurling various household utensils at him, but, Hood testified, he once snapped a photograph of her in "a rather compromising position" with another man.

When he wouldn't give her the negatives, Hood said, she crushed a burning cigaret into his chest and blacked his eye.

In addition, Hood asserted, she once threatened to add tidbits of ground glass to his diet.

Hood was represented by Attorneys R. G. Lamensdorf and Selmer Johnson. Jean Boardman is attorney for Mrs. Hood. The hearing will be resumed today at 10 a. m.

To Install Officers

Rea Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans will hold installation ceremonies at 8 tonight at 1701 18th st. nw. To be installed are Elphege Desgres, commander; Joseph Jablow, sr., vice commander; John House, jr., vice commander; I. I. Kurhan, treasurer, and Edwin Kurzius, judge advocate.

Children Offer Ballet

"Cinderella," a three-act ballet, will be presented by the Children's Theater, sponsored by the D. C. Recreation Department, in the Roosevelt High School auditorium tomorrow at 8:15 p. m., and on February 14 and 21 at 2:30 p. m. Tickets are on sale at Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st. nw.

Oil Shortage Is Eased Some By Arrival of 2 Big Barges

Some of the edge was removed from Washington's critical fuel shortage last night with the arrival here of more than one million gallons of fuel oil.

Convoyed by three Coast Guard icebreakers and a Navy tug, two barges loaded with fuel oil arrived here after a full day's voyage from Dahlgren, Va.

One barge, the Coral Sea, brought 700,000 gallons of No. 6 oil for L. P. Steuart & Brothers. This type oil is used in heating large buildings, such as hospitals.

The second barge, the Lake Charles, with a cargo consigned to Shell Oil Co., docked in Alexandria. It was reported to be carrying 168,000 gallons of No. 1 oil and 336,000 gallons of No. 2 oil, the type used by householders.

More Due Tomorrow

The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey also reported three barges carrying fuel oil and gasoline left Baltimore for Washington yesterday. A company spokesman said the barbes probably will not reach here before tomorrow.

One barge was loaded with 680,000 gallons of No. 2 oil, another with 680,000 gallons of gasoline and the third with 580,000 gallons of No. 2 oil.

In the third shipment of 580,000 gallons, 240,000 gallons were destined for the Washington Gas Light Co. H. B. Noyes, plant superintendent, said he had not received a shipment of fuel oil in a month and that the company's stocks are "going down very rapidly."

There was no additional word of two other large shipments of fuel oil due here.

One is a shipment of 1,050,000 gallons obtained for Washington through negotiotions by the Senate Small Business Committee. This shipment has not yet arrived in Baltimore.

Another shipment of 420,000 gallons, allotted Washington by the Navy, was still waiting in the Norfolk area. District Fuel Oil Coordinator J. Thomas Kennedy said a barge is now enroute to Norfolk from New York to pick up the load.

Coal Shipment Shrink

Not all of the District's heating problems were due to a lack of fuel oil. Coal was becoming increasingly scarce.

Patrick A. Deck, chairman of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association coal division, estimated weather conditions have curtailed coal shipments into Washington by 10 to 20 per cent.

"The situation," Deck said, "is fairly bad, but I think we'll pull through.

"The important thing is to impress on the public that they must not become panicky and start calling every coal dealer in the telephone book."

Deck said if householders are unable to obtain supplies from their regular dealer and a genuine emergency exists they should call his coal division at National 2611 and aid will be given.

"But don't call if you have coal," said Deck. "Be honest about it."

The Washington Post received a call for assistance yesterday from Mrs. Annie Bossler, a widowed mother of five children, of 11 N st. nw. She said all her coal was gone and the only heat was from the gas stove in the kitchen. Her call was referred to Deck.

Three Wire While House

Three persons sent telegrams to the White House yesterday asking help in obtaining oil and coal. They were Leslie Jaggers of 5770 2d st. se., Mrs. Grace Santangelo of 220 Randolph pl. ne. and Mrs. David Ray Peterson of 1241 Owens rd. se.

Theater owners took steps yesterday to forestall closing of their movie houses as a fuel oil conservation measure.

A. Julian Brylawski, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Metropolitan D. C., wrote the Commissioners that movie houses here use "an insignificant fraction of 1 per cent" of all the fuel oil consumed in the city.

He said closing theaters would work a great hardship on the owners and their employes. In addition, he said only 26 of Washington's 47 theaters use fuel oil.

Cab Driver Freed On Nurse's $475 'Swindle' Charge

Henri Gasque, 37, a cab driver, was acquitted yesterday of charges he swindled a 27-year-old St. Elizabeths nurse of $475 in a business deal.

The nurse, Thelma Sidberry, had charged she was promised a one-third interest in a four-cab fleet. She said she made the first payment of $90 while Gasque, father of seven children, was showing her the beauties of Washington's cheery blossoms last April.

Gasque testified that Miss Sidberry had given him the $475 as a "gift." The District Court jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for seven hours before finding Gasque innocent of grand larceny.

Librarians to Dine

Economic aspects of world peace will be discussed by David D. Lloyd, national legislative and research director of the Americans for Democratic Action, at a dinner meeting of the social science group of the Washington Chapter of Special Libraries Association at 6:30 tonight at the Highlands, Connecticut ave. and California st. nw.

cific times and places, Wiggins said, would be to divulge the source of the information.

The reporter of The Washington Post, under questioning by Hoffman Tuesday, declined to disclose the source of the story.

Fisher asked Wiggins how he could "reconcile" the story with Fleming's testimony Tuesday that he had "no such orders" from the White House. Wiggins said he didn't want to imply that "anyone involved had falsified information," but he said he chose to "stand on the story."

Wiggins suggested that if the story were untrue, the White House would be "thoroughly capable" of refusing it. President Truman had no comment on the story Tuesday.

The hearings marked the third time in four months that Representative Hoffman has called Washington newspapermen to testify concerning articles they had written. Last October 7, he questioned B. M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star, and his chief editorial writer, John H. Cline, about an editorial entitled "Disloyal Congressmen."

On November 19, he tried, without success, to obtain from Reporter Alfred Friendly of The Washington Post, the source of a story about Hoffman's role in a labor dispute.

More than 100 members of the striking union, Local 471 of the CIO Cafeteria Workers, jammed into the hearing room yesterday. Fisher said he knew of no other scheduled hearings by the special Labor and Education Subcommittee.

Snow and Rain Glaze Streets

Estelle Richards, 61, of 23 H st. nw., who slipped at 2d and D sts. se. at 10 a. m., breaking her left wrist, and Laura Averett, 51, of 1000 New Jersey ave. se., who fell in front of her home, fracturing her right wrist.

One fatality blamed on a fall was reported yesterday. Aloysius Alexander Baker, 83, retired farmer, of 1416 44th st. ne., died at 4:30 a. m. at his home. Dr. Robert Bosworth, attending physician, issued a certificate of death due to a heart condition and shock resulting from accidental fall. The aged man fell at 44th and Ord st. ne., Saturday, breaking his left arm.

In Prince Georges County, Md., Willis Collins, 58, of 6609 Allentown rd., Allentown, Md., was pinned within his automobile yesterday morning when he skidded into a light pole on Branch ave. at Auth rd., between Camp Springs and Silver Hill. Removed by the District Heights Rescue Squad to Leland Memorial Hospital, Riverdale, he was held overnight for observation. Physicians said he suffered a bruised chest and a strained back.

Rep. Nixon Fractures Elbow in Fall on Ice

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) suffered a fractured left elbow yesterday when he fell on the ice outside his home at 3538 Gunston rd., Alexandria.

Nixon, who was carrying his 2-year-old daughter, slipped on the sidewalk, and took the full force of the fall on his elbows. He was admitted to the Bethesda Naval Hospital, where officials said his condition was "satisfactory."

New Hit Passing By

Baltimore Packs A Notable Play

By Richard L. Coe

WITH THE EXPERIENCED Joshua Logan as his collaborator, Thomas Heggen has evolved his sketches about life on a Navy cargo ship into a splendid play, "Mister Roberts." It is an often riotous comedy, enriched by the human experience of its author, whose first writing this is, and warmed by a passionate defense of individual decency.

"Mister Roberts" is playing this week at Ford's, Baltimore, prior to its New York opening, but I'm sorry to tell you there's little use in trekking the 40 miles to see it. With Henry Fonda as its star and drawing card, the play already is sold out for the week, including an extra matinee Friday. Washington playgoers will have to be content with their operettas and what they hear about "Mister Roberts."

For this is a play that will be talked about and which shortly will be competing with "A Streetcar Named Desire" as the season's top contender for springtime awards. It is the year's second notable play to come out of wartime experience, a more likable, less taut play than "Command Decision," the drama about the Eighth Air Force which Baltimore also saw and Washington didn't.

In this war as in no other, because of its very immensity, boredom played a terrifying part, the boredom of doing little things, thousands of miles behind the action lines. The deadening routine of doing seemingly nothing was a far more real enemy to most men and women than an enemy they never saw.

These are the men—and the Army nurse, who pays a quick visit—of "Mister Roberts." They're aboard U. S. Navy Cargo Ship AK 601: a merchant marine captain whose ignorance makes him a hateful, terrifying figure; a cargo officer (Mr. Roberts) whose understanding and humanity makes him lovable, and an assortment of men whose characters are sharply drawn by the two playwrights and played with unerring knowledge by a fine company.

A Deed for Words

Mr. Roberts—all officers below the rank of commander are addressed as "Mister"—is a lieutenant j. g. who longs for action. He stands up to the captain for his men in matters of their comfort and ultimately gives up his requests for transfer in exchange for the captain's permission to give the men shore leave after he's consistently denied it. When they learn, by chance, of Roberts' sacrifice, the men forge the necessary papers and Roberts goes off to his action duty. When he's killed up forward, his successor as cargo officer remembers his example and stands up to the captain's tyranny.

The skill with which this is told is remarkably understanding, for the heroics scarcely come to the surface. Most of the time you are laughing at the men's efforts to spy via binoculars into the nurses' shower room ashore, at the contempt the men aboard have for the potted palms outside the captain's cabin as a symbol of the work his cargo ship has marked up, or at the eager, slap-happy Ensign Pulver.

The playwrights have underscored the complete inability of the men to speak what is in their minds, that fumbling for expression you find in the good and simple-hearted. Their actions ultimately speak for them in a manner which beggars their words.

Complete Realism

The realism of the play, too, is superb, from the splendid settings of Jo Mielziner to the crude expressions of men cooped up in a ship. You hear the familiar phrase—"Now hear this, hear this"—on the intercom system, and you watch the men, comfortably stretched out on deck, decide to hit the sack rather than talk with an officer they don't trust.

This, you say to yourself, is how it was, this was life for years in the South Pacific. And in the struggle between the ignorant captain and his enlightened cargo officer you see humanity at its most tragic—the hatred by the ignorant of the understanding of the wise.

The cast couldn't be bettered. Henry Fonda, wearing the uniforms of his own Navy days, is "Mister Roberts" to the very dreams in his heart, the finest work this respected actor has done. Robert Keith is wry and observant as the ship's doc, and David Wayne is wondrously bouncy as the woman-minded ensign. Logan has directed with a shrewd eye for everyone.

Yes, "Mister Roberts" is one of the plays of the year, generous with its laughs, joyous in its regard for that least communicative of animals, the human male.

CAPITAL CALENDER: Only two new pictures this week . . . "You Were Meant for Me," a musical with Jeanne Crain and Dan Dailey, opens this morning at the Capitol . . . "Albuquerque," a Cinecolor Western with Randolph Scott, Gabby Hayes and Lon Chaney, no longer billed as "jr.," arrives at the Metropolitan . . . "The Voice of the Turtle" coos into a second week at the Warner and both "Captain From Castile" and "Road to Rio" hold over at the Palace and Columbia . . . "Bambi" stays at Keith's until "The Bishop's Wife" takes over next Wednesday . . . The Hippodrome and the Little keep Britain's "I Know Where I'm Going" and Italy's "Shoe Shine" . . . Tonight the Mount Vernon Players offer John Millington Synge's "Deirdre of the Sorrows" in their hall at 9th and Mass ave. . . . Seats go on sale this morning at the National for Elsa Shelley's drama starring Peggy Ann Garner, "Pick-Up Girl."

THEIR PICNIC SPOT: In "You Were Meant For Me" Schoolgirl Jeanne Crain marries Band Leader Dan Dailey and discovers that his is a busy career. Even a picnic she has planned goes by the board when it rains. But they have their picnic in a hotel room, which makes them both pretty happy as you can see from the above. With Oscar Levant in the chief supporting role, the musical opens this morning at the Capitol

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

IN BASEBALL, freedom of speech does not include the privilege of whacking at your bosses in season or out, so the veteran shortstop, Eddie Miller of the Reds, has popped up with the Phillies after popping off against the Cincinnati club. The Reds traded him almost pronto.

POVICH

All Miller said last month at a banquet in Hamilton, Ohio, was (1) the manager, Johnny Neun's strategy was messing up the Reds; (2) that they were too high on a pair of rookie infielders who were coming up, and (3) that the Reds would be lucky to battle for a tie for last place next season.

And so the Phillies have come up with a talking shortstop, with Manager Ben Chapman prepared to don earmuffs, if necessary, for the good of his infield. The shortstop situation on his own team before he landed the skillful Miller was so serious that Chapman now is saying, "Let him talk —as long as he hits for us."

Everybody seems to be happier all around. The Phillies got a shortstop, Miller gets away from what he calls a mismanaged club, and the Reds relieved Manager Johnny Neun of a loud irritant.

ONE OF MILLER'S complaints was that the Reds, under Neun, were hit-and-run crazy, in contrast to the basic strategy of Bill McKechnie who managed the club for most of Miller's career with Cincinnati. McKechnie had success, Miller said, with the sacrifice game and playing-for-one-run, but Neun was introducing American League tactics of slugging away.

What did Miller expect from Neun? Wasn't Johnny fresh from the Yankees when he took over as boss of the Reds last year? The Yankees always have been the foremost exponents of getting runs in clusters, of playing for that big inning, and have more pennants to show than any other club as evidence of how salubrious that kind of strategy can be.

Any baseball man knows that's the difference between the two leagues—that the National plays for that one run and the American goes for that big inning. There were occasions in the last World Series when National Leaguers expressed surprise that Bucky Harris' Yankees didn't lay one down againnst the Dodgers; but shucks, the Yankees never did bunt and why start now? Anyway, maybe they didn't know how. And anyway, they won the series.

WHAT MILLER SAID about the Reds' rookies another ballplayer isn't supposed to say, especially if he's on the same club, but there could have been considerable logic in what Miller did choose to say. Of Virgil Stallcup, the International League star who was being groomed for Miller's shortstop job, Miller remarked "he must prove his ability to hit big league pitching. I doubt if he will hit anywhere near the average he had in the International."

It may not have been nice, but it was refreshing to hear such spade-calling by one ballplayer talking about others. All Miller said was what other folks were bound to be thinking. It took a certain kind of courage, maybe. When the Reds' front-office frowned publicly on Miller's expressions, Eddie wasn't cowed into making any retractions. He stood on what he said.

He was critical, too, of Frankie Baumholtz, the Reds' right fielder who was voted the outstanding rookie of 1947. At a time when Cincinnati fans were becoming worshipful of Baumholtz, Miller upped with the comment that he was a poor defensive man. Is that being rude?

MILLER IS THE second player to talk himself off a ball club since the season ended. Gerry Priddy of the Nats had things to say about the club last season that didn't set well with the bosses, and he was shunted off to St. Louis to do penance with the last-place Browns. At the time, Clark Griffith didn't know where his next second baseman was coming from, but he knows he does not like talking ballplayers.

Loose tongues cost a couple of other guys their jobs with the Nats. Several years ago, Al Simmons popped off at some Griffith Stadium fans who were booing him, and Griffith sacked him right away. "My ballplayers can't say things like that to my customers," said Griffith.

Before that, Wes Ferrell talked himself out of a job with the Washington club. In Detroit one day, he was miffed because he had to walk to the ball park. "This club is too cheap to give us taxi fare," said Ferrell, "and you can print it." Griffith fired him after the first editions hit the streets.

W. Virginia Wins, 38-37, From Navy

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Navy's basketball upstarts threw a fright into West Virginia today but Center Ed Beach tapped in his only field goal of the game with little more than a minute remaining to give the Mountaineers a 38-37 victory.

The victory broke a "jinx" Navy had held over West Virginia for two years. The Middies had spoiled undefeated seasons for the Mountaineers by close scores in 1947 and 1946.

Beach scored the last three points of the game. With less than four minutes to go, he converted from the foul line, making the score, 37-36, in Navy's favor.

Then, with about a minute and a half left, he tapped in the rebound of a wild pivot shot by Mountaineer Forward Fred Schaus —and that was the ball game.

Navy did its best to score, but a field goal attempt by Bob Searle, star Middies forward, was off and West Virginia got hold of the ball. They kept it in their possession for the minute remaining.

Commies Beef Over Olympics

Bucharest, Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Dondi Gallin, captain of the Romanian team in the Winter Olympics, said today in an interview with the Communis tnewspaper Romania Libera that the judges at St. Moritz were incompetent and the results of the competitions were influenced by American "financial circles."

"The audience was unsatisfied and protested violently" when Barbara Ann Scott of Canada, won the women's figure skating title, Gallin wrote, adding that the games were not carried out for sports, but instead "as a party of St. Moritz business and hotel owners."

He said the games were a pretext for "American millionaires dressed in innumerable fur coats to exhibit their riches."

(Editors Note: Romania was one of 13 nations which failed to score a point in the Winter Olympics.)

Full House Sees First Twin Bill

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

George Washington won a convincing 65-49 victory over Maryland at the Armory last night in the Southern Conference opener of a college double header that drew a capacity crowd of 4803.

In the second game, Georgetown trailed Penn State by 21-19 at the half.

The victory was G. W.'s sixteenth in 21 games and its conference record now reads 11 and 3. A disappointing Maryland team suffered its fourth setback in 10 conference games and slipped below the .500 mark with 8-9..

George Washington cut loose in the opener midway in the second half and made a runaway of what had been a thrillingly close game.

The Colonials took a 34-33 lead shortly after intermission when Ray Adler dropped a basket. Maryland's Spence Wright regained the margin temporarily with two free throws, but G. W. went on a 11-point scoring surge that decided the issue.

Art Cerra, who was high for the game with 16 points, started things off with a goal and a foul. Then he fed Adler a basket and the big G. W. center came back with a tap shot.

Phil McNiff added two more quick baskets before Bob Murray finally interrupted the parade with a foul. But by that time the Colonials had gained a 45-36 lead and it never was threatened.

Only the shooting of Bernie Smith, quiet until he scored seven points late, enabled Maryland to stay as close as it did.

Cantwell Is Oout

Surprising thing about G. W.'s easy victory was that it was accomplished without the aid of Capt. Bill Cantwell, leading college scorer in this district and second high in the Southern Conference.

Cantwell saw action for only about two minutes. In addition to Cerra, Phil McNiff, with 14, Ray Adler, with 13, and Maynard Haithcock, with 9 points, took over the scoring burden.

For Maryland, Freshman Spence Wright's 10 points kept the Terrapins within a point after the first half, 26-25. He was held to four fouls in the second half but still was high for the losers with 14. Little Ed Crescence, hurt late in the game, had 10 and Bill Brown had the same total.

N. C. State Tops College Cage Scoring

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—Unless North Carolina State suddenly loses its scoring punch, the high scoring Wolfpack should have no trouble at all capturing the major college basketball scoring championship.

For the third consecutive week, the Southern Conference leaders paced the Pack with a 78-7 points-per-game average for 22 games through February 7.

The only team with an outside chance to catch the Wolfpack is Rhode Island State, which has averaged 75.9 per game for 14 contests. Bradley, Bowling Green and Western Kentucky appear out of the running.

The Rhodies' chances to overtake North Carolina State are slim indeed. They must average 8½ points per game more than N. C. State does the rest of the way. Through the last six games, the southerners have averaged 87.2 per contest to only 73.8 for the New Englanders. In its two games last week, N. S. State flattened North Carolina 81-42 and crushed Georgetown (D. C.) 87-46.

Bradley vaulted from fifth to third, averaging 70.7 per game. Bowling Green dropped a notch to fall into a fourth place tie with Western Kentucky, each with 70.5.

Alabama Has 38

Oklahoma A. and M. continued to sport the best defensive record, allowing only 32.4 points per game to the opposition in 20 games. This does not include the record low of 15 points to which the Aggies held Creighton last Monday.

Alabama's 38.0 was next best, followed by Wyoming, Tulane, St. Louis and Penn State.

Best free throw shooters were the Texas Longhorns who converted 227 fouls in 314 tries for a .723 percentage. Oregon State's field goal percentage of .380 was the best in that department.

Southern Methodist committed the fewest personal fouls and Iowa State the most.

Players Paid, Many Are Ineligible, McKeever Says

San Francisco, Feb. 11 (AP).—The departure of Football Coach Ed McKeever from the University of San Francisco backfield today when he challenged by letter the eligibility of many United States football players and the school's gridiron financing.

His successor and former assistant, Joe Kuharich, said McKeever's surprising action was "vindictive and spiteful" and was "definitely a smear on the kids, me and the school."

Father Jerome Sullivan, the university athletic moderator, said McKeever mailed the letter containing the charges January 31, the Day the USF coach for a year quit to become head coach of the professional Chicago Rockets of the All America Conference. Father Sullivan said McKeever's letter was "grossly in error" on many points.

No Comment From McKeever

The letter was addressed to Father Sullivan and sent to Athletic officials of other colleges which are on USF's football schedule.

Commissioner Victor O. Schmidt of the Pacific Coast Conference also got a copy. USF is not a conference member but professes to play by its rules.

At Los Angeles Schmidt said that he has received "a letter" from Coach Ed McKeever, but declined to comment.

"Yes, I received a letter from Mr. McKeever," Schmidt said, emphasizing the "A," "but I have no comment to make regarding its contents."

The conference, it was inferred, was not concerned with the controversy.

McKeever's letter said:

Here's the Letter

"So there will be no misunderstanding on, or any criticism toward me, I feel that since you have already declared Scott, Tsarnas and Matisi ineligible that you realize the situation on the following:

"Steve Kucer was registered at Tulane and Drake University and lost a year in transferring and played last season.

"Tom Chintis played two years at Arizona, lost a year in transferring and has played one year here.

"George Stefko, Drake University and USF.

"Joe Mocha, University of Pittsburgh, Bethany College, University of Maryland, service transfer and last year's competition at USF.

"Al Piat, University of Georgia; Joe Wozniak, Alabama Poly; Marvin Willis, Silver City Teachers (New Mexico), two years, transferred and played last season at USF; Tihy Sabuco, Wayne University; Paul and Bob Braunreiter, one of Marquette and the other at Regis; Larry Clerico, Junior College, two years.

"Barney Prowell, Junior College, two years; Paul Howard, Junior College two years and two years of eligibility here. Would he have eligibility left?

Notre Dame Transfer

"Bob Greenalgh, Notre Dame in 1942, Notre Dame in 1946. Better check on this case because he definitely lost a year by his registering at Notre Dame for second time.

"Rudy Ragan; it is my understanding he attended school in Pennsylvania before matriculating here.

"George Buksar, Purdue; Mike Davlin, Notre Dame; George Westernkirchner, Notre Dame, service ball, which does not count against eligibility; James Ryan, St. Mary's and USF; Don Panciera, Boston College; Ed Kaminsky, Notre Dame, two years of competition at USF; Phil O'Connor, Notre Dame, St. Louis U., USF.

"I would like to mention further that during the recent NCAA meeting two factors were brought up clearly.

"First—the matter of subsidization. "Second—the paying of athletes."

"How About Pay?"

"How you will work out paying the boys the usual $75, $50 and $40 a month, plus, in some cases, a substantial amount over that figure, I do not know, but it is going to be a bit of a problem.

"I just wanted these things cleared up."

Kuharich, brought up McKeever to USF last year as assistant coach, was in the head mentor's doghouse before the season ended. They seldom spoke after the feuding started.

Kuharich said: "There may be a question on the eligibility of one or two of the boys but we know the backgrounds of all the rest. Every boy who plays football for us will be eligible—rest assured."

The letter was directed mainly at "boys McKeever brought out here when he became head coach," Kuharich said. "I have talked to some of them and they insist they told McKeever about some possible technicalities involving eligibility. The boys told me that McKeever told them not to bother about it."

Father Sullivan said: "McKeever has his facts twisted badly in the cases of many athletes. We have never fielded an ineligible player in the two years I have been athletic moderator."

Miller's a Tough Phil to Swallow

Cincinnati, Feb. 11 (AP).—Eddie Miller, veteran shortstop traded to the Philadelphia Phils yesterday by the Cincinnati Reds, tonight issued the following statement:

"A wise old owl lived in an oak.
"The more he saw, the less he spoke.
"The less he spoke, the more he heard.
"I'm that bird."

It was Miller's first comment in connection with the Philadelphia deal in which Cincinnati acquired Johnny Wyrostek, an outfielder.

When the Reds hung the "for sale or trade" sign on Miller recently, outspoken Eddie said he would welcome a change of scenery and promised if he got a new employer he would "try to keep my big mouth shut for a change."

Miller went on the block after he criticized Cincinnati club policies and predicted the Reds "will be lucky to battle for a tie for last place" in the National League in 1948.

Colts' Isbell Will Ask Five Rule Changes

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—Coach Cecil Isbell of the Baltimore Colts will recommend five rule changes, two of them designed to give T-formation quarterbacks more offensive leeway, at the annual All-America Football Conference meeting in Chicago this weekend.

Isbell is one of five coaches appointed by Commissioner Jonas H. Ingram to study the rules and suggest modifications. The others are Buck Shaw of San Francisco, Lowell Dawson of Buffalo, Paul Brown of Cleveland and Ray Flaherty of New York.

Wants Direct Pass

The Colt coach would legalize a direct pass from center to other backs even though the T-formation quarterback has his hands under the center.

"Under our rules, the T-quarterback must be a yard behind the ball, or, if he is up close, he must come out," Isbell said. "The direct pass to other backs, even if the signal-caller's hands are under the center, would be better."

"I believe, too, that making the quarterback an eligible pass receiver, even if he is not a yard behind the line would help. That plty came up during the Navy-Georgia Tech game and there was quite an argument about it."

Protest Unofficial

(Coach Tom Hamilton of Navy declared that the winning touchdown pass scored by Georgia Tech last season was illegal because the quarterback receiver was not one yard behind the center when the play started. The Navy coach declined, however, to make an official protest.)

Other rule changes to be suggested by Isbell would allow a coach to substitute two men instead of one during a time out, permit the defensive team to run with a punt or field goal attempt going over the goal, and provide for immediate settlement if the conference championship game ends in a tie.

Birds, Stranded Near Frozen Chesapeake, Are Too Cold to Sing for Their Supper

Haight Unlimited Pities Poor Ducks

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

"IF YOU DON'T THINK this rugged winter is tough on the birds, I want to show you something," said Ralph Murdock as he began crumbling a couple of bread crusts.

Haight

I followed him out on his snow covered lawn.

"Do you see any birds around?" he asked. When I accented the negative, he continued, "We'll I'm going to throw these crumbs up and before they hit the ground I'll bet you the birds will be here."

Despite the reputation of outdoor men for exaggerating—about the size of the fish that got away or the number of geese in a flock heading South—I decided not to wager.

Murdock tossed the crumbs and, as if by magic, the feathery fellows were there!

A triple dead heat—a sparrow, a starling and a snowbird landed as a team. Then came more of those species appeared, along with the blue jays, cardinals, mocking birds, quail, towees and a lot of strangers in my book.

"This will happen anytime between sunup and sundown," explained Murdock, my No. 1 authority on hunting and fishing. "Everything is covered by snow and ice and, except for handouts from friends, the birds are not eating. These birds you see around here have been getting food—the others are probably beyond the need of it."

IN MY NEW ROLE as outdoor editor I was visiting Murdock at his home on Herring Bay, at present a far-from-mild version of Little America.

Except for a narrow strip along the shore, perhaps a quarter of a mile in width, Chesapeake Bay appeared frozen over with ice jams towering 10 or more feet, giving it the appearance of the Bay of Wales the day Admiral Byrd left to avoid being frozen in.

I went indoors to his open fire and my Old Crow (I switched since becoming outdoor editor).

"Come on," he said, "Get your coat. I want to show you some real sufferers from the hard winter."

We walked along the shore. It was so cold that ducks were hunting men—and I'm not kidding!

Even before Murdock threw out a handful of corn, the ducks were coming toward us.

"These strips along the shore are about the only open water within miles," he explained. "Ordinarily, the ducks can feed on wild celery, fish, etc., up in the rivers and creeks, but the Potomac, Patuxtent and the others are frozen tight and have been for weeks. Now ducks are getting a few muscles to eat off the bottom and that's all the natural feed."

"Why don't they fly South?" I asked.

"I don't know why, but they probably are aware that the freeze extends into the Carolinas," he replied. "And then again, it could be because they haven't strength, on their present diet, to make long flights. You know, ordinarily, Chesapeake Bay is open in winter and provides plenty of food. Ducks are used to being here and when the weather is severe, they probably just stick around, hoping for a break."

It didn't seem to add up when Murdock tossed the feed into the water where it promptly settled to the bottom.

"The ducks will find it," he said. "And the crows won't, as would be the case if it were on the shore."

I began feeling sorry for the crows.

MY TRIP PROVED one thing —for a few weeks duck hunters bang away at these beautiful birds and for the remainder of the years they worry about them.

The hundreds of Herring Bay ducks are now being fed, thanks, to residents of Franklin Manor and their friends. Along with T. Yates Goldsborough, a real estate man and a duck hunter, Murdock has obtained many bushels of corn and the good neighbors strip it from the cob. The men take turns in putting it out for the canvas backs, whistlers, blackheads, ruddies, bay coots and the others.

Perhaps there are no ducks near your home, but there are birds. They are too cold and weak to sing for their supper, now, but put out something for them — and they'll sing next summer.

Ain't I getting to be a sentimental old bird?

Ahearn, Menendez Are Told To Set Own Boxing Dates

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

GABE MENENDEZ and Goldie Ahearn, the town's rival matchmakers who haven't spoken to each other for several years, were told by the District Boxing Commission yesterday to settle their own squabbles over fight dates.

After hearing the latest annual ruckus between Menendez and Ahearn over who's going to run a show on what Monday night, the commissioners told them, in effect, each could run on any or the same night in each week, provided their attraction got the blessings of the commission.

Speaking for his group, Chairman Heinie Miller said the commissioners would no longer regulate dates for professional shows in Washington. Promoters could run whenever they wanted to.

This is in direct contrast to a commission policy of many years which placed a one-a-week limit on pro shows.

Menendez requested yesterday's hearing to, protest three Monday night dates awarded Ahearn, matchmaker for the Liberty AC. Menendez, representing Turner's Arena, said he staged Monday shows every week and felt the commission was doing an injustice to him in awarding Ahearn three Monday dates on which the Turner's Arena club had planned to stage shows also.

THE commission told Menendez and his promoter, Mrs. Florence Turner, that last winter's court decision which overruled a commission policy permitting one show a week was the basis for their decision.

Menendez sued the commissioners when they granted the Ahearn interests a license for a February show while refusing Menendez a permit for the same evening.

"The court," Miller said, "ruled that we do not not have the power to regulate dates. So, we're not going to attempt it any longer. We have requested the District Commissioners to rescind an article in Washington's boxing regulations which we thought gave us that power."

New Star Bows In

Lamon Becomes A. U. Ace Since Exit of 3 Hot Shots

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

THE recent exodus of "name" players from the American University basketball team accomplished one thing—the discovery of a new star.

The new star is 21-year-old Bob Lamon, latest of the batch of Washington products to step into the local intercollegiate limelight.

In the three games since Reggie Crockett joined Bart Fugler and Don Hillock on A.U.'s "voluntarily retired" list, Lamon has netted 63 points. He got 21 against Scranton, 25 against Muhlenberg and 17 against Mount St. Mary's Tuesday.

Before Crockett and Hillock left the squad, Lamon was A. U.'s "fifth" starter. He was regarded as a fine ball-handler, but in 16 games, his scoring average was 8.6.

Lamon's transformation into a floor man was puzzling to District cage fans. They remembered black-haired Bob as the leading interhigh scorer while he was at Eastern in 1944 and '45, years in which he was named All-High.

However, it was not puzzling to American U. coach, Staff Cassell. "I knew all along that Bob was our best set shot," says Cassell. "I tried to tell him that after seeing him in practice. But I couldn't convince him. Bob seemed awed in the presence of such proven players as Hillock, Crockett, Fugler and Pete Negley, our center.

"IT seems that it took the departure of three of the boys he hero-worshiped to bring out the best in Bob. Now he's not only our best floor man, but also our best set shot."

Since Lamon's sudden transformation, testimonials have been pouring in on him from some of the East's outstanding coaches. Muhlenberg coach, Bud Barker, whose team has played Penn, Temple and Villanova, called Lamon's 25-point performance "the best I've seen this year."

John Lawther, Penn State coach, who also saw the Muhlenberg game, called the 6 foot 1 inch 185-pound sophomore "the most promising prospect I've seen this year."

It's Leap Year . . .

'Girls' Eye Santa Anita Top Purses

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP).—This being leap year, the feminine influence may be something to reckon with in Santa Anita's coming rich stakes attractions.

The San Antonio Handicap Saturday, for a $50,000 purse, and the eleventh edition of the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap February 28, are the features.

And if the ladies of the turf are ever going to humble the males—and they never have in these two particular fixtures—this could be the year.

Charley Howard's Miss Doreen, now an improved mare to rate, fairly flew through the mud to win the all-girl Santa Margarita last week at a mile and one sixteenth.

THE SAN ANTONIO is only a furlong longer. Miss Doreen, not to forget her runner-up, the well-regarded William G. Hellis mare, Elpis, might be dangerous Saturday.

The same goes for the route-running South American beauty, Miss Grillo, who enjoyed no luck whatever in finishing third to Miss Doreen.

Special interest is attached to another fair damsel, Bridal Flower, from the powerful stable of Richard (Assault) Kleberg's King Ranch in Texas.

RANKED AS ONE of the best mares in the country last season, Bridal Flower will be making her 1948 debut this week. Her fancy, however, may be cast ahead to the bigger, more glamorous golden gallop two weeks later.

A year ago Staurt Hamblen's long-tailed longshot nomad, El Lobo, administered a surprising thrashing to much more distinguished horse flesh.

This year the aforementioned gals, plus a few more who might do nothing more than clutter up the track and confuse the issue, could make this leap year thing a dangerous institution.

Bullis Star Scores 43

Dick Goelzer, 6-foot 3-inch center, set a 1948 scholastic scoring record for Washington as he netted 43 points and led Bullis Prep to a 77-55 victory over the George Washington U. 'B' team yesterday at the Silver Spring Armory.

Goelzer, a former All-Virginia football and basketball player at Granby High of Norfolk, brought his scoring total to 151 for 10 games. Bullis, which piled up a 31-11 halftime lead, coasted to its sixth win against four losses.

Delegate Is Second, Armed 3d

Hialeah, Fla., Feb. 11 (AP).—Citation, Warren Wright's Kentucky Derby winter book favorite, justified that high position toady when he won the Seminole Handicap over a field of older stars which included stable mates Armed and Faultness.

Three quarters of a length off the classy 3-year-old came Herbert M. Woolf's Delegate to earn second position, only a scant head in front of an improved Armed. Tavistock was fourth, with Faultless a poor fifth.

Not only did Citation add considerably to his reputation, but he gave Jockey Albert Sndier a fourth straight score on the card, witnessed by the largest crowdl of the meeting, 20,271.

Minus Pool Resupits

The triple-star Calumet entry paid $2.80, $2.10 and $2.10 across the board, and there was a minue pool on the race of $9547, which the track had to make up.

Citation finished handily in the sparkling time of 1:20 flat for the 7 furlongs while carrying 112 pounds. By the weight-for-age scale, he was conceding weight to each of his rivals. His share of the purse was $8525.

Armed, recently badly beaten in a race won by Citation, closed very fast today. After the race, Trainer Jimmy Jones, speaking of his seven-year-old charge, he said, "he ran an improved race and really closed ground." Jimmy's dad, Ben — Calumet's general manager — added, "Armed ran much better today but still doesn't seem quite himself yet. We'll see how he comes out of today's race before deciding on what we'll do about the McLennan and Widener Handicaps."

This was Citation's 11th start and 10th victory, he having lost once last year when second to stablemate Bewitch.

Trouble at Gate

Jule Fink's pair in the Seminole—Gestapo and Wide Wing, each a bad post horse at times—both were left. Wide Wing wheeled and Gestapo just wouldn't break.

Delegate, a two-time stakes winner at the meeting, set the pace by a narrow margin while Snider rated Citation right alongside, waiting to make his stretch move. Once they straightened for home, Citation shot ahead and imposed his will upon his older rival without appearing to be fully extended.

Armed, well back in fifth place until they rounded the bend, then began to make up ground. Showing some of the dash that made him 1947 horse of the year, the veteran charged up on the outside in the drive to the wire and barely missed the place.

Western Swimmers Beat Central

Western's swimming team defeated Central, 32-25, yesterday at the Central pool in the first local interhigh league meet in six years.

Two pool records were set. Stan Tinkham of Western set a 100-yard backstroke mark of 1:08.5. In the 150-yard medley relay, the Central team of Ken Brown, Ed Bezzani and Don Brown set a new standard of 1:32.0.

50-Yard free style—Davies (W), Dutton (C), Abee (C)—0:26.0.
100-Yard breaststroke—Eaton (W), Bezzani (C), Raysaaz (C)—1:21.1.

Central Wins, 53-50, From A. U. Frosh

Central won its twelfth victory in 15 games yesterday when it nosed out the American University freshmen, 53-50, at the Central gym.

The victors had a much easier time winning than the score indicates. Central held a 28-21 halftime lead and was still in front by 7 points at the end of the third period.

Guard Jim Pantos tied for scoring honors with Bob Kranking of the Frosh. Each tossed in 19 points. Central's Hal Sponsler contributed 13 points before he left the game on fouls in the third period.

Across the Nation

You Can't Beat the Horses—Even If One Runs Over You

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—A jury refused to award damages today to Philip Bernard Alaimo, who claimed he was run down by a horse that finished 20 lengths behind the field in a race at Marlboro track, September 14, 1946.

Alaimo had sued the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association for $50,000. He testified the order of finish had been announced on the public address system when he and a companion started across the track.

The plaintiff said he was run down by Sir Mowlee with Jockey Charles Coffman aboard.

Coffman was one of the witnesses. He testified Sir Mowlee was so far behind because he was "tired."

The Winnah—Maybe

Nassau, Bahamas, Feb. 11 (AP). The 72-foot ketch Ticonderoga, sailed by Allen P. Carlisle, of Miami, was the first to cross the finish line today in the 184-mile Miami to Nassau yacht race.

The big boat finished at 12:45 p. m. (EST). The winner, however, was not immediately determined since the race is run on a handicap basis and the Ticonderoga because of its size gives away as much as six hours to some of the nine others in the event.

They Call It Reducing

Mesa, Ariz., Feb. 11 (AP).—Manager Mel Ott and 14 New York Giants baseball players will arrive at a mineral springs resort near here February 18 to take off excess poundage picked up during the winter.

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, said members of the advance guard were coming here "on their own" and that training would not begin until March 1 at nearby Phoenix.

Help Wanted

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 11 (AP).—The University of Nebraski is "toying with the idea" of seeking an interim appointee as athletic director and football coach to take over until the department can be reorganized, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson said today.

Both posts are open following the resignation Monday of Head Coach Berne Masterson, and the earlier retirement from the directorship of A. J. Lewandosski. His full time to being athletic business manager.

Asked if there had been any progress toward lining up prospects from the Nebraska posts, the Chancellor quipped: "We're thinking of going over the list of displaced persons in Europe next."

Can't Spend Advice

Mobile, Ala., Feb. 11 (AP).—Eddie Stanky said tonight he and Branch Rickey disagreed on how much he (Stanky) was worth to the Brooklyn Dodgers during 1948.

The fiery little Dodger second baseman, said he had been unable to come to terms with Rickey at a conference in Brooklyn. He added he was holding out for 33 1/3 per cent increase.

"I got about $40,000 worth of baseball knowledge from Mr. Rickey during a pleasant two-hour conversation with him but in the end all he offered me was a small raise," Stanky said.

Gen. Hines Quits Panama Position

Represented U. S. in Fruitless Talks For Continued Use of Airbases

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines as Ambassador to Panama.

Davis

Hines represented the State Department in negotiating an agreement with the Panamanian government last year for the continued American occupation of a number of defense installations in that republic, including a B-29 bomber base at Rio Hato.

However, the Panamanian Assembly unanimously rejected the agreement, and the United States promptly pulled out its troops from the leased sites.

Hines' resignation takes effect March 1. Mr. Truman thanked him "for the able manner in which you have represented your country" and wrote that he accepted the resignation with "regret."

Hines was Veterans' Administrator for 15 years before he was named Ambassador to Panama in 1946. He is a native of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Monnett B. Davis, 54-year-old career diplomat, was reported under consideration as Hines' successor at Panama.

Canal Study Object of Trip, Royall Says

Balboa, Canal Zone, Feb. 11 (AP). Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said today the possibility of an alternate canal was one of the considerations of his current trip in Central America and the Caribbean area.

Royall, who arrived last night, said one of the purposes of his trip is to consider "what my office and myself will do in recommending to Congress" on the question of building a sea level canal here or an alternate canal on some other part of the isthmus.

The question whether such a canal can be built outside the Canal Zone will be determined by the country involved, he said.

"The United States cannot assume or pretend to assume what a sovereign nation will do with its territory," Royall said.

The Secretary said he will discuss the entire question of Panama Canal defense with Secretary for Air W. Stuart Symington while he is here.

Royall was asked at his news conference if the United States is seeking bases in Panama on grounds of a threat of aggression.

"I know no immediate threat of aggression," he replied, "but in the present uncertain conditions we must be prepared to defend the Panama Canal at all times."

He denied a report published in the United States that his trip here was made over State Department protest, saying "the story is entirely incorrect."

Royall plans to leave here Sunday on the next phase of his trip. In connection with the canal routes proposed outside the canal zone, he said he already had visited Tehuantepec Isthmus in southern Mexico, flown along the proposed Nicaraguan route, and planned to fly over the Atrato River in the western Colombian isthmus.

Hand Grenade Price Drops As Costa Ricans Quiet Down

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 11 (AP). Political unrest subsided tonight in Costa Rica. The electoral tribunal said it would make no official announcement on Sunday's presidential election for two weeks.

Otilio Ulate Blanco, candidate of the antigovernment Union Nacional Party, was the apparent winner. During the day he issued a statement saying a plot was afoot to deprive him of victory.

Ulate a publisher, said he was informed the Communists and some of the military intended a coup d'etat. His party declared tonight "we are not going to deliver the country to the Communists."

Street demonstrations subsided. Hand grenades, which had been selling for $30 each, dropped to $10.

Unofficial results showed Ulate had a 10,000 vote lead over Rafael Calderon Guardia, supported by the government. The Communist Vanguardia Popular Party candidate, Humberto Gonzalez Cordero, trailed a poor third.

Tribunal members said a large part of the ballots from San Jose Province were destroyed by fire yesterday. Nearly half the votes cast Sunday came from San Jose.

Symphony Drive Reports to Be Made Today

Paul Calloway, organist and choirmaster of the Washington Cathedral, will be the principal speaker today when first full reports on the National Symphony's drive for $165,000 are made.

The reports are to be given at a luncheon for committee chairmen and volunteer workers at 12:15 at the Mayflower Hotel. The drive for the $165,000 sustaining fund was launched February 3, and is scheduled to close February 20.

Among guests who will attend the luncheon are Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Headquarters Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Forces; Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

WOMEN ARE GOOD "BUSINESSMEN."

WOMEN, in a comparatively few years, have made notable progress in most every line of endeavor, particularly art, science, government and business.

Many commercial establishments are now owned and operated by enterprising women. They possess a keen business sense.

They recognize the value and prestige of being affiliated with a modern banking institution.

They know the convenience and safety of a checking account and are by far the most appreciative users of this and other banking services.

Orchids to them, they are good "businessmen."

The Second National offers every banking facility: Checking and savings accounts . . . All types of loans . . . Trust services . . . Bank drafts and checks . . . Bank-by-mail and many others.

There are two conveniently located and completely staffed offices ready to serve you.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

Supreme Court Ruling Asked on Veterans' Job Preference

RULING: The Supreme Court has been asked to rule on the legality of Civil Service's reduction in force regulations that give superpreference to veterans.

And if the Court should overrule the commission, a completely new formula in making lay-offs from Federal agencies would have to be issued. The new system would give nonveteran career employes greater job protection.

The test case now before the highest court involves Earl Hilton, a long-time former employe of the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard. Hilton is not a veteran. He was fired while the yard retained veterans with fewer years of service. The yard acted in line with Civil Service regulations.

Hilton is acting for a large group of career nonveterans in challenging the regulations. The group has retained Charles Fahy, former Solicitor General and State Department general counsel, to represent them.

Specifically, the group is attacking the Civil Service rule which provides that in a reduction of force a veteran with a good or better efficiency rating is to be retained over nonveterans with greater seniority and better ratings.

Fahy and Hilton contend that Civil Service hasn't given proper consideration to length of service in its lay-off rules. They point to Section 12 of the Veterans Preference Act which states that length of service must be considered in making reductions.

The commission stand was sustained in both the District Court here and later in the Court of Appeals. However, the Court of Appeals, in its decision, did comment that the Civil Service Commission could have worked out some formula to give added consideration to length of service. It added, however, that the problem was most difficult and that it didn't feel justified in upsetting the commission position.

Civil Service lawyers feel sure the Supreme Court will uphold the lower courts and sustain their regulations. However, commission officials are studying possible revisions of their lay-off rules just in case they are upset.

JINGLE: Dorothy Vaughn, a clever Government girl, was written a PAY-DAY SONG which all of us can appreciate and enjoy. Here it is:

Oh, I am fond of every blond,
For them I have a yen.

PHA: The Administration is reported to have given up on finding a nationally known figure who will accept the job of commissioner of the Public Housing Administration. About a dozen people have turned down the post. It's now a good bet that JOHN T. EAGAN, the acting commissioner, will be nominated for the post. Egan has the support of Senator Wagner and other New York Democrats.

SEC: The Virginia congressional delegation is supporting BALDWIN B. BANE for the vacancy on Securities and Exchange Commission. Bane is chief of SEC's corporation finance division. Other possible appointees from within the agency are Edward H. Cashion and Paul R. Rowen.

BEP: Federal Employes Union No. 105, composed of women employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has gone on record in opposition to daylight saving time. The union, an affiliate of the National Federation of Federal Employes, nominated these officers: Nicie B. Ferrell, president; Mayne M. Davis, Elsie Hoover, Olive Greer and Hazel M. Gallenne, vice presidents; Gertrude M. McNally, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leo Williams, recording secretary; Gertrude Schellhorn, financial secretary; Minnie Stevens, guardian, and Veneta White and Mary Rosenthal, guides.

NOTES: Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) has again written Attorney General Tom C. Clark to inquire if the FBI has made a report on the left-wing United Public Workers and if that union is to be placed on his blacklist . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee will hold hearings soon on Chairman Langer's bill to give up to 60 days of maternity leave to female employes . . . Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee, will file the conference report on the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill in the House today.

COMMERCE has warned its 20 employes who were in the commodity market not to do it again. Each employe was sent a letter explaining the Government policy on speculations. None will be fired . . . VA: Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, a House Democratic leader, has urged the Appropriations Committee to consider new funds for the Veterans' Administration. He said that 250 employes are being fired from VA's Boston office and that services to veterans would be curtailed.

BOLLING: Eleven suggestions made by civilian employes of Bolling Field here during 1947 brought about savings of $13,500. The employes who received cash awards were: Jack McGuire, Lewis A. ## Reorganized Chest Favored By Citizens

Business Federation Joins in Backing Plan For United Services

Commendation for the plan of reorganization of the Community Chest of Washington and the Council of Social Agencies came yesterday from two large citizens groups.

They are the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Businessmen's Associations. The groups, which has scathingly criticized existing Chest operation, solidly backed the proposal to form the United Community Services of Washington under lay leadership.

A formal statement issued by Mrs. Ernest W. Howard late yesterday on behalf of both organizations follows:

"The two organizations . . . commend the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies for their proposed reorganization of the Chest.

"If these objectives are consummated as outlined in the press, the United Community Services of Washington will have made a major contribution toward the better understanding of the many conflicting viewpoints now existing, and can with confidence anticipate the support of all the citizenry of Washington for this worthwhile activity."

As proposed, the reorganization will bolster representation in welfare activities by city-wide organizations; give Washington citizens a voice in deciding what welfare projects are to be undertaken; and enlist community support for public welfare needs.

Shreve Assails 'Liberal Sneering' At American Way

"Capitalism and the liberal way of life are indivisible," Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared here yesterday.

In an address to the Rotary Club, at Hotel Mayflower, he blasted "so-called liberal circles" which "sneer at American institutions and . . . apologize for our way of life."

"In every conflict of view or interest between the United States and some other nation—especially if it happens to be Russia—they automatically give the other nation the benefit of the doubt," Shreve asserted.

"Theirs is an inside-out, upside-down patriotism devoid of logic and mighty close to psycholoical perversion."

Court Decides Who Will Burry Stabbing Victm

Litigation as to which undertaker should receive the remains of a stabbing victim was settled in District Court yesterday when Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts directed the body be released to Cornish & Cornish, 2121 10th st. nw.

The body of the stabbing victim, Thomas Atkins, 79, of 1536 5th st. nw., had been in District Morgue since his death January 29. Held in connection with the stabbing is Charles F. Ashton, no fixed address.

Although Atkins' will specified bureal by Cornish & Cornish, a niece, Mrs. Daisy Mann, 1511 Carolina st. nw., filed suit to have the body released to the McGuire Funeral Service, 1820 9th st. nw.

Pleas for Aid By Self-Denial Herald Lent

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

More self-denial to aid suffering humanity abroad was urged yesterday, as Ash Wednesday services launched Lent.

Washington Archdiocesan parochial school children heard a radio appeal from Pope Pius XII for contributions to the Bishops' Emergency Relief Campaign and War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. The national goal is 5 million dollars.

The Holy Father, in a message broadcast over the Mutual network to 3 million children, praised parochial school children for their help in last year's drive, and added:

"The Bishops are telling you once more of other little ones still in need. Pray for them every day for a little longer, especially when you gather around the Lord at mass and receive Him into your hearts at Holy Communion, and show them the world each day of Lent, by making the little sacrifice that hurts so little and helps so much, 'how these Christians love one another!' "

Head of Drive Here

Chairman of the Washington Archdiocesan phase oof the drive is the Rev. E. Jerome Winter, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Carl Heath Kopf said yesterday that Lent should be a time for church people to gain a new spiritual perspective of Washington.

We need to (spiritually) withdraw from Washington and see it as God sees it, with all of its conflicts and interests, its seeking and searching for something, its need of the Gospel of Christ," said Dr. Kopf, pastor of First Congregational Church.

He addressed the opening of a series of daily noonday Lenten services at the National Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw., sponsored by the Federation of Churches. He will speak again today at 12:05 p. m.

Joint Service Held

In Catholic churches, there was the customary blessing and distribution of ashes. Lutheran, Episcopal, and some Methodist churches held holy Communion services. Churches of the north Washington area sponsored a joint service last night at the National Memorial Church of God, 16th and Taylor sts. nw.

Beginning tomorrow, a series of Lenten services in French will be conducted on Fridays from 5:30 p. m. to 6:15 p. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, 16th and H sts. nw., by the Rev. Pierre C. Toureille, pastor of the Washington French Congregation.

The Rev. Robert J. Plumb, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, will address "Capitol Hill" Lenten services today and tomorrow from 12:10 p. m. to 12:30 p. m. at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st.

Bar Committee To Enter Fight On Court Rights

The District Bar Association has authorized a special committee to enter the court fight to defend the right of District residents to sue or be sued in Federal Courts anywhere in the Nation.

The committee, headed by Col. Julius I. Peyser, was unanimously voted authority to intercede as a friend of the court in litigation involving a Washington insurance company's appeal in the Supreme Court.

The case, a relatively minor suit by National Mutual Insurance Co. here, against the Tidewater Transfer Co. of Virginia, has been appealed on decisions of the United States District Court of Baltimore and the United States Court of Appeals in Richmond that the 1940 law permitting residents here to sue in Federal Courts outside the Capital City is unconstitutional.

Parents Eat School Lunch At Cheverly

Learn by Experience Just What Program Does for Children

Parents of Cheverly in nearby Maryland were given a "chow line" introduction to the school lunch program at the Cheverly-Tuxedo Elementary School last night.

About 75 mothers and dads took over the cafeteria in a "Dutch treat" supper and learned for themselves just what the program is doing for their children.

The supper, sponsored by the school's Parent-Teacher Association, featured a menu which school officials said was typical of those served daily at the school.

Complete with dessert the supper was served for 35 cents—5 cents more than the daily cost to children, who are required to pay extra for their dessert.

The menu included orange juice, creamed chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans, a raw cabbage and carrot salad, bread, butter and ice cream. The parents had the privilege of drinking coffee instead of milk, which is normally served with the school luncheon.

Following the supper, objectives of the school lunch program were outlined by Mrs. Gertrude Bowie of Rockville, State supervisor for the school lunch program.

City Sergeant, 79, Resigns 47-Year Alexandria Post

Robert H. Cox, 79, resigned yesterday as city sergeant of Alexandria, a post he had held for the past 47 years.

Cox

Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls accepted Cox's resignation "with regret" and named First Deputy City Sergt. Claude W. Fletcher to fill out the unexpired term.

Cox, Alexandria's oldest city employe from point of both service and age, was appointed to the post in 1901 to fill a vacancy and was elected to a full four-year term in 1902. No one opposed him for reelection thereafter.

The city sergeant has charge of the city jail, supervises conduct in Corporation Court and serves all legal papers.

In his resignation, Cox said he felt he was too old to carry out his duties properly. His term was to run until 1950.

Virginia Hog Sale Average Is $108

Winchester, Va., Feb. 11 (AP).—Lower prices for hogs in commodity markets were not reflected at the annual sale sponsored by the Virginia Purebred Swine Breeders' Association, Fred Stine, sales manager, reported today.

The average price was $108.70 per head, as compared with $95.65 per head at last year's sale. In all, 37 hogs were sold for a total of $4025. A top price of $175 was recorded, a Duroc Jarsey sow and a Hampshire sow each commanding that price.

City to Pay Honor Today To Lincoln

Truman to Witness Placing of Wreath At Foot of Statue Of Emancipator

A noon-hour ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial today will mark the 139th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

President Truman will witness the placing of a wreath by his military aides at the foot of the statue of the Great Emancipator.

The words of the Gettysburg Address on the wall of the memorial will be read by Slocum Kingsbury of the National Capital Chapter of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

A memorial concert by the Marine Band under the direction of Maj. William F. Santelmann will open the ceremony at 12:10 p. m. Wreaths will be laid by representatives of some 30 patriotic and civic groups. Services will conclude with the massing of the colors and the playing of the National Anthem.

Exercises at 10 A. M.

At 10 a. m. the National Federation of Temple Brotherhood will conduct exercises at the memorial. Students from Division 10 of the public schools will gather at the memorial at 10:30 a. m.

Division 13 students will meet at the same hour at the Anthony Bowen School, Delaware ave. and M st. sw., to hear Miss Jane Manning of Miner Teachers College speak on Lincoln. Girl cadets from Washington Vocational School will march to Lincoln Park, where a wreath will be laid on the Emancipation Monument.

The Polish-American Congress will hold services at 11:30 a. m. at the Kosciusko Statue in Lafayette Square in honor of both Lincoln and Kosciusko, hero of the American Revolution.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, will speak at Lincoln Day chapel services at 11:30 a. m. at American University. Tribute also will be paid to Mohandas K. Gandhi by Swami Premanada. Glee clubs of both schools will sing and American University will entertain Howard students at a luncheon following the program.

Two school groups will visit the Lincoln Museum, housed in Ford's Theater, 511 10th st. nw., where Lincoln was assassinated. Curtis Rensrow, assistant historian of the National Park Service, will recount events of the death of Lincoln and conduct a tour of exhibits in the museum and in the house across the street where Lincoln died.

Museum Visit Slated

Students of the Pierce School will visit the museum at 10 a. m. and students from Webster Americanization School at 12:30 p. m.

Exhibits of Lincoln manuscripts, including his autobiography and selections from the Robert Todd Lincoln collection, will be on view at the Library of Congress.

The George Peter Alexander Healy portrait of Lincoln, painted in 1860 shortly after Lincoln's first presidential election, will be exhibited at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Senator Alexander F. Wiley (R., Wis.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, will speak on "Lincoln" at a luncheon meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at 12:30 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel.

The Council for Civil Rights in the Nation's Capital will observe the day with a dinner at 6 p. m. at the Club Bali in honor of Edwin B. Henderson, director of physical education in the Negro schools, who has been a leader in the council's fight against racial discrimination.

Joseph McGarraghy, counsel for the Hotel Association of Washington, will speak at a Lincoln program of the Hotel Greeters Association at 8 p. m. at the Washington Hotel.

Maryland Legal Holiday

For the first time in its history, traditionally Democratic Maryland will observe the day as a legal holiday.

However, both in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties schools and most county offices will be open. Courts will closed.

Constitutional Issue Raised On Veto in Home-Rule Plan

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Would the Supreme Court let Congress set up a new "veto" system for handling District legislation?

Or would the Supreme Court decide that it was unconstitutional in a District home-rule setup for Congress to do anything but pass all major District legislation the way it does now?

This is one of the big issues touched off by the Auchincloss-Ball home-rule plan to transfer initiative in District legislation to an elected city council.

The plan calls for letting the council enact municipal ordinances and the annual city budget—and these are not involved in the constitutional issue.

Council Would Only Propose

But when it comes to major legislation the city council would propose, not enact, bills. Such proposals would go to the Capitol. Either House within 30 days could veto them. The President would have another 10 days to veto them. If there were no veto, the proposals would become law.

In eight days of hearings, the Joint Congressional Home Rule Committee heard this plan variously protested as unconstitutional and indorsed as a proper delegation of Congress' powers to legislate for the District.

Congress now passes District bills as it does any other bills. A District bill has to be approved by each House and by the President.

Under the home-rule plan, a District legislative proposal cleared by the council would become law if neither House of Congress nor the President disapproved it.

Experts Study Question

The question of whether the "veto" system of making District laws would be constitutional is now being reviewed by Capitol legislative experts, and they are expected to report soon to the home-rule committee about it.

That the proposed legislative machinery would produce constitutional District laws has been challenged by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and William D. Mitchell, former United States Attorney General.

The special report now being prepared is expected to support views presented at the hearings that the plan would be constitutional.

Power of Congress Questioned

West argued in part:

"To my mind the most important question raised by this bill is the power of Congress to change the method of legislating for the District. The Constitution provides that the Congress 'shall exercise exclusive legislation over the seat of Government.'

"It has certainly been held, of course, that Congress may delegate to a local government in the District the power to make municipal police regulations, and to pass other ordinances of a similar character. But there is a long line of cases in the District, headed by the Supreme Court, that the Congress cannot delegate to any officer or board or the government of the District legislative powers. That is a power which Congress must exercise itself."

Mitchell made an exhaustive survey of Court cases dealing with Congress' role in District affairs. He pointed out that the only time Congress delegated legislative powers to a District government was during the four-year territorial government set up in 1871. The District Courts held then that Congress could delegate to the District only powers which States delegate to municipalities, and the Supreme Court never ruled on the question.

Young Lawyers on Affirmative

Strong arguments that the home rule legislative plan would be constitutional were made by a group of young Washington lawyers who are members of the recently formed Washington Home Rule Committee.

W. Graham Claytor, jr., Lloyd N. Cutler, Gerhard A. Gesell, Samuel Spencer and A. Lloyd Symington made a lengthy analysis of court cases, and concluded Congress can properly delegate its power to legislate for the District to the council in the way proposed in the home rule bill. They added:

"Even if there might be some question as to whether Congress may deelgate its power absolutely and completely, no such question is presented by the home rule bill. Under the bill, Congress expressly reserves the right to disapprove any legislative proposal of the District Council, the right to change the (home rule) law itself and the right to legislate independently on any District matter at any time."

They said the bill could be interpreted as delegating no legislative power at all, and that the legislative system it sets up would be a proper exercise of Congress' power to make its own rules for handling legislation.

They also differed with Mitchell on his point about whether the veto of a District legislative proposal by one house would be constitutional. They said: "Under the Constitution each House has the power to block any legislative action by itself, and this is not equivalent to taking legislative action. The home rule bill merely retains for each house its power to block proposed legislation."

Conroy Gets Clean Slate From D. C. on Fire Charges

City Commissioners Accept Maher's Recommendation: No Disciplining

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The Commissioners yesterday forgave Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy for chargnig that Fire Chief Clement Murphy demoralized his department.

They accepted the recommendation of Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, who said Conroy had "probable cause" for his charges and should not be disciplined for making them.

Conroy, who assailed Murphy before a House District Subcommittee last June, subsequently was told by Commissioner John Russell Young he must prove all allegations against Murphy or face charges himself.

Maher, who prosecuted the Murphy case, told the Commissioners: "The fact that the information disclosed by Captain Conroy was sufficient upon which to base charges against Chief Murphy is, of itself, prima facie evidence of the existence of probable cause."

Conroy, head of the local firefighters' union, said he was "naturally gratified" at the Commissioners' decision.

Meanwhile, Chairman J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) of the House District Public Service Committee, before which Conroy made his original charges, said lawyers on the subcommittee would determine whether the legal procedure in the Murphy case was proper.

Beall's group held an executive conference yesterday with Maher and attorneys for Murphy and Conroy. Beall declined to comment after the conference, but said the group would meet again in a week or 10 days "to determine if there is anything we should do or can do."

Beall said the subcommittee had copies of both the Murphy trial record and the corporation counsel's investigation report, which has never been made public although it formed the basis for Murphy's trial.

The Commissioners' action regarding Conroy was the second move within a week to bring peace to the strife-torn Fire Department. Last Friday Chief Murphy named six of his outspoken critics to draw up a plan for rotating personnel, one of the major points of contention in the department.

$85,000 Donated For International Mental Congresss

The International Committee for Mental Hyfiene announced in New York yesterday that a total of $85,000 had been donated to the first International Congress on Mental Health, to be held in London in August.

New grants were received from the United States Public Health Service, $20,000; the Commonwealth Fund of New York, $20,000, and the Milbank Memorial Fund of New York, $10,000. Previously announced grants totaled $25,000.

Dr. Frank Fremont-Smith, chairman of the executive committee, said the coming congress may result in a world federation for mental health. He said an estimated 2000 psychiatrists, social workers and other social scientists are expeteced to attend from 44 countries.

Dr. Addison M. Duval, St. Elizabeths Hospital chief of staff and local arear coordinator for the congress, said five discussion groups have been set up at institutions in Greater Washington. They are among 83 throughout the country.

Lincoln's Moving Farewell to Springfield, 87 Years Ago Yesterday, Recalled on Birthday

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Eighty-seven years ago yesterday the gaunt man whose memory is revered more than that of any other American set out from Springfield, Ill., for his inauguration in Washington as President.

The story is crystallized in the small sheet of paper described by David C. Mearns, reference librarian of the Library of Congress, and editor of "The Lincoln Papers," which will be published this fall, as "one of the most moving documents" in the Robert Todd Lincoln collection at the Library.

Behind Abraham Lincoln lay his boyhood, his years as lawyer and member of Congress; ahead, as he knew, was "a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington."

Spoke on Train Platform

The man who four years later was to "belong to the ages" was not unmindful of the occasion.

He stood, bareheaded, silent on the back platform of the train for a few seconds. A tear rolled down his cheek. Then he spoke, simply, briefly to his Springfield neighbors and friends in the rain.

"No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man.

"Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return . . ."

Probably Written on Train

The single sheet of blue-lined notepaper on which Lincoln's farewell to Springfield is shakily recorded, Mearns says, "must have been written on the train after he left Springfield.

"It is said he was told he should write it out. You can almost hear the rumble of the wheels, the vibration of the train, as his pencil slides over the paper.

"After a few lines he turned his tablet over to his friend, John Nicolay, and dictated the rest of it.

"It must have been a harrowing morning for him, all told. Mary, his wife, was behaving badly. She didn't leave with him—they are supposed to have had a quarrel over an appointment he didn't make—but caught up with him in Indianapolis.

"Some of the Southern States had already seceded when he spoke, and in his address he called attention to the seriousness of the task confronting him.

Informative Correspondence

"It is significant, I think, that he was kept so well informed as to what was going on both in the South and in Congress. Seward, then a Senator, for example, sent him letters or enclosures which he didn't sign for fear they would fall into the hands of enemies.

"Several young Army officers were in correspondence with him, telling him who among their brother officers were Southern born or married to Southerners, and about the transfer of materiel to Southern arsenals.

"There are also confidential correspondence in the hand of Gen. Winfield Scott general in chief of the Army)—who upon Lincoln's inauguration said, "Thank God, we have a government"—in the collection."

Gen. Hines Quits Panama Position

Represented U. S. in Fruitless Talks For Continued Use of Airbases

President Truman yesterday accepted the resignation of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines as Ambassador to Panama.

Davis

Hines represented the State Department in negotiating an agreement with the Panamanian government last year for the continued American occupation of a number of defense installations in that republic, including a B-29 bomber base at Rio Hato.

However, the Panamanian Assembly unanimously rejected the agreement, and the United States promptly pulled out its troops from the leased sites.

Hines' resignation takes effect March 1. Mr. Truman thanked him "for the able manner in which you have represented your country" and wrote that he accepted the resignation with "regret."

Hines was Veterans' Administrator for 15 years before he was named Ambassador to Panama in 1946. He is a native of Salt Lake City, Utah.

Monnett B. Davis, 54-year-old career diplomat, was reported under consideration as Hines' successor at Panama.

Canal Study Object of Trip, Royall Says

Balboa, Canal Zone, Feb. 11 (AP).—Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall said today the possibility of an alternate canal was one of the considerations of his current trip in Central America and the Caribbean area.

Royall, who arrived last night, said one of the purposes of his trip is to consider "what my office and myself will do in recommending to Congress" on the question of building a sea level canal here or an alternate canal on some other part of the isthmus.

The question whether such a canal can be built outside the Canal Zone will be determined by the country involved, he said.

"The United States cannot assume or pretend to assume what a sovereign nation will do with its territory," Royall said.

The Secretary said he will discuss the entire question of Panama Canal defense with Secretary for Air W. Stuart Symington while he is here.

Royall was asked at his news conference if the United States is seeking bases in Panama on grounds of a threat of aggression.

"I know no immediate threat of aggression," he replied, "but in the present uncertain conditions we must be prepared to defend the Panama Canal at all times."

He denied a report published in the United States that his trip here was made over State Department protest, saying "the story is entirely incorrect."

Royall plans to leave here Sunday on the next phase of his trip. In connection with the canal routes proposed outside the canal zone, he said he already had visited Tehuantepec Isthmus in southern Mexico, flown along the proposed Nicaraguan route, and planned to fly over the Atrato River in the western Colombian isthmus.

Hand Grenade Price Drops As Costa Ricans Quiet Down

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 11 (AP).—Political unrest subsided tonight in Costa Rica. The electoral tribunal said it would make no official announcement on Sunday's presidential election for two weeks.

Otilio Ulate Blanco, candidate of the antigovernment Union Nacional Party, was the apparent winner. During the day he issued a statement saying a plot was afoot to deprive him of victory.

Ulate a publisher, said he was informed the Communists and some of the military intended a coup d'etat. His party declared tonight "we are not going to deliver the country to the Communists."

Street demonstrations subsided. Hand grenades, which had been selling for $30 each, dropped to $10.

Unofficial results showed Ulate had a 10,000 vote lead over Rafael Calderon Guardia, supported by the government. The Communist Vanguardia Popular Party candidate, Humberto Gonzalez Cordero, trailed a poor third.

Tribunal members said a large part of the ballots from San Jose Province were destroyed by fire yesterday. Nearly half the votes cast Sunday came from San Jose.

Symphony Drive Reports to Be Made Today

Paul Calloway, organist and choirmaster of the Washington Cathedral, will be the principal speaker today when first full reports on the National Symphony's drive for $165,000 are made.

The reports are to be given at a luncheon for committee chairmen and volunteer workers at 12:15 at the Mayflower Hotel. The drive for the $165,000 sustaining fund was launched February 3, and is scheduled to close February 20.

Among guests who will attend the luncheon are Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, Headquarters Chief of Staff, U. S. Air Forces; Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; Mrs. Fred M. Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Supreme Court Ruling Asked on Veterans' Job Preference

RULING: The Supreme Court has been asked to rule on the legality of Civil Service's reduction in force regulations that give super-preference to veterans.

And if the Court should overrule the commission, a completely new formula in making lay-offs from Federal agencies would have to be issued. The new system would give nonveteran career employes greater job protection.

The test case now before the highest court involves Earl Hilton, a long-time former employe of the Charleston (S. C.) Navy Yard. Hilton is not a veteran. He was fired while the yard retained veterans with fewer years of service. The yard acted in line with Civil Service regulations.

Hilton is acting for a large group of career nonveterans in challenging the regulations. The group has retained Charles Fahy, former Solicitor General and State Department general counsel, to represent them.

Specifically, the group is attacking the Civil Service rule which provides that in a reduction of force a veteran with a good or better efficiency rating is to be retained over nonveterans with greater seniority and better ratings.

Fahy and Hilton contend that Civil Service hasn't given proper consideration to length of service in its lay-off rules. They point to Section 12 of the Veterans Preference Act which states that length of service must be considered in making reductions.

The commission stand was sustained in both the District Court here and later in the Court of Appeals. However, the Court of Appeals, in its decision, did comment that the Civil Service Commission could have worked out some formula to give added consideration to length of service. It added, however, that the problem was most difficult and that it didn't feel justified in upsetting the commission position.

Civil Service lawyers feel sure the Supreme Court will uphold the lower courts and sustain their regulations. However, commission officials are studying possible revisions of their lay-off rules just in case they are upset.

JINGLE: Dorothy Vaughn, a clever Government girl, was written a PAY-DAY SONG which all of us can appreciate and enjoy. Here it is:

Oh, I am fond of every blond,
For them I have a yen.
And all brunettes make lovely pets
(Exceptions now and then).
Of Girls galore that I adore,
There's one who'll never vex;
The lass I love all else above—
The girl who brings the checks.

PHA: The Administration is reported to have given up on finding a nationally known figure who will accept the job of commissioner of the Public Housing Administration. About a dozen people have turned down the post. It's now a good bet that JOHN T. EAGAN, the acting commissioner, will be nominated for the post. Egan has the support of Senator Wagner and other New York Democrats.

SEC: The Virginia congressional delegation is supporting BALDWIN B. BANE for the vacancy on Securities and Exchange Commission. Bane is chief of SEC's corporation finance division. Other possible appointees from within the agency are Edward H. Cashion and Paul R. Rowen.

BEP: Federal Employes Union No. 105, composed of women employes in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has gone on record in opposition to daylight saving time. The union, an affiliate of the National Federation of Federal Employes, nominated these officers: Nicie B. Ferrell, president; Mayne M. Davis, Elsie Hoover, Olive Greer and Hazel M. Gallenne, vice presidents; Gertrude M. McNally, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Leo Williams, recording secretary; Gertrude Schellhorn, financial secretary; Minnie Stevens, guardian, and Veneta White and Mary Rosenthal, guides.

NOTES: Representative Busbey (R., Ill.) has again written Attorney General Tom C. Clark to inquire if the FBI has made a report on the left-wing United Public Workers and if that union is to be placed on his blacklist . . . The Senate Civil Service Committee will hold hearings soon on Chairman Langer's bill to give up to 60 days of maternity leave to female employes . . . Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee, will file the conference report on the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill in the House today.

COMMERCE has warned its 20 employes who were in the commodity market not to do it again. Each employe was sent a letter explaining the Government policy on speculations. None will be fired . . . VA: Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, a House Democratic leader, has urged the Appropriations Committee to consider new funds for the Veterans' Administration. He said that 250 employes are being fired from VA's Boston office and that services to veterans would be curtailed.

BOLLING: Eleven suggestions made by civilian employes of Bolling Field here during 1947 brought about savings of $13,500. The employes who received cash awards were: Jack McGuire, Lewis A. White, Henry Major, P. J. Phillips, Albert Manzaniello, Irwin W. Evans, Eugene Brunk, Samuel Levy, Nelson Garner and Harry Martin.

Reorganized Chest Favored By Citizens

Business Federation Joins in Backing Plan For United Services

Commendation for the plan of reorganization of the Community Chest of Washington and the Council of Social Agencies came yesterday from two large citizens groups.

They are the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Businessmen's Associations. The groups, which has scathingly criticized existing Chest operation, solidly backed the proposal to form the United Community Services of Washington under lay leadership.

A formal statement issued by Mrs. Ernest W. Howard late yesterday on behalf of both organizations follows:

"The two organizations . . . commend the Community Chest and the Council of Social Agencies for their proposed reorganization of the Chest.

"If these objectives are consummated as outlined in the press, the United Community Services of Washington will have made a major contribution toward the better understanding of the many conflicting viewpoints now existing, and can with confidence anticipate the support of all the citizenry of Washington for this worthwhile activity."

As proposed, the reorganization will bolster representation in welfare activities by city-wide organizations; give Washington citizens a voice in deciding what welfare projects are to be undertaken; and enlist community support for public welfare needs.

Shreve Assails 'Liberal Sneering' At American Way

"Capitalism and the liberal way of life are indivisible," Earl O. Shreve, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared here yesterday.

In an address to the Rotary Club, at Hotel Mayflower, he blasted "so-called liberal circles" which "sneer at American institutions and . . . apologize for our way of life."

"In every conflict of view or interest between the United States and some other nation—especially if it happens to be Russia—they automatically give the other nation the benefit of the doubt," Shreve asserted.

"Theirs is an inside-out, upside-down patriotism devoid of logic and mighty close to psychololical perversion."

Court Decides Who Will Burry Stabbing Victm

Litigation as to which undertaker should receive the remains of a stabbing victim was settled in District Court yesterday when Associate Justice F. Dickinson Letts directed the body be released to Cornish & Cornish, 2121 10th st. nw.

The body of the stabbing victim, Thomas Atkins, 79, of 1536 5th st. nw., had been in District Morgue since his death January 29. Held in connection with the stabbing is Charles F. Ashton, no fixed address.

Although Atkins' will specified bureal by Cornish & Cornish, a niece, Mrs. Daisy Mann, 1511 Carolina st. nw., filed suit to have the body released to the McGuire Funeral Service, 1820 9th st. nw.

Pleas for Aid By Self-Denial Herald Lent

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

More self-denial to aid suffering humanity abroad was urged yesterday, as Ash Wednesday services launched Lent.

Washington Archdiocesan parochial school children heard a radio appeal from Pope Pius XII for contributions to the Bishops' Emergency Relief Campaign and War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. The national goal is 5 million dollars.

The Holy Father, in a message broadcast over the Mutual network to 3 million children, praised parochial school children for their help in last year's drive, and added:

"The Bishops are telling you once more of other little ones still in need. Pray for them every day for a little longer, especially when you gather around the Lord at mass and receive Him into your hearts at Holy Communion, and show them the world each day of Lent, by making the little sacrifice that hurts so little and helps so much, 'how these Christians love one another!' "

Head of Drive Here

Chairman of the Washington Archdiocesan phase oof the drive is the Rev. E. Jerome Winter, pastor of St. Stephen's Church, 25th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Meanwhile, the Rev. Carl Heath Kopf said yesterday that Lent should be a time for church people to gain a new spiritual perspective of Washington.

We need to (spiritually) withdraw from Washington and see it as God sees it, with all of its conflicts and interests, its seeking and searching for something, its need of the Gospel of Christ," said Dr. Kopf, pastor of First Congregational Church.

He addressed the opening of a series of daily noonday Lenten services at the National Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw., sponsored by the Federation of Churches. He will speak again today at 12:05 p. m.

Joint Service Held

In Catholic churches, there was the customary blessing and distribution of ashes. Lutheran, Episcopal, and some Methodist churches held holy Communion services. Churches of the north Washington area sponsored a joint service last night at the National Memorial Church of God, 16th and Taylor sts. nw.

Beginning tomorrow, a series of Lenten services in French will be conducted on Fridays from 5:30 p. m. to 6:15 p. m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, 16th and H sts. nw., by the Rev. Pierre C. Toureille, pastor of the Washington French Congregation.

The Rev. Robert J. Plumb, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, will address "Capitol Hill" Lenten services today and tomorrow from 12:10 p. m. to 12:30 p. m. at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st.

Bar Committee To Enter Fight On Court Rights

The District Bar Association has authorized a special committee to enter the court fight to defend the right of District residents to sue or be sued in Federal Courts anywhere in the Nation.

The committee, headed by Col. Julius I. Peyser, was unanimously voted authority to intercede as a friend of the court in litigation involving a Washington insurance company's appeal in the Supreme Court.

The case, a relatively minor suit by National Mutual Insurance Co. here, against the Tidewater Transfer Co. of Virginia, has been appealed on decisions of the United States District Court of Baltimore and the United States Court of Appeals in Richmond that the 1940 law permitting residents here to sue in Federal Courts outside the Capital City is unconstitutional.

Parents Eat School Lunch At Cheverly

Learn by Experience Just What Program Does for Children

Parents of Cheverly in nearby Maryland were given a "chow line" introduction to the school lunch program at the Cheverly-Tuxedo Elementary School last night.

About 75 mothers and dads took over the cafeteria in a "Dutch treat" supper and learned for themselves just what the program is doing for their children.

The supper, sponsored by the school's Parent-Teacher Association, featured a menu which school officials said was typical of those served daily at the school.

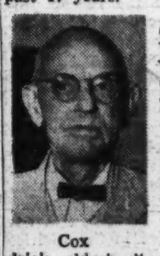

Complete with dessert the supper was served for 35 cents—5 cents more than the daily cost to children, who are required to pay extra for their dessert.

The menu included orange juice, creamed chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans, a raw cabbage and carrot salad, bread, butter and ice cream. The parents had the privilege of drinking coffee instead of milk, which is normally served with the school luncheon.

Following the supper, objectives of the school lunch program were outlined by Mrs. Gertrude Bowie of Rockville, State supervisor for the school lunch program.

City Sergeant, 79, Resigns 47-Year Alexandria Post

Robert H. Cox, 79, resigned yesterday as city sergeant of Alexandria, a post he had held for the past 47 years.

Cox

Corporation Court Judge William P. Woolls accepted Cox's resignation "with regret" and named First Deputy City Sergt. Claude W. Fletcher to fill out the unexpired term.

Cox, Alexandria's oldest city employe from point of both service and age, was appointed to the post in 1901 to fill a vacancy and was elected to a full four-year term in 1902. No one opposed him for reelection thereafter.

The city sergeant has charge of the city jail, supervises conduct in Corporation Court and serves all legal papers.

In his resignation, Cox said he felt he was too old to carry out his duties properly. His term was to run until 1950.

Virginia Hog Sale Average Is $108

Winchester, Va., Feb. 11 (AP).—Lower prices for hogs in commodity markets were not reflected at the annual sale sponsored by the Virginia Purebred Swine Breeders' Association, Fred Stine, sales manager, reported today.

The average price was $108.70 per head, as compared with $95.65 per head at last year's sale. In all, 37 hogs were sold for a total of $4025. A top price of $175 was recorded, a Duroc Jarsey sow and a Hampshire sow each commanding that price.

He did it, he told Judge Nadine Lane Gallagher in Municipal Court yesterday, to hide details of a knife fracas with his girl friend—an altercation that sent him to Sibley Hospital Tuesday night.

He was ordered rehospitalized for his cuts before going to jail.

Truman to Witness Placing of Wreath At Foot of Statue Of Emancipator

A noon-hour ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial today will mark the 139th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

President Truman will witness the placing of a wreath by his military aides at the foot of the statue of the Great Emancipator.

The words of the Gettysburg Address on the wall of the memorial will be read by Slocum Kingsbury of the National Capital Chapter of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

A memorial concert by the Marine Band under the direction of Maj. William F. Santelmann will open the ceremony at 12:10 p. m. Wreaths will be laid by representatives of some 30 patriotic and civic groups. Services will conclude with the massing of the colors and the playing of the National Anthem.

Exercises at 10 A. M.

At 10 a. m. the National Federation of Temple Brotherhood will conduct exercises at the memorial. Students from Division 10 of the public schools will gather at the memorial at 10:30 a. m.

Division 13 students will meet at the same hour at the Anthony Bowen School, Delaware ave. and M st. sw., to hear Miss Jane Manning of Miner Teachers College speak on Lincoln. Girl cadets from Washington Vocational School will march to Lincoln Park, where a wreath will be laid on the Emancipation Monument.

The Polish-American Congress will hold services at 11:30 a. m. at the Kosciusko Statue in Lafayette Square in honor of both Lincoln and Kosciusko, hero of the American Revolution.

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, will speak at Lincoln Day chapel services at 11:30 a. m. at American University. Tribute also will be paid to Mohandas K. Gandhi by Swami Premanada. Glee clubs of both schools will sing and American University will entertain Howard students at a luncheon following the program.

Two school groups will visit the Lincoln Museum, housed in Ford's Theater, 511 10th st. nw., where Lincoln was assassinated. Curtis Rensrow, assistant historian of the National Park Service, will recount events of the death of Lincoln and conduct a tour of exhibits in the museum and in the house across the street where Lincoln died.

Museum Visit Slated

Students of the Pierce School will visit the museum at 10 a. m. and students from Webster Americanization School at 12:30 p. m.

Exhibits of Lincoln manuscripts, including his autobiography and selections from the Robert Todd Lincoln collection, will be on view at the Library of Congress.

The George Peter Alexander Healy portrait of Lincoln, painted in 1860 shortly after Lincoln's first presidential election, will be exhibited at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Senator Alexander F. Wiley (R., Wis.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, will speak on "Lincoln" at a luncheon meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club at 12:30 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel.

The Council for Civil Rights in the Nation's Capital will observe the day with a dinner at 6 p. m. at the Club Bali in honor of Edwin B. Henderson, director of physical education in the Negro schools, who has been a leader in the council's fight against racial discrimination.

Joseph McGarraghy, counsel for the Hotel Association of Washington, will speak at a Lincoln program of the Hotel Greeters Association at 8 p. m. at the Washington Hotel.

Maryland Legal Holiday

For the first time in its history, traditionally Democratic Maryland will observe the day as a legal holiday.

However, both in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties schools and most county offices will be open. Courts will closed.

Constitutional Issue Raised On Veto in Home-Rule Plan

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Would the Supreme Court let Congress set up a new "veto" system for handling District legislation?

Or would the Supreme Court decide that it was unconstitutional in a District home-rule setup for Congress to do anything but pass all major District legislation the way it does now?

This is one of the big issues touched off by the Auchincloss-Ball home-rule plan to transfer initiative in District legislation to an elected city council.

The plan calls for letting the council enact municipal ordinances and the annual city budget—and these are not involved in the constitutional issue.

Council Would Only Propose

But when it comes to major legislation the city council would propose, not enact, bills. Such proposals would go to the Capitol. Either House within 30 days could veto them. The President would have another 10 days to veto them. If there were no veto, the proposals would become law.

In eight days of hearings, the Joint Congressional Home Rule Committee heard this plan variously protested as unconstitutional and indorsed as a proper delegation of Congress' powers to legislate for the District.

Congress now passes District bills as it does any other bills. A District bill has to be approved by each House and by the President.

Under the home-rule plan, a District legislative proposal cleared by the council would become law if neither House of Congress nor the President disapproved it.

Experts Study Question

The question of whether the "veto" system of making District laws would be constitutional is now being reviewed by Capitol legislative experts, and they are expected to report soon to the home-rule committee about it.

That the proposed legislative machinery would produce constitutional District laws has been challenged by Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and William D. Mitchell, former United States Attorney General.

The special report now being prepared is expected to support views presented at the hearings that the plan would be constitutional.

Power of Congress Questioned

West argued in part:

"To my mind the most important question raised by this bill is the power of Congress to change the method of legislating for the District. The Constitution provides that the Congress 'shall exercise exclusive legislation over the seat of Government.'

"It has certainly been held, of course, that Congress may delegate to a local government in the District the power to make municipal police regulations, and to pass other ordinances of a similar character. But there is a long line of cases in the District, headed by the Supreme Court, that the Congress cannot delegate to any officer or board or the government of the District legislative powers. That is a power which Congress must exercise itself."

Mitchell made an exhaustive survey of Court cases dealing with Congress' role in District affairs. He pointed out that the only time Congress delegated legislative powers to a District government was during the four-year territorial government set up in 1871. The District Courts held then that Congress could delegate to the District only powers which States delegate to municipalities, and the Supreme Court never ruled on the question.

Young Lawyers on Affirmative

Strong arguments that the home rule legislative plan would be constitutional were made by a group of young Washington lawyers who are members of the recently formed Washington Home Rule Committee.

W. Graham Claytor, jr., Lloyd N. Cutler, Gerhard A. Gesell, Samuel Spencer and A. Lloyd Symington made a lengthy analysis of court cases, and concluded Congress can properly delegate its power to legislate for the District to the council in the way proposed in the home rule bill. They added:

"Even if there might be some question as to whether Congress may deelgate its power absolutely and completely, no such question is presented by the home rule bill. Under the bill, Congress expressly reserves the right to disapprove any legislative proposal of the District Council, the right to change the (home rule) law itself and the right to legislate independently on any District matter at any time."

They said the bill could be interpreted as delegating no legislative power at all, and that the legislative system it sets up would be a proper exercise of Congress' power to make its own rules for handling legislation.

They also differed with Mitchell on his point about whether the veto of a District legislative proposal by one house would be constitutional. They said: "Under the Constitution each House has the power to block any legislative action by itself, and this is not equivalent to taking legislative action. The home rule bill merely retains for each house its power to block proposed legislation."

Conroy Gets Clean Slate From D. C. on Fire Charges

City Commissioners Accept Maher's Recommendation: No Disciplining

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

The Commissioners yesterday forgave Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy for chargnig that Fire Chief Clement Murphy demoralized his department.

They accepted the recommendation of Daniel B. Maher, special assistant corporation counsel, who said Conroy had "probable cause" for his charges and should not be disciplined for making them.

Conroy, who assailed Murphy before a House District Subcommittee last June, subsequently was told by Commissioner John Russell Young he must prove all allegations against Murphy or face charges himself.

Maher, who prosecuted the Murphy case, told the Commissioners: "The fact that the information disclosed by Captain Conroy was sufficient upon which to base charges against Chief Murphy is, of itself, prima facie evidence of the existence of probable cause."

Conroy, head of the local firefighters' union, said he was "naturally gratified" at the Commissioners' decision.

Meanwhile, Chairman J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) of the House District Public Service Committee, before which Conroy made his original charges, said lawyers on the subcommittee would determine whether the legal procedure in the Murphy case was proper.

Beall's group held an executive conference yesterday with Maher and attorneys for Murphy and Conroy. Beall declined to comment after the conference, but said the group would meet again in a week or 10 days "to determine if there is anything we should do or can do."

Beall said the subcommittee had copies of both the Murphy trial record and the corporation counsel's investigation report, which has never been made public although it formed the basis for Murphy's trial.

The Commissioners' action regarding Conroy was the second move within a week to bring peace to the strife-torn Fire Department. Last Friday Chief Murphy named six of his outspoken critics to draw up a plan for rotating personnel, one of the major points of contention in the department.

$85,000 Donated For International Mental Congresss

The International Committee for Mental Hyfiene announced in New York yesterday that a total of $85,000 had been donated to the first International Congress on Mental Health, to be held in London in August.

New grants were received from the United States Public Health Service, $20,000; the Commonwealth Fund of New York, $20,000, and the Milbank Memorial Fund of New York, $10,000. Previously announced grants totaled $25,000.

Dr. Frank Fremont-Smith, chairman of the executive committee, said the coming congress may result in a world federation for mental health. He said an estimated 2000 psychiatrists, social workers and other social scientists are expetced to attend from 44 countries.

Dr. Addison M. Duval, St. Elizabeths Hospital chief of staff and local arear coordinator for the congress, said five discussion groups have been set up at institutions in Greater Washington. They are among 83 throughout the country.

Lincoln's Moving Farewell to Springfield, 87 Years Ago Yesterday, Recalled on Birthday

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Eighty-seven years ago yesterday the gaunt man whose memory is revered more than that of any other American set out from Springfield, Ill., for his inauguration in Washington as President.

The story is crystallized in the small sheet of paper described by David C. Mearns, reference librarian of the Library of Congress, and editor of "The Lincoln Papers," which will be published this fall, as "one of the most moving documents" in the Robert Todd Lincoln collection at the Library.

Behind Abraham Lincoln lay his boyhood, his years as lawyer and member of Congress; ahead, as he knew, was "a task before me greater than that which rested upon Washington."

Spoke on Train Platform

The man who four years later was to "belong to the ages" was not unmindful of the occasion.

He stood, bareheaded, silent on the back platform of the train for a few seconds. A tear rolled down his cheek. Then he spoke, simply, briefly to his Springfield neighbors and friends in the rain.

"No one, not in my situation, can appreciate my feeling of sadness at this parting. To this place, and the kindness of these people, I owe everything. Here I have lived a quarter of a century, and have passed from a young to an old man.

"Here my children have been born, and one is buried. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return . . ."

Probably Written on Train

The single sheet of blue-lined notepaper on which Lincoln's farewell to Springfield is shakily recorded, Mearns says, "must have been written on the train after he left Springfield.

"It is said he was told he should write it out. You can almost hear the rumble of the wheels, the vibration of the train, as his pencil slides over the paper.

"After a few lines he turned his tablet over to his friend, John Nicolay, and dictated the rest of it.

"It must have been a harrowing morning for him, all told. Mary, his wife, was behaving badly. She didn't leave with him—they are supposed to have had a quarrel over an appointment he didn't make—but caught up with him in Indianapolis.

"Some of the Southern States had already seceded when he spoke, and in his address he called attention to the seriousness of the task confronting him.

Informative Correspondence

"It is significant, I think, that he was kept so well informed as to what was going on both in the South and in Congress. Seward, then a Senator, for example, sent him letters or enclosures which he didn't sign for fear they would fall into the hands of enemies.

"Several young Army officers were in correspondence with him, telling him who among their brother officers were Southern born or married to Southerners, and about the transfer of materiel to Southern arsenals.

"There are also confidential correspondence in the hand of Gen. Winfield Scott general in chief of the Army)—who upon Lincoln's inauguration said, "Thank God, we have a government"—in the collection."

Ripping Cop's Coat Costs Cyclist $25

No one can rip the pockets on Policeman D. E. Huffman's brand new, $47.50 service coat and get away with it—not even Calvin Coolidge Justbuddy.

Justbuddy, 18, of 619 Virginia ave. se., was fined $25 by Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday on charges of riding a bicycle on the sidewalk and assaulting a policeman.

Huffman remonstrated gently with Justbuddy about riding the bike on the sidewalk, he told the court. When the boy persisted, Huffman called him back and in the arrest procedure, he said, Justbuddy ripped the pockets on the coat.

Justbuddy said the policeman had accused him of having a stolen bicycle and that he made no resistance until Huffman struck at him.

Author to Give New View of Capital's Past

Washingtonians who think they know their city well may get a new view of it from Charles Hurd, author of "Washington Cavalcade," and one of four writers who will appear at The Washington Post book and luncheon Wednesday.

Hurd

For Hurd's book, which he will discuss at the luncheon, covers Washington for 147 years, from the time the city was first thought of in a deal between Jefferson and Hamilton, through its slow pre-Civil War days and later adolescence to its stature today as a world capital.

"Washington Cavalcade" is Hurd's third book. Others are "The White House: A Biography" and "The Veterans Program." Hurd has ben a Washington resident since 1929 as a member of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times. During that time, however, he spent some time in the Times' London office and worked for Newsweek Magazine for a while.

Before he came to Washington, Hurd was at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, then migrated gradually to the Associated Press in Chicago and the associate editorship of Liberty Magazine in New York. He covered the White House for the Times for six years.

The purpose of The Washington Post's book and author luncheons is to make it possible for Washington book lovers to see, hear and meet the authors of their favorite volumes. Other speakers at the luncheon, which will take place at the Statler Hotel, are Agnes Sligh Turnbull, author of "The Bishop Mantle," Michael F. Keilly, coauthor of "Reilly and the White House," and James Warner Bellah, whose last book was "Ward 20" and whose "Irregular Gentleman" will be out the day after the luncheon.

Tickets for the luncheon are available at book and department stores.

Arlington Farms Girl Accosted: Soldier Arrested

A 22-year-old soldier was held by Army authorities at Fort Myer last night in connection with an attempted attack on an Arlington Farms girl at midnight Tuesday.

He is T/5 George L. Barrow, of Texas, who was linked to the case by a lipstick-stained glove found at the place on Ridge rd, near the Farms where the girl was accosted. The Army's criminal investigation division said Barrow was found in a cafeteria with only one glove and identified the missing one as his.

According to Col. W. F. Nee, of the Military District of Washington, the girl struggled free when a soldier grabbed at her, ran to a nearby residence hall and reported to PBA building Guard L. C. O'Neal.

Gen. Fechet, Former Air Chief, Dies

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, USA, retired, old-time Army flier and former chief of the Air Corps, died Tuesday night at Walter Reed Hospital. He was 70 years old.

A veteran of three wars, General Fechet headed the Air Corps in 1927, after succeeding the late stormy petrel of early Army aviation, Brig. Gen. William (Billy) Mitchell in 1925 as assistant chief.

He had been a patient at Walter Reed since last November.

The son of Edmond Gustav and Rachel Morrow Fechet, he was born August 21, 1877, at Fort Ringgold, Tex., where his father was a captain in the Eighth Cavalry. The late general, while studying engineering at the University of Nebraska, enlisted for service in the Spanish-American War. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1900.

Later he served in the Philippines, where he saw action in the insurrection, and in Hawaii. He also went with General Pershing's expedition into Mexico in 1916.

Wounded in Cuba

General Fechet was seriously wounded in the battle of San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War, while a member of the Sixth Cavalry. He transferred to the fledgling Air Corps in 1917, and served in it until his retirement in 1931. With the outbreak of World War II, he voluntarily returned to active duty here as head of the Air Force promotions board.

After transferring to the Air Corps, General Fechet was commanding officer of Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., from 1918 to 1920; chief of training and war plans division, office of chief of air service, 1920-1924; commanding officer of training fields and the Third Attack Group, Kelly Field, 1924-25.

He was then appointed assistant chief of the Air Corps, a post he held until taking over the top job in 1927. During his five-year command, Army aviation expanded under plans he had drawn up while assistant chief.

Won Rifle Honors

An excellent marksman, General Fechet won the Hale Medal at Camp Perry in 1908 by hitting the bulls-eye 16 times in a row in rifle competition at 600 yards.

A graduate of the Infantry and Cavalry School at Fort Leavenworth in 1904( he also held an honorary degree of Doctor of Aviation Science from Pennsylvania Military College. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for his service in the last war.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Catherine Luhn Fechet, of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., General Fechet is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Catherine F. Bonner, of the same address, and Mrs. Mary Cardell, of 13190 N. Greenbrier st., Arlington.

Graveside services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in Arlington Cemetery.

Maryland Highway Loads May Be Cut

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—Legal load limits on Maryland highways may be temporarily reduced, in order to prevent damage from early thaws.

Walter Hopkins, deputy chief engineer of the roads commission, said subgrades had frozen to a considerable depth and that serious damage could follow a sudden break in the cold unless heavy vehicles were excluded from certain areas.

The commission said all district engineers have been asked to report at once on any roads they consider vulnerable.

Virginia imposed load limits on some highways Monday.

James M. Hall Rites Are Set; Church Leader

Funeral services for James M. Hall, 89, church leader for half a century, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, 16th and Lamont sts. nw. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Hall died Tuesday at his home, 1403 Webster st. nw., after a brief illness.

A lifelong resident of the Washington area, he was born near Beltsville, Md., and lived in Hyattsville for 25 years before moving to Washington in 1922.

While in Hyattsville he was superintendent of the Sunday School of the Hyattsville Methodist Episcopal Church for 25 years. He conducted a young men's class at the Francis Asbury Church for 24 years.

A farmer in his early years, Mr. Hall later operated a tinning and roofing business until his retirement a few years ago.

He is survived by two sons, J. Millard Hall and George T. Hall, both of Washington; four daughters, Mrs. Elsie A. Woolf and Miss Ruth L. Hall, both of Washington; Mrs. Esther V. Beckett, Denver, Colo., and Mrs. Margaret L. Harris, Baltimore; nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Joseph A. Billingsley

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 11 (AP). Joseph Addison Billingsley, 58, Commonwealth's Attorney of King George County, for 32 years, died in Mary Washington Hospital here this afternoon.

He had been in poor health for several months and a patient at the hospital for the past two weeks.

A native of King George County he was educated at Fork Union Military Academy and Richmond College. Admitted to the Virginia bar in 1912, he served as the county's commonwealth's attorney continuously since 1916. He was a member of the Virginia Fisheries Commission and for many years chairman of the county Democratic committee.

He is survived by his wife, the former Miss Gertrude Griffin, and one son, Joseph A. Billingsley, jr., both of King George County.

Sergei Eisenstein

Moscow, Feb. 11 (AP).—Sergei Eisenstein, famous Soviet movie director, was reported to have died here today.

Although one of Russia's most celebrated figures in the motion picture field, Eisenstein came in for ideological criticism himself two years ago.

The magazine Culture and Life accused him of producing films insufficiently akin to the Soviet requirement of art and contrary to Soviet interpretation of history.

A year later, writing in the same magazine, he said Hollywood was administering "spiritual poison" to the people of the United States.

He acknowledged American movies to be technically superior, but said they were made up of the "inseparable characteristics of the rapacious, unjust imperialist system."

Among Eisenstein's films were "The Strike," "Potemkin," "Ten Days that Shook the World," "The General Line," "The Silver Lining," "Thunder Over Mexico," and "Alexander Nevsky."

Eisenstein who was born in 1898, worked in Paris and Hollywood. He was awarded the Order of Lenin in 1939 and the Stalin Prize in 1941.

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—John W. Backer, 57, assistant treasurer of the Baltimore National Bank, died at his home yesterday after a short illness. He is survived by his wife and two children.

William H. Jenkins

New York, Feb. 11 (AP).—William H. Jenkins, 56, public relations executive and former newspaperman, died of a heart ailment at his home here today.

Jenkins, a native of Franklin, Va., received his education there and at Wake Forest College. Shortly after graduation, he operated the Tidewater (Va.) News and later joined the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot as managing editor.

He left newspaper work to become manager of the publicity department of N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, advertising agency. Then he became publicity director for Young & Rubicam, Inc., New York, another advertising agency, serving there for 16 years. He established that agency's bureau of industrial relations.

In 1947, Jenkins became executive vice president of the Earle Ferris Co., Inc., public relations firm.

William I. Davis

Tazewell, Tenn., Feb. 11 (U.P.). William I. Davis, sr., chairman of the Tennessee Republican executive committee and one-time assistant United States Attorney-general, died today. He was 78.

Davis, a native of Kansas, came to Tennessee more than 40 years ago. He was assistant attorney-general in the administration of President William Howard Taft.

Parties Honor Diplomats, Brides-to-Be

By Marie McNair

THE CUBAN AMBASSADOR, Dr. Guillermo de Belt, got back yesterday from a brief visit to Havana, just in time for the dinner last night at the embassy.

"It seems as if there is always a suitcase lying open in the middle of the room" says pretty Elisa of her traveling husband.

Last night the Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis were in the company and others were the Secretary of the Interior, Julius Krug, without Mrs. Krug, who, like almost everybody else, has a cold; Mme. Malik, wife of the Lebanese Minister, whose duties have taken him to New York; Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, Anis Azer, charge d'affaires of Egypt; Charles Ross, presidential secretary, and Mrs. Ross; Mrs. George Mesta, Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Burdette Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Snyder, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Pepper, who are visiting her, and Mr. and Mrs. Wells March.

WITH THE Greek Ambassador and Mme. Dendramis and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, widow of the Pennsylvania Governor, as dinner guests, conversation at Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell's house the other evening quite naturally revolved around the situation in Greece. Dynamic, red-haired Mrs. Pinchot has just returned from a five months' study of that unfortunate country.

Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe and Mrs. McAuliffe were also in the company, and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Waller, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Kessler—he's Counselor of the Swiss Legation, and Rodney Chalk.

THAT popular bride-elect, Miss Anita Cajigas, was entertained at another party yesterday afternoon with Mrs. James Souby the hostess. Miss Cajigas and Flying Officer George Mattusche will be married February 28.

Assisting at the tea table were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador; Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador; Senora de Caceres, wife of the Honduran Ambassador; Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Minister of Luxembourg; Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. William C. Culbertson, Lady Puckle, Senora de Fernandez-Davila, Mrs. Antony C. McAuliffe, Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. John R. Steelman.

Also Mrs. James Macpherson, Mrs. Cleveland Newton, Mrs. Carl Gray, Mrs. John H. Berry, mother of the hostess; Miss Beatrice Moore, Senorita Eleanor Castro, Senorita Blanca de los Monteros.

AT the home of Mrs. G. Howland Chase, a dinner was given by the American Women's Voluntary Service last evening in honor of the Marchioness of Reading. Guests numbered 24, and after dinner a meeting was held for about 100 members of the AWVS.

In England the Marchioness is head of the WVS. American officers who attended last evening's meeting were Miss Anita Phipps, president of the Washington unit; Mrs. John B. McNamara, first vice president; Mrs. Preston Delano, secretary, and Mrs. Francis Odor, treasurer. Mrs. Chase is second vice president of the unit.

THE FRENCH Minister and Mme. Berard entertained at a dinner last evening at their home on Albemarle st. The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were ranking guests. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Joseph Alsop, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Brien McMahon and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cox.

MISS CAREY LEE KINSOLVING, whose marriage to John Herbert Miller, jr., will take place in April, was guest of honor at a shower given yesterday by Mrs. John Goodwin Locke. Decorations were white and red in the Valentine theme.

THE Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington, and the Very Rev. John W. Suter, Dean of the Washington Cathedral, entertained at dinner in the College of Preachers Refectory Tuesday evening in honor of Col. F. Granville Munson, USA. retired, who has resigned as chief of the cathedral ushers corps after 15 years of service. Sharing honors with Colonel Munson was Col. William W. Dick, USA, retired, newly appointed head of the ushers corps.

MISS MARGARET LOUISE O'BRIEN will entertain at tea on Saturday in the French Room at Hotel 2400 to show her portrait, recently done by the well-known artist, Samuel Creed Gholson.

Supply Corps Wives Entertain at Tea

Wives of the Navy Supply Corps officers in the Washington area gave an informal tea yesterday at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Taking their turn at the tea table were Mrs. M. L. Ring, Mrs. Ralph Arnold, Mrs. Joseph Herlihy, Mrs. F. C. Dunham, Mrs. C. B. Kitchen, Mrs. Walter Honaker, Mrs. S. E. McCarty and Mrs. Joel Parks. Decorations were in the Valentine motif with red gladioli and white narcissus.

In Bridal Procession

MRS. RAYMOND A. HULLINGS
. . . wore candlelight satin

In the rectory of the Church of the Assumption Monday evening Miss Joyce May Ann Durnbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Durnbaugh of Capitol Heights, Md., became the bride of Raymond Alby Hullings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Hullings of Washington. The Rev. Charles Salbavich officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was costumed in candlelight satin with seed pearl trimmings at the waist. She carried white roses with white satin streamers. James C. Breen served as best man. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents.

On return from a motor trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Hullings will reside in Washington.

Brown-Suarez.
MRS. WILLIAM M. CALNAN
. . . February bride

Lieut. Marie Hunt Baylies, ANC, and Capt. William Michael Calnan, USA, were married February 7 in the Post Chapel, Fort Myer, Va. The Rev. William Fitzgerald officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Col. A. L. Baylies, USA (ret.), and Mrs. Baylies of Kansas City, Mo. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Calnan of Washington.

Given in marriage by H. L. Flemer, the bride was gowned in white marquisette. A Mary Queen of Scots tiara held her veil and she carried red roses, snapdragons and lilies of the valley.

Maid of honor was Lieut. Thelma Zeller of Fort Belvoir, Va., who was gowned in pink marquisette and carried an old-fashioned nosegay. Also attending the bride were Miss Rosemary Braden and Mrs. John H. Dettweiler, both costumed in sea green.

Dr. John H. Dettweiler was best man and the ushers were Capt. Del S. Perkins, Capt. E. L. Thompson, Capt. Robert J. Davenport and Maj. John Robinson. A reception followed at Hop Hall at Fort Myer.

On return from a motor trip through the South, the couple will reside in Arlington, Va. Mrs. Calnan, a graduate of Kansas State College, has been an Army physical therapist for the past three years. Captain Calnan was graduated from the United States Military Academy, class of '43.

MRS. ROBERT BROWN
. . . Virginia bride

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spotswood Burwell of Covington, Va., announce the marriage of their daughter, Caroline Terry, to Robert Hamilton Brown, son of Col. and Mrs. Robert Washington Brown of Falls Church, Va., which took place in Covington February 4.

The Rev. John Wellford officiated at the ceremony in Emmanuel Episcopal Church and a buffet supper followed at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin trimmed with Brussels lace. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a white orchid with her prayer book. Miss Sarah Woodward, maid of honor, was costumed in desert red chiffon and lace with a coronet of talisman roses matching her bouquet. Ray Brown was his brother's best man.

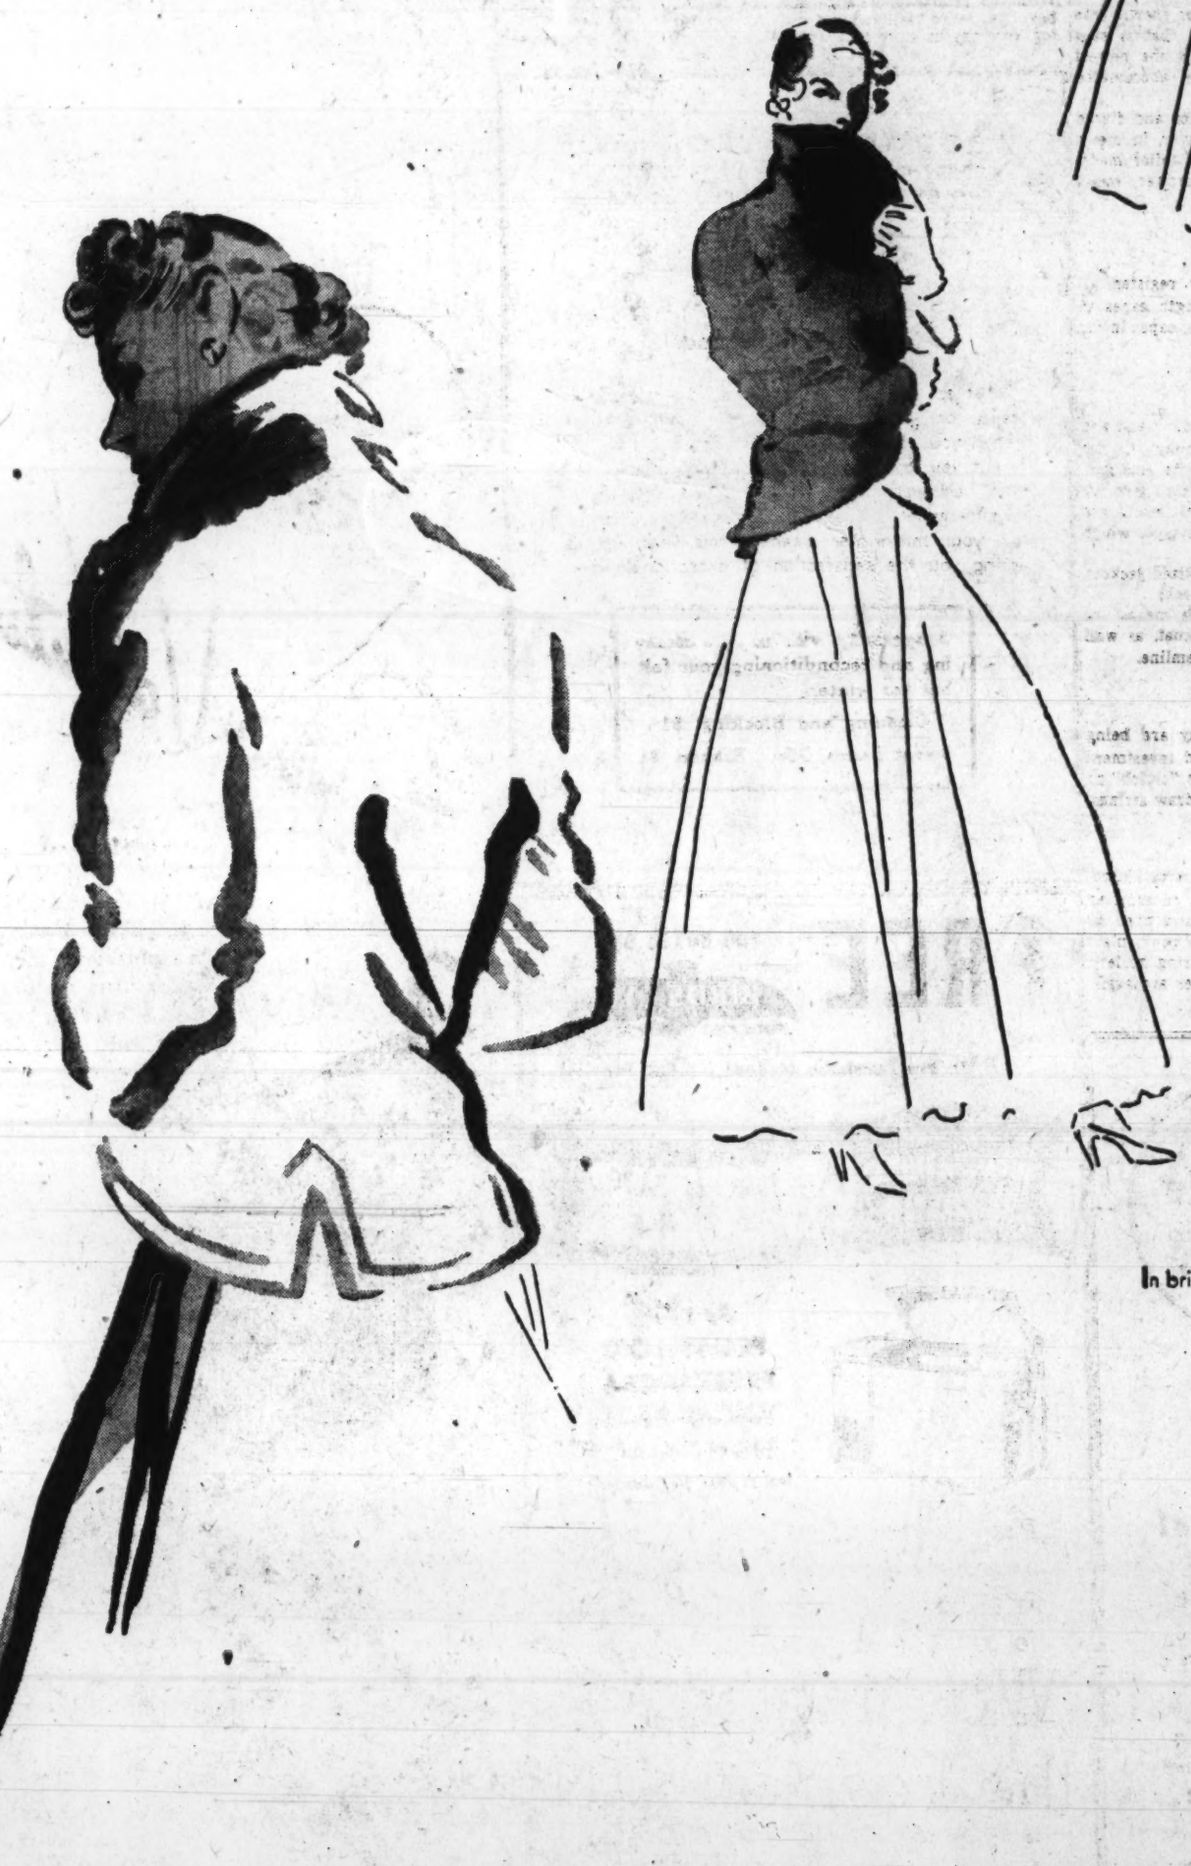

Following their honeymoon in Nassau, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside in Charlottesville, Va.

Fashion Guide to Spring

Navy Leads the Field For Dresses, Coats, Ensembles, Accessories

By Peggy Preston

WITH EASTER approximately six weeks in the future, the spring shopping season is about to get under way in earnest. Busy housewives and career girls who make up the bulk of the buying public will be making hurried trips to stores and shops in search of "something for spring." Despite the reams of words they have read and heard about 1948 fashions, they're probably wishing for a concise style guide, something to save them both time and mistakes during their shopping "spree."

Such a guide can be found in the recent survey made by Women's Wear Daily, a trade newspaper, which answers the question of what women can expect to find when shopping for a spring and summer wardrobe.

The survey reveals the following:

1. Big new style type for spring is the full-length coat paired with a dress to make a complete costume. This ensemble will be found in all price lines.

2. Principal color for spring is incontestably navy. This is one spring when black plays second fiddle to navy, and it's navy across the board—in coats, suits, daytime frocks, afternoon and cocktail dresses. Navy accessories—bags, gloves, stockings, shoes, etc., give greater strength to this color preference.

3. The trend toward softer, prettier, romantic fashions is reflected in everything from ready-to-wear through millinery and accessories. Pastel colors, especially mauves, lilac and lavender shades corroborate this feminine fashion mood.

4. In general the silhouette is more narrow, more rounded and shoulders more natural; waistlines little; skirts long and full. But this spring they are not too long or full, and you'll find a surprising number of them quite narrow.

Double Choice in Coats

THE CUSTOMER has two choices for her 1948 spring coat—the long way or the short way. She also has two choices in color—the light and the dark. The long coat is the important coat for spring. It is snugly fitted at the waistline, fully flared, and long enough to cover dresses 12 inches from the floor. Navy is a welcome choice in these long coats.

The short way in coats brings the favorite topper or shortie into prominence again. That comfortable toss-on topper that is easy over suits as well as dresses may be hip hugging in the newest cocoon silhouette, or loose and flare-back like an abbreviated domino.

In suits, the newest story concerns the short jacket and flared skirt. This is translated into fabrics of all types, even in men's wear worsted. For the costumer who wants a classic tailor made, there is still a good choice—again shoulders are narrower, waistline small, the skirt slim and easy.

Capes—And More Capes

CAPES DESERVE special mention because they register all the way along the line. Full length and hip length capes in wool; elbow length capes in print to match a print dress; capes in fur for spring and summer.

In Dresses, the Costume Look

THE NARROWER shoulders and taut bodice, the little waist and full skirt get nice expression in dresses for spring—in the prints, which range all the way from all-over abstracts to neat geometrics and a whirl of polka-dots; and in the plains, which give top place to navy. In addition to all the one-piece dresses, which are decidedly softer and prettier for spring, there are dress types which are complete costumes in themselves.

Capes, ranging from elbow to full length; boleros, fitted jackets, all these, added to dresses, speak up for the costume look.

A popular favorite will be the petticoat dress. This means the full skirted dress with separate whirling ruffled petticoat, as well as the dress with the petticoat ruffle frothing at the hemline.

Handbags Are Smaller

TREND IS toward smaller handbags, although they are being offered in all shapes and fabrics. Faille is a good investment for this year and this material is used generally in the "clutch" or "pouch" bag which may have a clasp or old-fashioned draw strings.

Shoes and Stockings

THE EVER POPULAR pump type of shoe is shown with closed, pointed toe and closed heel. With the approach of summer you will see linen and similar fabrics used in shoes and dyed to match particular costumes. Stockings in pale shades of pink, lilac, etc., will be put on the market for summer use, but spring hosiery will remain muted and quiet, although navy blue shades are available for those who wish them.

MISS PAT BOYER, appearing at the National Theater in the operetta "Blossom Time," models a trim ensemble for spring. With her semitailored beige suit she carries a navy blue corde bag. Her set of "tailored jewelry" consists of two clips and matching earrings in smooth unadorned metal. Suit and accessories available at Raleigh Haberdasher

Kincheloes Hosts at Dance For Davises

RED flowers bloomed against the white walls of the Congressional Club yesterday for the dance given by Judge and Mrs. David Hayes Kincheloe in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Commander and Mrs. James Henry Davis. Receiving hours were from 5:30 to 8:30, and music for dancing was furnished by Sidney's Orchestra.

Officials and residential circles were well represented among the 200 guests. Mrs. Clifford Davis, president of the club, was one of the assistants for the afternoon. Other assistants included Mrs. Wilbur K. Miller, Mrs. Maurice H. Thatcher, Mrs. Frederick Weigester, Mrs. Edward Campbell Shields, Mrs. Watson E. Coleman, Mrs. Geneva Dunham, Mrs. William H. Nutter, Mrs. William H. Emerson, Mrs. Joseph R. Barbaro, Mrs. Warren D. Wilkin, Mrs. William V. Deutermann, Mrs. H. F. Eckberg, Mrs. W. E. Ferrall, Mrs. Dorris A. Hanes, Mrs. Eleanor D. Cook, Mrs. Lawson Ramage and Miss Ruth Meehan.

Christening Party

Four generations attended the christening of Judith Anne Rupertus last Sunday at St. Martin's Church. The Rev. Father Louis Miltenberger officiated. A buffet supper followed the ceremony at the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Rupertus.

The baby's grandmother, Mrs. Ellnora Lacey, was at the ceremony, and the baby's aunt, Mrs. Myrtle Speaks. Mrs. Speaks' daughter, Mrs. James Burton, was present, and the latter's daughter, Miss Barbara Jean Burton.

Miss Reba Joyce Edmonds and William Francis Babcock stood as godparents for the baby.

Married

Mrs. Carl Howard Pitts, before her recent marriage in Kearney, Nebr., was Elizabeth Grace Poquette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph James Poquette of Washington. Her husband is a corporal in the Army Air Forces

In-Bed Club Brings Help, Recreation to Heart Patients

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

The Day of Hearts takes on new significance this year with its inclusion in National Heart Week, February 8 to February 14.

Dedicated to the prevention and cure of heart disease, this year's National Heart Week seeks to raise funds with which to fight the Nation's No. 1 killer. Over 3,700,000 Americans suffer from the disease itself, and another 3,700,000 have hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure, major contributing causes of heart disease.

In Washington, the Washington Heart Association, supported by the Community Chest, is dedicated to heart care. Last year a total of 4053 patients, 995 of them children, were treated in the seven heart clinics affiliated with the association.

Child Victims

Hearts are supposed to be young, pulsing, strong and sure. The very word "rheumatic," suggests decrepitude and age. Yet 90 per cent of all heart disease in children is rheumatic heart disease caused by rheumatic fever. Together the two cause almost five times as many deaths among children as infantile paralysis, whooping cough, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and cerebrospinal meningitis combined.

New hope sufferers of the dread disease came this week with news of the successful operation on a "rheumatic heart" valve by Dr. Horace G. Smithy, jr., in Charleston, S. C. Dr. Smithy, son of a well known Washington real estate man, performed the delicate operation on a 21-year-old girl who had her first attack of the fever when she was 18.

Rest and Care

In the two convalescent homes here supported by the Community Chest, the Christ Child Farms and Children's Country Home, little children find the rest and care essential for successful treatment of rheumatic heart disease.

Both in these convalescent homes and in their own homes, children are helped during their long period of recuperation by the Washington Heart Association's In-bed Club with a present membership of 375. Members keep in touch with each other through in In-Bed Club Magazine, to which they contribute stories, poems and drawings. They engage in contests and celebrate birthdays and holidays through its pages. Volunteers from the Junior League help edit the magazine and also visit the children.

Mrs. Buck Asks Clubwomen to Back ERP

Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, yesterday called upon the clubwomen of Maryland to support the European Recovery Program.

She said that reduction of the amount of financial aid recommended — 6.8 billion dollars— might seriously cripple the effectiveness of the program. "I am willing to accept the word of Secretary Marshall, based largely on the Harriman Committee report, that 6.8 billion dollars is the minimum necessary to launch a real recovery program," she explained.

Mrs. Buck made her appeal in a speech before some 250 organization leaders at an afternoon meeting of the Progress Club of College Park, Md. Prior to her address at the group's tea, she testified in behalf of ERP before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, currently conducting hearings on the Marshall Plan.

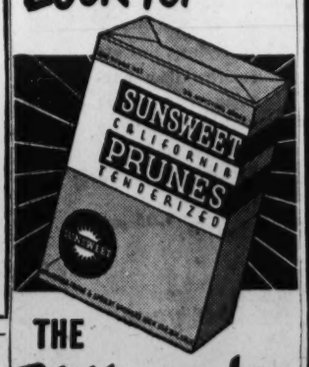

Mrs. Buck also told the women that they should be politically more active and pointed out that only 1 per cent of women in this country hold offices.

Preceding the meeting, sponsored by the Progress Club's international relationns committee, Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, entertained the club leaders at a luncheon.

Lady Reading's WVS Helps Britain's Workers To Help Themselves

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE DOWAGER Marchioness of Reading who will be guest of honor at the Women's National Press Club this afternoon, is making a whirlwind cross-country tour which would dismay the most hardened trouper. After receiving the Chi Omega National Achievement Award in New York, pausing briefly in the Capital, she will stop over in several Midwestern cities, sail home February 25.

Lady Reading, founder of Britain's extraordinary Women's Voluntary Services (the parent of our AWVS) is here, of course, entirely in its interests. During the war, Lady Reading headed some two million volunteer women workers. Now the WVS has been streamlined to a mere 750,000, who, instead of working sporadically, form a tightly integrated national coverage.

The main effort of these women is devoted to implementing social services, and by helping care for both the old and the very young, reduce Britain's struggle for economic recovery. Among the services performed is "home help"—for instance, feeding midday meals to home-bound old people, children, thus releasing able women for outside work.

Harris & Ewing
THE MARCHIONESS OF READING
. . . founder of Britain's WVS

Darby and Joan Clubs

A TOUCHING, but extraordinarily successful venture is the Darby and Joan Clubs—between 700 and 800 of them scattered through Britain. These "clubs" are exclusively for old people, many of whom are living in distressing postwar conditions.

The clubhouses are merely rooms—sometimes a dining or drawing room of a big house, sometimes a church hall. Here the old people can meet, keep warm at a fire, be assured of a hot meal. Having the oldsters watched over in this way reassures their working families.

Another service is finding foster homes, rather than placing children in institutions.

Textile Conservation

THE WVS CONSERVATION program covers the country, is decentralized down to a village street. Volunteers see that paper is saved for repulping; kitchen waste such as humble potato peelings, is salvaged, sent away to be ground into "cake" used to feed chickens and pigs (food for animals is tragically short in England).

Textile conservation is undertaken at clothing exchanges—the WVS runs about 700—where children's outgrown garments are swapped, and the few useless bits—like tiny babies' clothing, baled and sent to the Continent. All in all there are about a million and a half garments in constant exchange at these centers.

The WVS still keeps working for Britain's overseas troops. About 600 women volunteers, who receive only the tiniest sum for living expenses, are still in Japan, the Middle East, Trieste, Austria, Germany.

Promoting Home Industries

LADY READING'S—or rather the WVS' newest project is the Women's Home Industries which was launched last October 4. The British Board of Trade releases raw materials to the WVS for distribution to home workers.

The scheme caught on like wildfire. Within a week some 14,000 samples of knitting, embroidering and such flooded the London office. Each one had to be judged, graded and returned by registered mail. Extremely high standards, rigid specifications were set up with which workers have to comply. Now an average of 300 "specimens" are received daily. Prices are set by labor market experts, and the completed work sold only to stores.

Lady Reading brought over 1000 different articles with her and they are on exhibition in "The English Room" at the Plaza Hotel in New York. The range is tremendous—there are Fair Isle sweaters, plaid sox, exquisite needlework. Among those attracting most attention are needlework rugs and special needlework done for churches, similar to the wonderful handwork in Welles and Winchester Cathedrals.

The idea behind the Women's Home Industries is not entirely commercial. For in addition to earning dollars, the opportunity of being able to "do" something is invaluable in overcoming the sense of feminine frustration engendered by the tough, monotonous austerity of Britain's daily life.

Knows U. S. Well

LADY READING, who is tall, graying, intelligent, wonderfully friendly, is the widow of the Marquess of Reading who served as Ambassador in Washington from 1917 to 1920, was Viceroy of India from 1921 to 1926, and was Lord Chief Justice of England. Lady Reading is especially fond of this country, has made a number of trips here in prewar years. Her husband urged her to travel, get to know the United States, for he believed that the future of the world depended upon our country and Britain working closely together.

Today's WVS, Lady Reading insists, is a humdrum organization doing unspectacular tasks which have to be done. Lady Reading works some 14 hours a day for the WVS. In her "spare" time, she is a vice chairman of B.B.C., has a job with the Ministry of Health in relation to Britain's building program and with the Ministry of Labor, where's she is on the Factory Welfare Board.

Lady Reading would like to stay here a bit—but she believes everyone with a job to do in Britain should stay there.

Club Hears Plea for Hawaiian Statehood

By Genevieve Reynolds

Whether or not this country will admit Hawaii into the Union as the forty-ninth State with two voting Representatives in the House and Senate must be decided against the backdrop of the international scene. So declared Joseph R. Farrington, Hawaiian Delegate to Congress, in a luncheon address yesterday before members of the Women's Advertising Club of Washington.

Post-War Unrest

"War left great restlessness throughout the Pacific," he explained. "Japan is in the process of embracing democracy. The Philippines are free. Korea still is occupied by the United States and Russia, which creates a very unhappy situation. China is in the throes of a bitter contest of two conflicting ideologies. People of Guam are asking why they can't have United States citizenship, as are the natives of Samoa."

General MacArthur hopes to make Japan into a great democratic country, the speaker said. As for the people of Korea, he emphasized, "they are determined to be free."

Making a strong plea for Hawaiian Statehood, the speaker said that 85 per cent of the people of the island are American citizens for two or three generations; that of 234 witnesses questioned by Senator Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.) in a 1947 survey all except 15 favored statehood.

Mr. Farrington recalled that a straw vote taken at the University of Hawaii, whose students are three-generation Americans, nine to one voted in favor of Statehood.

"Hawaii now has a more important role to play than simply being the playground for 100,000 people each year," he concluded.

Leis, flown in from Hawaii by United Air Lines, were given as door prizes. But Mrs. Betty Farrington, wife of the speaker, was presented a lei made from American grown carnations.

A history of the hula with interpretations was given by Mrs. Blake Clark, wife of the well known author of "Hawaii, the Forty Ninth State."

Miss Owen and John C. Fergus Are Engaged

MISS BETTY OWEN

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McAdory Owen, jr., of Washington and Montgomery, Ala., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betty Owen, to John Corwin Fergus, son of Mrs. Corwin A. Fergus of Columbus, Ohio, and the late Mr. Fergus.

The bride-elect's family have long been prominent in Washington. Four members of her family have served in Congress. Her great grandfather is the late Senator John H. Bankhead, sr. The late Speaker William B. Bankhead and the late John H. Bankhead, jr., were her uncles.

Miss Owen spends summers in Alabama with her grandparents, Dr. Marie B. Owen, director of Alabama Department of Archives and History, and Seth P. Storrs, former State Commissioner of Agriculture and Industry, and Mrs. Storrs. Miss Owen attended King-Smith Studio School of Art, George Washington University and Columbia University in New York City. She is a member of Chi Omega Sorority.

Mr. Fergus was graduated from Swarthmore College, did graduate work at the University of Illinois and will graduate from Columbia University School of Law in the fall. He is a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity and served overseas during the war as a first lieutenant in the military government.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

The laundry returned a pillow case with several dark brown spots (possibly grease). I have tried soaking in chlorine bleach, but to no avail. Can you suggest a remedy? W. T. B.

Grease stains are most readily removed with a solvent such as carbon tetrachloride or gasoline, but often come out when laundered in hot water. If neither of these proved effective, you might try the following on the chance that the stains are axle grease: Rub lard or petroleum jelly into the stains, leave awhile to soften, then wash with warm soapy water or sponge with carbon tetrachloride or gasoline.

If the stains still refuse to budge, try another bleach. Use one of the dye-stripping agents sold by drug stores this time. These are usually made of sodium hydrosulfite. Sponge the stain with water, sprinkle the powdered bleach on the stain, then rub it in well with the fingers. Let stand a minute, then rinse out. Getting old, unidentified stains out of material is usually a matter of trial and error and even several different treatments may fail to remove them.

PETUNIA!

Turnips are purple
And carrots are gay

And together they make
A delightful bouquet!

Certainly they do, Petunia! Even though your flower garden is empty, well-scrubbed and shining vegetables make a festive centerpiece.

Can you tell me how to soften brown sugar that has hardened? I have two boxes that have never been opened and they have become very hard? E.J.D.

The quickest and simplest way to "re-granulate" this sugar would probably be to rub it on a coarse metal grater. However, you should be able to soften it by putting the opened box in the refrigerator for a few days or by unwrapping the sugar and putting the lumps in a bread box with a cup of water beside it.

Is there a successful home method of waterproofing percale (cotton) for use in covering a play pen pad for a baby? I understand the outside finish of a baby carriage can be redone to make it waterproof and wondered if cotton percale could be treated in the same way, yet be safe for the baby. If so, would you please give complete instructions as to materials used and method of application? R. H. E.

There are numerous waterproofing and water-repellent products on the market. The waterproofing products are those which are usually painted on and render the fabric impervious to air as well as moisture. This sort of product would appropriately be used on a baby carriage. Water-repellent substances coat the fibers and render them resistent to water without making the fabric air proof. This product is usually added to the last rinse when washing the garment or fabric and must be reapplied each time the garment is washed. I believe one of the water-repellents would serve your purposes best.

To use these water-repellents, of course, you should follow the manufacturer's directions which come with the product. In general, these products come in the dry form and are dissolved in the rinse water, usually one part water-repellent to 20 parts water. Wash the garment or fabric and thoroughly rinse. When rinsed, wring and then dip into the water-repellent solution as you would to starch the material. Dry and iron. You can reach a distributor for one water-repellent product in this area by calling Executive 2540.

I have an old cast-iron Betty lamp that I would like to have copied in a lighter-weight material that will take a dull black finish. Can you suggest where I could have a model made at a reasonable cost? L. H.

There is a casting firm in Alexandria which does the sort of job you wish done. They tell me that they do cast articles in aluminum, but would have to have a description of the article or see it, before they could say whether they could duplicate it for you and what material should be used. The cost of the job will depend upon the type of design, how much work is involved in making the model for the cast, etc. You can discuss the problem further by calling them at Alexandria 0585.

Labor Backs 'Equal Pay' Bill

Organized labor yesterday urged enactment of H. R. 4273—a bill providing equal pay for equal work for women at a hearing before a subcommittee of the House's Committee on Education and Labor.

Joseph A. Beirne, Washington, president of the Communications Workers of America, spoke for the 233,000 phone workers across the country, of which about 65 per cent of the members are women.

The Congress of Industrial Workers also filed statements with two House committees urging support of "equal status" legislation for women. The statement voiced CIO backing for H. R. 4273, the "Equal Pay Bill," and H. R. 5137, an amendment to the Immigration Act of 1924, providing nonquota status for alien husbands of American citizens in cases of marriages occuring since July 1, 1932.

Auxiliary to Hold Child Welfare Conference

Area B of the American Legion Auxiliary has scheduled its three-day child welfare and rehabilitation conference for opening at 9 a. m. tomorrow at Statler Hotel.

The District of Columbia department of the auxiliary will serve as host to the area, which also includes Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Puerto Rico, Virginia and West Virginia.

Tomorrow's sessions, to be presided over by Dr. A. H. Whittmann, will consist of invocation and pledge of allegiance by the Rev. Gordon C. Rice, greetings by Owen C. Holleran and Mrs. May C. Hilleary, a panel discussion on "The Child Welfare Goal of 1948," and a banquet at 7 p. m.

Mrs. Lowell C. Allen, national chapeau of the Eight and Forty, will address the conference Saturday morning. Committee reports will follow.

Mrs. Helen M. Jeffries of Culpeper, Va., will preside at the rehabilitation meetings Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning. Mrs. Laura Goode of Portland, Oreg., national rehabilitation chairman, will speak and there will also be panel discussions on claims, hospital service and the medical program.

Doings of the Day

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, Beautiful in Appearance, Personality And Character Before Marriage, Is Shattered By Menacing Husband; Family Is Horrorstruck

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Can you shed any light on the following case of character transformation that is beyond my understanding. I spent Christmas this year with my married sister and her family, who live in another State.

While there we were discussing her second daughter, a girl beautiful in personality, appearance and character, loved by everyone. She had married recently and I asked about her. My sister spoke of Jennie's beautiful home and all, but I thought in a rather evasive way.

Then the eldest daughter told me they see very little of her, as she seems always to be under a strain if they are there, and is always disfigured by bruises (or black eyes) which she never offers to explain; and if they ask, she passes it off.

It was the family's feeling, though nothing had been said, that her husband didn't want them in his home, so they hadn't been going, because they can't any longer have fun with Jennie, who was always so much fun before.

Man Defies Her Family's Concern

WHILE we were talking, Jennie and Bob, her husband, walked in. He was right on her heels. It seems he never lets her get two feet from him and if the family calls her into another room he always says to her, "Now, no secrets," and she takes care to stay in his sight.

Jennie looked thin to the point of fragility and had a black eye. Her mother, seeing this, and already upset by our discussion, took a step she'd never taken before. She asked Bob if he was beating Jennie and said if so, he'd better cut it out—speaking in a rather light, menial, embarrassed way.

At this Jennie seemed to freeze and just stared horrified at her mother. Bob showed much the same expression. Both looked white and rigid. Then he said, very low and freezing, "She is my wife and it's none of your business. You don't support her. I do. And this is the last time she'll ever come in this house."

With that he turned on his heel and walked out, Jennie right behind him, saying, "I don't blame him; mother has no tact, accusing him of something he isn't responsible for——," which he heard. It all happened in a few minutes and left us in a sort of shocked condition. There was something horrifying about it.

I thought to myself, "He doesn't even know for whom the bell tolls and no one will ever get the chance to tell him." I have expressed myself poorly, but if you can see the picture, can you understand it? I will appreciate your opinion: if there is something the family should know and do to help Jennie.

R. L.

Man's Cruelty Is Advertised

DEAR R. L.: There is something horrifying about this picture. Bob is a sinister character and Jennie is deathly afraid of him. His diabolic cruelty is advertised not only by her battered flesh but more so by her broken spirit and his generally menacing manner.

She ought to leave him, of course; but she is emotionally stymied, by equal parts fear and infatuation, probably; and her reaction to her mother's comment was eloquent of strain and terror, lest her family discover the shameful nature of the relationship in which she is trapped, and lest Bob visit new excesses of cruelty on her, in retaliation for her mother's temerity or on the suspicion that she (Jennie) had leaked their secret: and it is likely that he habitually threatens her life on that score.

Her family should have the good sense to take no offense at her parting remark, and to read it aright as a pitiful self-protective utterance coined for Bob's ear. As to his reaction, it was surcharged with guilt and fear, too, but also backed by the menacing defiance that psychotics and criminals have in common.

Girl Is Beyond Helping Herself

JENNIE is in a very bad way. She is under insupportable strain, the kind that leads to mental breakdown or self destruction if indefinitely prolonged. As matters stand, she has lost capacity to help herself; and plainly it is her family's duty to move heaven and earth to safely deliver her from Bob's dominance, if possible.

Taking your narrative at face value, her parents are justified in employing legal counsel, the finest obtainable, to spearhead a private investigation of Bob's social history and what can be learned of his day-to-day, behind-the-scenes abuse of Jennie; and if the findings warrant concern for her very life, to use them as basis for investing the parents—or community peace officers—with legal authority to tie Bob's hands while Jennie is spirited away to sane surroundings for restorative care.

I'm not sure such a program would succeed; but the gravity of the circumstances warrants a trial: and in any event, Jennie shouldn't be consulted in advance. Owing to her mesmeric terror of Bob, she'd spill the beans to him first off.

Farm Couple Taken From Frigid Home

Luray, Va., Feb. 11 (Spl.).—A 72-year-old man, in serious condition from frozen feet, and his wife were forcibly removed from their unheated home near Rileyville today, after neighbors complained the man apparently was starving his wife.

Commonwealth's Attorney I. R. Dovel said Jacob Deavers, a farmer, resisted sheriff's deputies when they went to the two-room house to remove the couple, and had to be brought to Luray in handcuffs. His wife, Viola, 65, objected to the removal but did not resist.

The couple were given temporary shelter in the jail here, but Deavers was taken immediately to Page Memorial Hospital, where he was described by Dr. George Long of Luray as being in "very serious condition."

Dovel said he and a deputy first visited the house Tuesday after receiving the neighbors' complaints, and found the couple alone without adequate food or clothing. Because of impassable roads, they were unable to take the Deavers back to Luray, but returned this morning with a horse and wagon, in which they transported the couple and their few belongings.

Although only a small piece of meat and a few frozen potatoes were in the house, Dovel said he learned later that Deavers had more than $2700 in a Luray bank.

The Commonwealth's attorney said he and the sheriff are investigating.

Welfare Taxes In Md. Far Under National Average

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—The average Maryland taxpayer contributes $4.78 yearly for public welfare in the Free State, but his contribution is under that of the average United States citizen, a report of the State Department of Public Welfare showed today.

The national average is $9.68.

The report cited figures for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the needy blind and general public assistance.

Maryland stands forty-fourth in the old-age category, with a cost of $2.02 a person, as compared with the national average of $6.57.

The State is 33d in aid to dependent children, with the $1.15 figure comparing with the national average of $1.83.

Burley, Sun-Cured Prices Up in Va.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11 (AP).—Higher prices were paid Virginia growers of burley and sun-cured tobacco in January than in the like month of 1947, but flue-cured and fire-cured leaf prices were off for the corresponding period.

The average price per hundredweight for burley tobacco was $44.42, as compared with $38.30 in January, 1947, and $29.55 for sun-cured, as compared with $25.54 a year earlier, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service announced.

Flue-cured leaf averaged $26.65 last month, as compared with $35.32 in January, 1947, and fire-cured was $29.77, a few cents below the $30.69 average in like period of 1947.

Bay Ice Floes Aid Oyster Conservation

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—At least one benefit has come from the ice floes in Chesapeake Bay.

Chairman John E. Clark of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission said the floes, which have hampered shipping in the bay and its tributaries for more than a month, are serving as "oyster conservation agents."

He explained oystermen have not been able to dredge or tong in many areas. Oyster production is considerably lower than in other recent years.

Reassessment Slated In Frederick County

Winchester, Va., Feb. 11 (Spl.). The first reassessment of real estate in Frederick since 1938 has been authorized by the county board of supervisors. The reassessment will be made this year, and will become effective for the tax year of 1949.

A board of assessors to make the appraisal will be appointed by Circuit Court Judge Elliott Marshal.

Woodstock Post Plans Veterans' Record Book

New Market, Va., Feb. 11 (Spl.). Complete records of all men and women of Woodstock who saw service in either World War I or II will be published by Muhlenberg Post No. 199, American Legion, of Woodstock, in booklet form.

Serving on a committee appointed to compile the records are J. C. Morris, chairman; Tommy Morris, Lee Wright, James S. Clower and Ray Hockman.

Poll Violations Probed

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11 (AP).—The State Board of Elections today began an investigation of charges of election law violations last November in Wise County.

Moses Proposes Tax to Finance School Program

Richmond, Va., Feb. 11 (Spl.).—A 2 per cent retail sales tax to benefit Virginia schooling was introduced here today in the Virginia Senate.

Introduced by Senator Charles T. Moses of Appomattox, the bill would finance education improvement recommendations made by the school study commission he headed last year.

It provides imposition of a 2 per cent general sales tax for items selling at 15 cents or more. Only exceptions would be for gasoline, sales between State agencies, Bibles and textbooks, and products of farmers and fishermen if sold by themselves.

Revenue For Education

Net proceeds of the tax would be paid into the State treasury and credited to a special fund of which 80 per cent would go solely to education. The balance would be apportioned to localities on a population basis.

Behind the legislative front here today, LaRue Van Meter, town attorney for Falls Church, Va., conferred with delegates from his area and a representative of the State Attorney General's office on need for legislation to exempt communities from liability in accidents on State highways. The courts recently ruled against Falls Church in such an accident suit.

Van Meter yesterday told a House subcommittee that Falls Church is against legislative measures that would tighten up present annexation laws. This, he said, was true despite fears that Arlington County might incorporate as a city and annex part or all of Falls Church.

He explained to the committee that the town hopes to become a second-class city before Arlington's incorporation and thereby save itself. If so, he said, Falls Church would then be in position to do some annexation itself, present laws permitting. Jefferson Village, he said, could be absorbed by Falls Church.

School Bill Referred

In other legislative actions today, the House discharged its committee on schools and colleges from consideration of a bill to change the State Department of education and referred the bill instead to the committee on courts of justice. A part of the Governor's reorganization program, it was sent to the committee studying other proposed measures and reorganization.

Both the House and Senate adopted a joint resolution for election of J. Lindsay of Roanoke, as Attorney General, and Harold Snead of Henrico, as judge of Richmond Circuit Court, an action assured by Democratic caucus held yesterday.

A bill to create a Virginia bright flue cured tobacco commission to promote export sale of such product was reported out favorably by the House Finance Committee. It would place a 10 cents per acre tax on tobacco farmers to finance its ends.

The same committee killed, with approval of its patron, Delegate Frank P. Moncure of Stafford, a bill to exempt corporations from making reports to the tax commissioner in those years when they failed to show a net profit.

Fireworks Measure Fought

The House battled today on a measure to prohibit throughout the State the sale, use and possession of fireworks. Delegate Robert Whitehead, of Nelson County, offered amendment to make the bill applicable only in those counties and cities which adopt its provisions by local ordinance, but the amendment was voted down, 51 to 39.

Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, of Alexandria, introduced a bill to make it a misdemeanor for any person to feed a bird or animal poison. He said he introduced the measure at the request of the Animal Welfare League, of Alexandria.

Under another measure, introduced by Delegate W. J. Gibson, of Fredericksburg, former soldiers would be permitted to practice law without standing a bar examination if they met certain other specified requirements.

The fire hazards bill, empowering the State Corporation Commission to issue regulations for and inspect public buildings for fire safety, was reported out favorably by the Senate committee on general laws. It would be applicable to all public buildings in which 10 or more persons work or assemble.

Census Approved

The committee also aproved bills permitting towns incorporated since the last Federal census to ask a court to conduct a census for purpose of holding local option referendum on the sale of alcoholic beverages; enabling the Alcoholic Beverage Control board to regulate and issue permits to hotels and restaurants for storage and use of alcoholic beverages for cooking, and legislation requiring sellers of firearms to report purchasers of same to clerks of corporation or circuit courts.

Yesterday, Delegates George Damm and J. Maynard Magruder of Arlington, introduced a bill which would give Arlington authority to require license tags such as cities now require. The Arlington County board would be the licensing authority under the measure.

Scholarships At Md. U. Held Not Revocable

University of Maryland scholarships awarded by members of the Maryland legislature are good for four years and cannot be revoked at the will of the lawmaker making the appointment.

Maryland Attorney General Hall Hammond gave this ruling yesterday at the request of Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university.

Byrd asked whether it would be lawful to take away the scholarship of a student who received it last September and grant it to another. The university head said he had no special case in mind but was asking the question since there were frequent changes in the legislature.

Under Maryland law senators and delegates may appoint three scholarship students each.

"We are of the opinion," the attorney general said, "that the scholarships once awarded were for a full term of study and not subject to change so long as the student maintained the educational and deportment standards of the university."

Winchester Sanitation Ordinance Is Opposed

Winchester, Va., Feb. 11.—A proposed Winchester city ordinance that would extend sanitation controls to all homes within a 2-mile radius of the city has been opposed by the Frederick County supervisors.

In asking the Winchester City Council to defer action on the proposal, the supervisors contended that Frederick County residents living in the affected zone would be unable to obtain materials needed to comply with the ordinance because of current shortages. Immediate passage of the ordinance, they said, would impose an undue hardship on those property owners.

Previously, the Winchester council had agreed to modify the ordinance so that outdoor facilities now approved by the State would be accepted in the 2-mile zone.

Baltimore Dentist Found Fatally Shot

Baltimore, Feb. 11 (AP).—Dr. Manuel Carvajal, 47-year-old dentist, was found shot to death on the floor of his bedroom early today.

Police said investigation will include questioning of the widow.

Occupants of an apartment above, told police they heard loud voices in the Carvajal's room.

Mr. and Mrs. Bastida said they shouted to the couple but were assured everything was all right. Two shots followed.

Fire Losses $23,700

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Fire losses in Annapolis totaled $23,700 in 1947, Fire Marshal Jesse A. Fisher announced today. Of the 73 blazes that the city's fire companies fought, 58 were in homes and other buildings.

'Security Week' in Md.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Governor Lane has proclaimed the period February 12 to 22 as National Security Week to coincide with the annual observance of the Reserve Officers Association of Maryland.

Cross-Country Horses Viewed By President

Horses, man's first transcontinental transportation, finally had their day at the White House yesterday.

President Truman strode out into the snow to inspect and approve three cross-country horses from Tacoma, Wash.

Ned Kennedy, a Tacoma rancher and his foreman, Cecil Cary, who rode the horses across the Nation, made the White House their Eastern terminus. Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), a horseman himself, made the introductions and Kennedy invited the horse inspection.

The rancher apologized for Flapjack, a jackass which started the trip, but which was sent back to Washington State when "he couldn't make up his mind whether he was a Democrat or Republican."

Kennedy and Cary are headed for New York, but plan to send the horses back home by auto trailer. They left President Truman with an invitation to attend the rodeo at Pendleton, Oreg., and Ellensburg, Wash., in event he gets "out that way."

Alexandria Opens Bids on $462,000 School March 24

Bids on construction of a $462,000 elementary school in northeast Alexandria will be opened March 24, the school board announced yesterday.

The board gave this school top priority in the six-million-dollar building program presented to City Council last month. The council, however, has not yet appropriated money for any construction.

The board also announced yesterday that at its Tuesday night meeting, it had asked its architect to prepare final plans on a new $540,000 Negro high school and that plans for an 18-room $575,000 school in Parkfairfax have been held up because of the lack of playground space.

Owners of Parkfairfax have offered the use of a playground but have refused to enter a written agreement promising the city permanent use, the board said.

Twins Marry Twins In Double Ceremony

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Identical twins married identical twins today in the only ceremony of its kind ever performed in Cumberland.

Arvella Muntzing became the bride of Oscie Simmons and Louella Muntzing was married to Elvern Simmons.

The brides wore gray suits and gardenia corsages.

The brides, 22, are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albery Muntzing, Maysville, W. Va., and the brothers, 29, are sons of Mrs. Myrtle Simmons, Pansy, W. Va. After a honeymoon in Cumberland, they will reside with the brides' parents.

Coal Unloading Idea Saves U. S. Thousands

Fort Meade, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Edward F. Walsh, 47, devised a new system for unloading coal at the yard here, saved Uncle Sam about $9000 a year and won a $250 award for himself, Second Army headquarters announced today.

Walsh, who is coal yard superintendent, cut out the double handling of coal by building hoppers to fit over under-car unloaders, thus speeding up stock piling where a tipple is available.

Walsh said he can use the cash. He has nine children, aged 3 to 22.

Mayor of Snow Hill Gets First Check Back

Snow Hill, Md., Feb. 11 (U.P.).—Mayor J. O. Byrd is going to retire this May, and he's going to take with him the canceled check which was the first pay he received after being elected 23 years ago.

The other day, someone found the check—for $25—blowing down a Snow Hill street with other trash from the Worcester County Courthouse.

Md. Fisheries Dispute Airing Likely Today

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Admonished by Governor Lane to resume normal operations, the Tidewater Fisheries Commission will meet tomorrow and is expected to carry into the open a long-simmering internal dispute.

The controversy has involved Commission Chairman John E. Clark and Capt. Amos S. Creighton, commander of the enforcement fleet. An informant in the Governor's office said Creighton was represented as having been dissatisfied with his assignments.

Clark called the meeting today after Governor Lane wired from Florida—where he is vacationing—that ordinary functions of the agency be resumed.

Clark said he expected George T. Harrison of Tilghman would move tomorrow to reconsider "Captain Creighton's case." He said he likewise believed that Harrison would be supported by Allan A. Sollers of Benedict. They are the other commission members.

There was no public comment from the commission members, Creighton, or State officials.

Meanwhile, the Commercial Fishermen's Association scheduled an executive board meeting for Friday. Gilbert H. Moore, executive secretary, said "naturally we are vitally interested in the Clark-Creighton affair."

He added he expected the board would have a statement after the session.

Missing Student Returns Married

Newton, N. J., Feb. 11 (AP).—Anne Lorenzo, 18-year-old Hood College freshman who was reported missing January 5, returned home today and announced she had married her hometown sweetheart, Frank Stepongzi.

Police in 14 States had sought the girl after she failed to report at the Frederick, Md., college at the close of the Christmas holiday.

The girl said they were married in a small town in Virginia, the name of which she said she didn't remember.

They plan to stay with the bride's parents for a while. The bridegroom's father operates a farm close by.

2 Join College Faculty

Lexington, Va., Feb. 11 (AP).—The addition of two Virginia newspapermen to the journalism faculty at Washington and Lee University was announced here today. Those appointed are Louis Spilman, editor and publisher of the Waynesboro News-Virginian, and William Atkinson, managing editor of the Roanoke Times. Both served in similar positions last spring.

Colombians Visit USNA

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP).—Ten Colombian Sea Scouts who are on a tour of North America stopped off at the Naval Academy today for a glimpse of how the United States produces its regular Navy officers. They arrived in New York aboard the Grand Colombiana on January 10.

will be offered for sale by the War Assets Administration at Washington Customer Service Center, 4th and Jefferson dr. sw., Washington, D. C., on February 26, 1948 at 9 a. m. 80 of the vehicles are classified as "set-aside" and will be sold to veterans of World War II at fixed prices. 140 vehicles are classified as "non-set-aside" and will be sold to veterans of World War II, other priority holders, dealers and exporters, in a competitive bid sale on equal terms.
Vehicles will be awarded to the highest acceptable bidder. Buyers prohibited by law from bidding may file letters of intent to purchase.
Vehicles may be inspected on February 24 and 25, 1948, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. at the Naval Storage Yard, Brandywine, Maryland; and the U. S. Marine Base, Quantico, Va. Detailed listings of vehicles may be obtained at locations or at the Washington Customer Service Center during inspection period. World War II veterans buying set-aside vehicles must present documentary evidence of honorable discharge. Veterans of World War II buying non-set-aside vehicles must also certify that vehicles purchased will be used in their own business, professional or agricultural enterprises.
Condition of vehicles varies from "fair" to "poor," and prospective buyers are urged to examine each vehicle carefully before buying. All vehicles will be sold on an "as-is, where-is" basis.
WAA reserves the right to limit the number of vehicles sold to each purchaser, to add to or withdraw any or all vehicles offered for sale and to reject any or all offers at any time prior to sale.
All sales subject to WAA standard conditions of sale.

Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

And That's What It Takes to Bet on Crosby's Horses

When Business Analyst J. A. Livingston addressed the Advertising Club Tuesday, he discussed the current break in stock and commodity prices.

In general, he felt the downward adjustment of market values was a good thing for the country, and would permit business and industry to avoid the bust which usually follows unchecked inflation. "It's nothing to worry about," he said.

After Livingston was finished, Radio Comedian Bob Hope strolled in. He was immediately invited to "say a few words," and obliged by ad libbing a few minutes of humorous patter. When he was finished, Livingston quipped:

"I give 'em confidence and the Ad Club gives 'em Hope."

SLEDDING NOTES

Several District Liners have asked why the local police sometimes block off a street for sledding, only to come along a few days later with sanding crews who ruin the course.

There's a perfectly logical explanation. The streets are reopened to traffic because the sledders have failed to behave themselves properly.

The Brandywine st. hill, near 42d st. nw., is a good example of how these things work. After the big snow, police barred traffic from the street and stationed an officer there to see that the kids enjoyed themselves.

And they did—for a while.

But then the inevitable roughnecks showed up, to spoil things for everybody—themselves included.

They started breaking up sledding parties, jumping on passing sleds and making general nuisances of themselves. Their rough-house tactics resulted in several accidents, one of which was serious enough to warrant an ambulance call.

Result: The patient cops at No. 8 had no alternative but to call for the sanding crews and reopen the street to traffic.

HONEST ABE

Since this is Lincoln's Birthday and nobody has sent me a good Lincoln story, I'll tell my own favorite again. (Anybody who has known me for more than 15 minutes has already heard this).

It seems that Old Abe and his Cabinet were engaged in a prolonged meeting in which the various politicos couldn't seem to reach an agreement. Basic facts had been obscured and all but drowned in the flow of oratory, and Lincoln realized that they weren't getting anywhere.

So at long last he asked: "Gentlemen, can you tell me how many legs a cow has?"

There was a moment of surprised silence, and then somebody answered, "Why, a cow has four legs, Mr. President."

"Fine," agreed Mr. Lincoln. "Now let's suppose that we call the cow's tail a leg. In that case how many legs would she have?"

"She'd have five, Mr. President."

"Ah," sighed Old Abe, "that's where you make your mistake, gentlemen. She'd still have four—because our calling that tail a leg doesn't make it one."

DISPATCH FROM OUR WHITE HOUSE REPORTER

There's a vacant lot near the bus stop at New Mexico ave. and Lowell st. nw.

From that lot there appeared yesterday a quail, closely followed by another, and then two more.

The lead bird walked boldly out into New Mexico ave., and the others followed. By the time they were in the middle of the thoroughfare, four more quail emerged from the lot. Then singly and in groups, about 30 newcomers joined the strange procession.

Perhaps they had been forced from their rural homes by the snow which disrupted their food supplies; perhaps they were just curious about city life.

In any event, there they were crossing New Mexico ave. like so many little soldiers. Several of them flew a few yards, but mostly they walked in single file until they reached the other side of the street, where they disappeared into the Glover estate.

I didn't see the incident myself, but I have it from the usual unimpeachable source.

Our reporter for this item, you see, is Edward T. Folliard —whose stories for this newspaper usually deal with Presidents and Kings and the fate of nations.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

With all this sand on our streets and sidewalks, all we need now is a couple of windy days and the sand will all be in my eyes.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—When Henry Wallace was Secretary of Commerce his associates would accompany him to the Tidal Basin at the Lincoln Memorial, where they all practiced hurling boomerangs. One afternoon an elderly man approached Wallace, said, "Mr. Secretary, will you please try this one?" and showed him a fine, polished, mahogany boomerang. Wallace had never seen such a fine one before. He tossed it and the boomerang whirled clear around the Lincoln Memorial. It fell against a cornice and was shattered . . . "Oh, this is awful," said the elderly man, who quickly collected the pieces and fled. The next day came a report that the FBI was searching for a rare Australian boomerang missing from the Smithsonian Institute.

TRAVEL NOTE: Nancy Webb, author of "Parties for Pennies," lives in South Salem, whose 95 other residents include Henry Wallace. She told the Woman Pays Club this week that when Wallace went abroad the South Salem Chronicle felt that this required editorial clarification. The Chronicle's editorial read: "We certainly hope that the folks over there in Europe don't think that Mr. Wallace is speaking for the rest of South Salem."

VACATION DEPT.: Bob Woodruff, head of Coca-Cola, invited Edgar Bergen to his plantation at Albany, Ga., for some shooting last week. Bergen shared a blind with one of Woodruff's friends. They spotted a turkey, and both men fired at the same time. The turkey fell, and each man insisted that his shot had brought it down. They were still arguing about it when they got back to Woodruff's home. "There's only one way to settle this," said Bergen. Then the ventriloquist stepped up to the dead turkey, lifted its head and asked: "Who shot you, turkey?" And the turkey answered: "You did, Bergen."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Recently the Town Hall of the Air featured a debate in which Joe Frazer, of Kaiser-Frazer, and Morris L. Ernst, the attorney, were on opposite teams. On the day of the broadcast Ernst received a long-distance call from Henry J. Kaiser's office. Mr. Kaiser made no suggestion as to how his partner should be treated in rough debate. "The only request I make," Ernst was asked, "is please don't call it 'The Kaiser Empire'."

SHIPPING NOTE: Capt. C. W. R. Knight, who owns "Mr. Renshaw," the large golden eagle used in the J. Arthur Rank film, "I Know Where I'm Going," has just arrived in New York. This is his first postwar visit. On his last trip to America, for a lecture tour with his eagle, he sailed on the Volendam, which was torpedoed. The crew naturally could not be concerned with an eagle, and so "Mr. Renshaw" was abandoned below deck . . . Captain Knight was picked up by a destroyer, and months later he learned that the Volendam had been salvaged. Knight found "Mr. Renshaw," the eagle, had survived the weeks at sea, alone on the ship. "He wasn't seasick," Captain Knight insists, "he looked a little hungry."

Friendship Fever Spreads in U. S.

By Drew Pearson

When the first Friendship Train finished its run across the country, Henry Kaiser, who acted as special conductor on the New York Central division, suggested that one way to solve European relief was to let the American people run a series of Friendship Trains from different parts of the country.

Kaiser

My reaction was that it couldn't be done. In the first place, the job seemed too tremendous. Second, I thought we had imposed enough on the railroads for free freight. Finally and selfishly, I told Henry that my office had been turned topsy-turvy by the job of running one Friendship Train, that I was a physical wreck from riding on it, and that I didn't see how any more trains could be organized.

However, Henry Kaiser was right. Even as we talked the Wichita Eagle and other energetic citizens of the Southwest had organized a special wheat section of the Friendship Train. Simultaneously patriotic New Englanders had started organizing a Friend Ship carrying food and clothes to the British Isles, while today two Abraham Lincoln Friendship Trains leave from Lincoln, Nebr., and Springfield, Ill.

So it is appropriate and fitting on the birthday of the Great Emancipator to review the attempts of many Americans to carry out his advice: "It is for us the living . . . to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced."

So much of this work has been carried on by individual citizens and groups of citizens that it is hard for any newspaper to cover it all. But it illustrates the fact that the American people have a deep and almost religious concern for the welfare of their fellow men; also that they themselves want to play a part in American foreign policy, not leave it entirely to diplomats.

And if the Marshall Plan is able to harness this initiative, if it is able to use this healthy desire of the American citizen to be an active part of his own State Department—then the Marshall Plan will be a success.

Unquestionably, a central, coordinating agency such as that provided for under the Marshall Plan is necessary to direct European reconstruction. However, the wise Marshall Plan administrator will go out of his way to use the tremendous drive and desire of the American people to help their fellow men.

For instance, here are just a few of the things individual Americans, quite independent of their Government, have done to carry on "the unfinished work" and build friendship abroad.

Up in Maine, a State which the Friendship Train could not visit, the Bath Iron Works received an order to build 30 fishing trawlers to replace part of the French fishing fleet lost in the war. And instead of sending these ships to France empty, the 33 Rotary Clubs of Maine undertook to fill the first trawler, the St. Patrick, with food and clothing for the people of France.

And on the other side, the Rotary Club of Nantes, France, has enthusiastically agreed to distribute this food and clothing in such a way as to build up French and American friendship.

In another New England city, the Eastport, Me., Sentinel carried an editorial suggesting that the sardine industry contribute a carload of sardines to the Friendship Train. Whereupon the Maine Sardine Packers Association raised a carload and sent it to Europe through the Unitarian Service Committee.

Meanwhile, down in New Orleans, which the Friendship Train had to bypass, various patriotic citizens got together and decided to adopt the City of Orleans, France.

Out in Detroit the other day Jean Beliard of the French Embassy was addressing the Michigan Junior Chamber of Commerce which raised a friendship caravan for France. Suddenly he got a phone call from Kalamazoo.

"This is Henry Ford speaking," said the voice on the other end of the line. "No, not Henry Ford the auto man, but Henry Ford, the Mayor of Kalamazoo. We've adopted the City of Fougeres in France, and we want you to come over and give us a brief talk."

Beliard went. He reported to his government later that he has never seen a group where enthusiasm was so contagious.

Meanwhile the seed growers of Minnesota have worked out a counterpart of the CARE program, whereby packages of seed can be sent to European families so they can grow their own food.

Car conduct

The courtesies of driving are . . . So simple and so few . . . That everyone should follow them . . . Without the least ado . . . The signal for a sudden stop . . . Or turning left or right . . . The cutting down of lamps that glare . . . When passing cars at night . . . The patience to remain behind . . . Upon a hill or curve . . . And holding back the epithets . . . That others may deserve . . . They are the courtesies that keep . . . Unpleasantness away . . . And usually they also are . . . The laws we should obey . . . But more importantly they are . . . The courtesies we give . . . That all of us who drive may have . . . A longer life to live.
